108 Killed in Air Crash

ONE SIGN OF DISASTER

(Times News Services)

MONTREAL — By early Sunday afternoon, the only indication that disaster had overtaken Flight 621 originating here was a small handwritten sign directing relatives to a special lounge.

Earlier, many of the people waiting still could not believe it and nervously awaited specific confirmation of the deaths. Others insisted on being taken to the crash site.

The airline installed extra telephones to handle outgoing calls to relatives and arranged transportation to either Montreal or Toronto.

Champagne and Roses Start Death Flight

TORONTO (CP) — There was soft music, a bouquet of red roses and perfect flying weather as the four stewardesses of Air Canada's flight 621 welcomed their passengers aboard the Los Angeles-bound Super DC-8 Sunday.

The time was 7:20 a.m. and the flight the sales agents call the "connoisseur flight"—because of the wine and champagne served aboard—was loading 99 passengers at Montreal International Airport.

DRILL CONDUCTED

In the cockpit Captain Peter Hamilton, a veteran airline pilot who had been with Air Canada for more than 20 years, went through his pre-flight drill with the confidence born of long experience and the knowledge that his aircraft was one of the newest in Air Canada's fleet. It was delivered April 24 and had flown fewer than 450 hours.

After takeoff the passengers settled down to breakfast: Baked ham and scrambled eggs in economy class, an alternative omelette and corn flakes on the first-class menu.

Flying in brilliant sunshine with perfect visibility Flight 621 climbed northwest to 27,000 feet over Ottawa. Cruising at 550 miles an hour the aircraft passed over Peterborough, Ont., and began its slow descent toward Toronto where another 100 passengers were waiting to board.

The time was 8:05 a.m. It had been a textbook flight and approach and the huge jet was cleared for touchdown five minutes ahead of schedule.

Then disaster struck. As Flight 621 touched the ground, for reasons still unknown, an engine broke away. The jet roared into the air again, heading northeast. Flight 621 had three minutes to live.

The ground controller guiding the touchdown called urgently: "He's lost an engine . . . He's lost another . . . he's going down. . . ."

In a farmer's field seven miles from the airport the DC-8 lay scattered in thousands of pieces. The wreckage hissed and steamed gently. There were no cries, no screams.

The 99 passengers, the nine crew aboard the "connoisseur flight" were dead.

Centennial Grant Going to Health

Premier Bennett wants the federal government to allocate $7 million of its $10 million centennial gift to B.C. for health services, especially research.

In a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau, Bennett said the allocation of the $7 million would be carried out under the auspices of the B.C. Medical Association.

He told a press conference today a portion of the $7 million could be spent on an improved measles vaccine and testing program for women anticipating pregnancy if the medical profession desired. (Some doctors have complained of the inadequacy of the government's current measles vaccine program."

Bennett said he wired his proposals to Trudeau last Friday after having formed a consensus of the opinions of British Columbians on how the federal grant should be spent to celebrate the 100th anniversary of B.C. joining confederation.

BENNETT ANXIOUS

He said he sent the wire to Trudeau, who announced the $10 million grant June 15, because he is anxious that planning for the centennial proceed without delay.

Bennett said the impression he has received from the public is that they don't want the money spent on swimming pools or buildings but on services to people, "and the health of our citizens must come first."

Bennett proposed that the balance of the $10 million grant be spent this way:

- $1 million for "federal programming and publicizing" of the centennial;
- $2 million to go to a $1 per capita grant to all of B.C.'s local centennial committees "for their lasting commemorative projects."

ITALIAN PREMIER Mariano Rumor resigned today, and the nation's labor federations promptly suspended a planned nationwide general strike. The strike had been called to press Rumor's coalition government for economic reforms.

SIHANOUK SENTENCED TO DEATH

SAIGON (AP) — A five-man tribunal sentenced Prince Norodom Sihanouk, former Cambodian chief of state, to death in absentia Sunday for crimes against the state.

The judge added that the penalty for these crimes, together with that of corruption, was death, loss of citizenship and forefeiture of property.

Post Offices Study Regional Lockouts

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmasters across the country have been authorized by the government to close down local operations if they feel recurring strikes and backlogs of mail have rendered adequate service impossible.

Sources confirmed today that the postmasters were notified during the weekend to be ready to take action at any time.

They said, however, that a decision to close would be left entirely in the hands of local officials.

The new governmnt tactic is a long-delayed response to rotating strikes organized by the Council of Postal Unions in the contract dispute that has distrupted post office service for more than a month.

IWA TALKS

Meanwhile, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today entered the deadlocked dispute between the Internatioal Woodworkers of America and British Columbia's coastal forest industry, holding separate meetings with both sides.

This morning he sat down for closed face-to-face talks in Vancouver with IWA negotiators and at 2:30 p.m. he met with John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., bargaining agent for the 116 companies involved in the contract dispute.

No statement was issued on the success or failure of either session.

Billings this morning declined speculation on the degree of involvement the attorney-general is likely to allow himself in the stalled negotiations between FIR and the IWA.

No talks have been held since June 26 and provincially-appointed mediator Clive McKee withdraw at the end of his term of responsibility Friday saying no progress was being made.

"We've made a firm, serious offer that we want the public and our employees to know about," he said.

He also avoided direct comment on suggestions a

ROOM FOR CHEF —NONE FOR PM

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau had to borrow an apartment for his visit here Sunday because the new three-storey Frobisher Inn was filled for the weekend by the Royal Family and its party (See also Page 2)

All 50 of the $25-a-day rooms were reserved for the royal party, which includes a man described as a travelling yoeman.

Four waitresses from a restaurant in Montreal-Ruby Foo's were flown the 1,000 miles to Frobisher to serve the Royal Family and chef Robert Orsi of Alliston, Ont., Nottawasaga Inn, also was brought here.

Practically all the food in Frobisher, a settlement on Baffin Island, is imported except local delicacies such as caribou, grayling, Arctic char and seal meat.

An apple costs 35 cents, a loaf of bread or a head of lettuce $1, a bottle of beer 85 cents.

But the wages are good and some of the 1,200 Eskimos earn as much as $8,500 a year.

British Army to Probe Belfast Looting Charges

Times News Services

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — The British Army today set up a special office to investigate charges of looting and brutality against British troops during weekend rioting in the Roman Catholic area of Belfast where three persons were killed.

In London, Lord Balniel, minister of state in the defense ministry, told Parliament the government would investigate reports of looting by British troops if specific charges were made. He put the death toll at three civilians killed and said 57 civilians and 15 soldiers were wounded.

The area was quiet today but a Catholic member of the Ulster Parliament predicted all-out war with Protestants this summer.

In Dublin, meanwhile, total disarmament of civilians in Northern Ireland and protection for the Roman Catholic minority has been demanded by the government of the Republic of Ireland.

A statement issued after a cabinet meeting Sunday night by the Dublin government charged Northern authorities with concentrating only on the Catholic minority areas of strife-torn Belfast in their search for arms.

The bitter complaints came from the Roman Catholic Falls Road area where troops enforced a curfew and conducted a house-to-house arms search, following three deaths in rioting Friday night and Saturday.

Gerry Pitt, member of the British Parliament for West Belfast, said he had collected about 100 complaints of alleged looting and damage by soldiers. He promised to raise the issue in London with Home Secretary Reginald Maudling and in the House of Commons this week.

Allegations against the troops included taking money,

Plane Landed —Then Took Off

TORONTO (CP) — Investigators today began a painstaking reconstruction of the last minutes of Air Canada Flight 621 in an effort to determine the cause of Sunday's crash which killed all 108 persons aboard.

The Super DC-8 jet crashed only 75 feet from a farmhouse 3¾ miles north of Toronto International Airport after it touched the runway briefly and took off again when an engine dropped off.

It was to have made a brief stopover on a flight to Los Angeles from Montreal.

Canada's Second-Worst

The victims of the second worst air disaster in Canada's history included 75 paying passengers, most of them from Quebec and California, two infants, 22 Air Canada employees and a crew of nine.

"Everything was silent except for a hissing sound coming out of the hole," said farmer Sytze Burgsma, the first witness on the scene after the four-engine plane crashed in his vegetable patch at 8:10 a.m.

"There was no screams or anything like that."

PIECES SMALL

A shoe, part of a stewardess's uniform, a child's doll and a 20-foot piece of wingtip were among the few recognizable pieces of debris scattered in the fields and trees around a scorched hole 35 feet wide and up to seven feet deep.

W. M. House of the federal department of transport, who is heading the investigation, said tapes from the plane's flight recorder, found at the crash site, are being studied for clues.

Teams of investigators were set up to study control tower tape recordings of conversation with the pilot, Capt. Peter Hamilton of Montreal, interview eyewitnesses and examine the wreckage.

An Air Canada spokesman noted that many of the passengers were Americans returning home on the holiday weekend, but that even so the plane was not carrying its peak load of 198 passengers.

"Yesterday (Saturday) or tomorrow (Monday), it would have been full," he said.

There were conflicting reports of what happened at the airport when the giant jet—a stretched version of the DC-8—made its landing approach to runway 32 in near-perfect flying weather.

FIRE REPORTED

Ground control officials and police were quoted as saying the pilot had radioed that one of his starboard engines was on fire, and that the control tower had ordered him to gain altitude and jettison fuel.

But Mr. House, although confirming that there had been a fire, said it had not yet been determined whether it occurred before, during or after the landing attempt.

An Air Canada spokesman said there were no emergency messages from the plane at any time and that the aircraft made a normal approach.

A department of transport official at the airport said the pilot informed the control tower that he was executing a missed approach—meaning he was aborting the landing attempt and would try again.

The plane apparently rolled a short distance along the runway—some witnesses said it bounced on the runway—and then began what appeared to be a normal takeoff.

But while in the air over the runway, the outside starboard engine dropped to the ground. Minutes later and just before the crash, the inside starboard engine and 15-foot length of wingtip fell 100 yards apart into farm fields.

CAME APART IN AIR

All the eyewitness reports agreed that the plane was trailing flames and smoke and dropping pieces of debris as it left the area of the airport and that it then "nosedived right down," as eyewitness Michael Matyas described the final descent.

About 200 policemen under the direction of the provincial police sealed off a four-square-mile area round the crash site as investigators from the department of transport and Air Canada moved in.

facturers of the DC-8, were to join the investigation.

Two refrigeration trucks were called in to help a Canadian Armed Forces helicopter remove the bodies to a sports arena at the nearby community of Woodbridge.

The arena was used as a temporary morgue while pathologists, dentists and document experts began identification procedures.

At the airport, other passengers due to board Flight 621 stood in stunned silence with friends and relatives who had come to see them off.

GIRLS MISS DEATH

An alternate flight took off at 10:25 a.m.—two hours and 10 minutes after the crash. Among the passengers were two daughters of Bill Ironstone who witnessed the crash from the airport observation deck.

He put his two girls on the alternate flight and said:

"It could have happened to any plane. It was just coincidence."

At the Burgama home, John Burgsma, 19, described how he saw the crippled plane come down toward the house where his parents and seven of his brothers and sisters were still sleeping.

"I figured we were goners. I went out but I saw nothing at all. They didn't have a chance."

Mr. Burgsma, whose wife Janna is expecting her 11th child, said the impact of the crash shook the house and smashed windows.

He shouted at his family to stay inside, then ran out to the field "as that yellow insulation stuff fell like snow."

GOLFER WATCHED

Garry Hyrchuk of Toronto was part of a group of golfers who watched the plane from a nearby golf course as it "flipped over and went straight down like a heavy rock."

"You hear about these things happening but I still can't believe it. That's what really scared me—that it was real and I was watching it."

It was the first major crash at Toronto International and the second worst in Canada's aviation history.

Another Air Canada DC-8, also en route to Toronto from Montreal, crashed Nov. 29, 1963, at Ste. Therese, 20 miles north of Montreal, killing all 118 on board. Investigation showed the crash was caused by failure of the plane's trim controls.

Queen Elizabeth, visiting Frobisher Bay, N.W.T., at the start of her tour of the North and Manitoba, expressed to Prime Minister Trudeau her "most sincere sympathy" for the families of Sunday's crash victims.

Mr. Trudeau's office released a message from the prime minister in which he said he was shocked and saddened by the tragedy.

Safe Driving Pays . . . Again

Safe driving pays off.

Goodwill Bottling Ltd. gave away 2,000 soft drinks Saturday to celebrate the Capital Region's fatality-free Dominion Day holiday.

Drinks were served to every one who showed up at the stand outsdie the Eire Street bottling plant, and according to manager Bill Sherwood, several of the neighborhood kids showed up again and again.

The company also gave away drinks in 1968 when there was a fatality-free Dominion Day.

Northern Visit Start Successful

By DAVE STOCKAND

Chancy marrow-chilling weather could do nothing Sunday to diminish the first day of the first royal tour of Canada's most northernmost reaches.

Months of laborious planning and genuine anticipation would have been knocked cockeyed if the royal flight from London had not been able to put down at this Baffin Island starting point of a historic centennial year visit to the Northwest Territories.

But a fog that looked as though it was settling in for the summer relented at the last minute and plans for a diversion of the royal jet to Ottawa were made redundant.

Prince Charles, who had flown from Ottawa the previous day with Governor-General Roland Michener, was able to stride up the passenger ramp, exactly on schedule at 11 a.m. EDT, for a brief private reunion with the arriving party—the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne.

TRUDEAU MEETS THEM

Also on hand when the Queen emerged moments later from her chartered Air Canada DC-8 jet was Prime Minister Trudeau, whose own flight from Ottawa had arrived just 12 minutes before hers.

Next scheduled stop in the 11-day tour marking the co-centennials of the Territories and Manitoba is Resolute, in the Queen Elizabeth Islands above Canada's Arctic mainland and 1,665 miles north of Winnipeg.

Members of the Royal Family will fly in separate planes to Resolute—Philip and Charles on one, the Queen and Anne on the other—with father and son making a side flight to an oil site in the Arctic islands.

They will reunite later in the day at Inuvik, a Mackenzie Delta administrative centre which, with a population exceeding 3,000, is the largest Canadian community north of the Arctic Circle.

An army spokesman said no formal complaint had been made against the troops. He said anyone wishing to press charges should get in touch with authorities.

Damage to homes in the area was shown on the television network of the Irish Republic to the south. It included broken religious statues and ravaged rooms.

The Roman Catholic community here, a minority in Protestant-dominated Ulster, looks largely to reunification with the independent and predominantly Catholic republic to the south as its main political hope for the future.

Once again the friction between the rival religious communities here set the stage for the weekend violence. But unlike last week, no Protestants were directly involved this time.

Troops seeking to root out the troublemakers found a cache of arms in the Catholic Falls Road area. The discovery led to clashes between troops and suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, including gunfire exchanges.

THE WEATHER

The weather office at Victoria International Airport said today a ridge of high pressure is giving mainly sunny weather, but bands of cloud will appear from the first in a series of Pacific storms moving onto the north coast. Temperatures are expected to reach an overnight low of 52 and a high Tuesday of 70.

Winds will be southwesterly 15, occasionally 20 around the city. A small craft warning is in effect for Juan de Fuca Strait, as winds are expected to be westerly 25 m.p.h.

Sunday's temperature was 71.

B.C. Falling Behind in National Affluence Race

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — British Columbia may not be heading for the poor house yet but it has lost momentum and rank in the Canadian race to affluence while both Manitoba and Alberta have improved their standings appreciably.

These are some of the facts that emerge from the annual Green Book derby results posted by the department of revenue as a volume entitled Taxation Statistics.

The average income in British Columbia reached $6,030 18 months ago but it will have to try harder to regain No. 1 spot it held in 1965 with an average of $5,206.

Because Ontario has moved up from second place to take over the top of $6,037 average income.

However, both provinces still are the only ones higher than the national average income — $5,765 at latest count — as they were when it was $4,947 in 1965.

Alberta passed Quebec to occupy third rank, in this year's report, with an average income of $5,683 compared with $4,833 in the Green Book issued three years ago.

Manitoba moved up a notch too, slipping past Saskatchewan into fifth spot with an average income of $5,298 in the latest report and $4,582 in the comparison report.

All news reports duly noted that Oakville led the 100 selected cities across Canada this time, with an average income of $7,301 reported to the tax office in the 1968 returns.

Cities Slip

In British Columbia:

Vancouver slipped badly from 10th place to 14th with an average income of $6,245 ($5,354);

But Victoria did even worse, dropping from 26th to 39th spot with $5,721 ($5,032);

Adding to the hurt, nearby Nanaimo bucked the B.C. trend and improved its relative position by seven notches to become the 13th in national rank with an average income of $6,247 ($5,090);

While mid-province Prince George continued its boom to step up from 11th to 8th position with $6,496 ($5,351) as another rarity in B.C.

In Alberta, there was a greater mixture of plus and minus:

Calgary held its own, staying in 18th spot with an average income of $6,111 ($5,150);

And Edmonton did even better, moving up from 37th to 31st spot with $5,876 ($4,933);

While Medicine Hat and Red Deer both lost considerable ground — respectively, from 65th to 68th position with $5,331 ($4,572) and from 62nd to 68th with $5,371 ($4,583).

Manitoba Sunny

Winnipeg slid from 49th ranking down to 58 with $5,589 ($4,762);

Brandon fell back from 70 to 79th with $5,285 ($4,507) and Portage La Prairie plunged from 88th to the list's last spot as No. 100 with $4,942 ($4,240).

Dry as dust the thousands of figures in the Green Book may be, but some of them shed interesting light on the individual quirks that give cities a distinctive flavor setting them apart from one another.

Divorce Gravy

Its 146,386 1968 taxpayers reported more than $1.3 million income from alimony cheques, and claimed a total of $2 million alimony payments as deductions — indicating there are a lot of women elsewhere who still have a pecuniary interest in the oil capital's buckaroos.

Edmonton, with almost 19 per cent more taxpayers, reported alimony income barely over $1 million and alimony deductions of $1.3 million.

And Lethbridge, with about one-twelth the number of Calgary's taxpayers, reported just over $100,000 in alimony income and only $46,000 in alimony deductions, giving it the title for married bliss.

In case you're interested further, Winnipeg's 214,341 taxpayers reported a relatively modest alimony income totalling just over $1 million and deducted $1.3 million for alimony payments.

. . . but Victoria?

Vancouver was near average too with its 335,285 government supporters reporting alimony income of about $3.2 million and deducting $4.3 million for alimony payments.

But, dear, dear — who'd ever have thought staid old Victoria was a haunt of divorcees as well as pensioners?

Yet its 74,949 taxpayers admitted to receiving a total income of $721,000 from alimony orders — proportionately the same rate as high-stepping Calgary — and claimed no less than $734,000 in alimony deductions.

But when it comes to retirement income, there is no contest. Victorians reported $31.2 million in private and government pension receipts compared with Calgary's $18.4 million.

For comparison, pensions meant $61 million to the economy of Vancouver, $2.2 million to Lethbridge, $18.2 million to Edmonton and $36.3 million to Winnipeg.

Other Aspects

Other aspects that emerge from the figures:

The professions are bigger than businessmen in Edmonton but the reverse is true in Lethbridge and Victoria. The professional incomes, with business incomes in brackets, reported by the various cities were: Edmonton $33.4 million ($26.6 million); Vancouver $65 million ($58 million); Calgary $28.4 million ($25.7 million); Winnipeg $29.8 million each; Victoria $13 million ($14.4 million) and Lethbridge $3.6 million ($4 million.)

But Calgary leads by a country mile in jumping where angels fear to tread — its deductions for business losses totalled $433,000, compared with $327,000 for Edmonton, $327,000 for Vancouver and $92,000 for Victoria.

Lethbridge also has a disproportionate share of rash would-be-entrepreneurs, reporting an unhealthy $176.000 in business losses while Winnipeg's winds must have developed hardeh heads over the years because it reported a relatively minor $188,000 in losses.

Vancouverites have the greatest predilection for playing the market, earning $50.3 million in stock dividends compared with $65.2 million derived from bond and bank interest.

Calgary, Winnipeg and Victoria's investors all showed less favor for risk by reporting approximately $2 from dividend income for every $3 earned from bond interest. But Edmonton and Lethbridge played it safest of all, reporting $1 from shares for abuot $2 from bonds.

Charity's Home

Which is the kindest city?

Lethbridge easily takes the honor on the basis of its $920,000 deducted by 16,000 taxpayers for charitable donations.

At the same ratio, the other cities should have given the following sums, with the actual donations reported in brackets:

Winnipeg $13 million ($9.7 million); Calgary $9 million ($6 million); Edmonton $11 million ($6.4 million); Vancouver $21 million ($11.2 million); and, bringing up the rear, Victoria $5 million (2.4 million).

Lennon, Jackie Labelled 'Bores'

In an article headlined "Doing Their Tiresome Things," the magazine describes a bore as "someone whose presence or persistence creates in others a galloping sense of ennui, an urge to hide in the closet, a yearning to down another martini."

Describing Mrs. Onassis as a "colossal bore," Time questioned: "Jackie with hemline up. Jackie with hemline down. Jackie and Ari at Maxims. Jackie shopping on the Via Greogriana, the Rud du Faubourg St. Honore, Madison Avenue. What could be more tiresome?"

John and Yoko Lennon were described as having "collaborated in making over the No. 1 Beatle from a witty and lighthearted songwriter into a salvation dispensing preacher for peace and pornography."

Other personalities and institutions included in the list were Richard and Elizabeth Burton, Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner, the Oscar Awards, Barbra Streisand, beauty contests and Girl Scouts "selling stale cookies."

Pope Paul was described as one who, "as some Italians have it 'kills one bird with two stones'."

Time said that Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew was far from tiresome but warned that he was a "protobore."

The Irish Act Their Rage

THE TRAGEDY OF NORTHERN Ireland, and of Belfast in particular, is one that shocks the world. While the basic problem is rooted in the injustice of a Protestant majority which traditionally has deprived the Catholic minority of political and economic rights, the struggle is so heavily overlaid with religious prejudice and historic hatreds that the savagery of the fighting far exceeds the usual passions of internecine political warfare.

When to this sorry confrontation is added the neutral factor of English troops sent in to try to separate the combatants and restore peace, the confusion becomes complete. A further tragedy is that, the Irish temperament being what it is, every killed and wounded citizen will be remembered and established as a legitimate cause for future fighting. Each incident becomes the seed of further violence, each injured participant a martyr whose honor demands future retaliation.

The recent legislation which set out reforms in the economic and voting rights of Catholics in Northern Ireland has not been properly implemented. There is still a great grievance among the minority population. But the Protestant fear of Catholic strength at the polls and a possible move some day to unite Ulster with the Catholic republic to the south is a live one and enough to send crowds into the streets at the first threat of danger to the status quo. The rabid fulminations of the Rev. Ian Paisley add further gasoline to the fire. This very able speaker and reckless demogogue has much to answer for in the toll of death, injury and damage that has been augmented by his fiery denunciations and inculcation of fears.

With hysteria and ingrained hatreds holding so prominent a place in the background of Northern Ireland's sad drama, the unfortunate truth is that there is little prospect of peace in the near future, or perhaps even in the distant. The new generation is being graphically taught to inherit the mistakes of the old, and a permanent separation of the combatants, imposed by outsiders, seems to promise the only relief.

In such a situation, leadership could be the key to a solution. But political leadership in Northern Ireland is so often won on the basis of appeal to prejudices and fears, that voices of moderation and logic are not easily heard. True democracy has little hope of success in such an environment. It may be the fate of the Northern Irish to lose some of their freedom in order to save it.

As Prime Minister Heath said on Saturday: "In the end it is for the people of Ulster to decide whether they want to listen to the voices of ancient fears and the old-established hatreds, whether they want to listen to those who preach violence and destruction . . . or whether they will have the will to live together and work together with hope and peace." That is the choice, but history gives a pessimistic undertone to the answer.

A Gloomy Economic Prediction

ECONOMISTS HAVE BECOME the post-industrial soothsayers in the intricate complex that forms the world of economics. In a recently completed study Canadian-born economist Harry Johnson speculates that Britain's entry into the Common Market would result in more United States investment in Europe at the expense of Canada, which would then be forced into free trade with the United States to attract capital.

Professor Johnson also feels that British Common Market membership will cause Canada and the United States to suffer sharp losses in their agricultural export markets. And with Britain integrated with Europe, Canada "would probably terminate Commonwealth preferences." While Professor Johnson is an internationally famous economist and has written extensively on Canadian economic matters, he may have neglected non-economic factors and some new government initiatives.

Many Canadians are reaching the point where they feel that more large-scale United States investment in Canada will further erode our national sovereignty. If Britain does enter the Common Market the United States may set up more manufacturing operations in Europe to escape Common Market tariff walls. But Canada's store of natural resources almost ensures that the United States will continue to knock on Canadian investment doors.

Professor Johnson is probably right that our agricultural export market to Europe would suffer if the Six merged Britain into their agricultural operations. But the Asian market, with great potential, is slowly opening up, and the Trudeau government is working to develop it. As to terminating Commonwealth preferences, it is difficult to see why Canada, seeking a greater share of world trade, would terminate preferences with such Commonwealth nations as New Zealand, Australia and Malayasia.

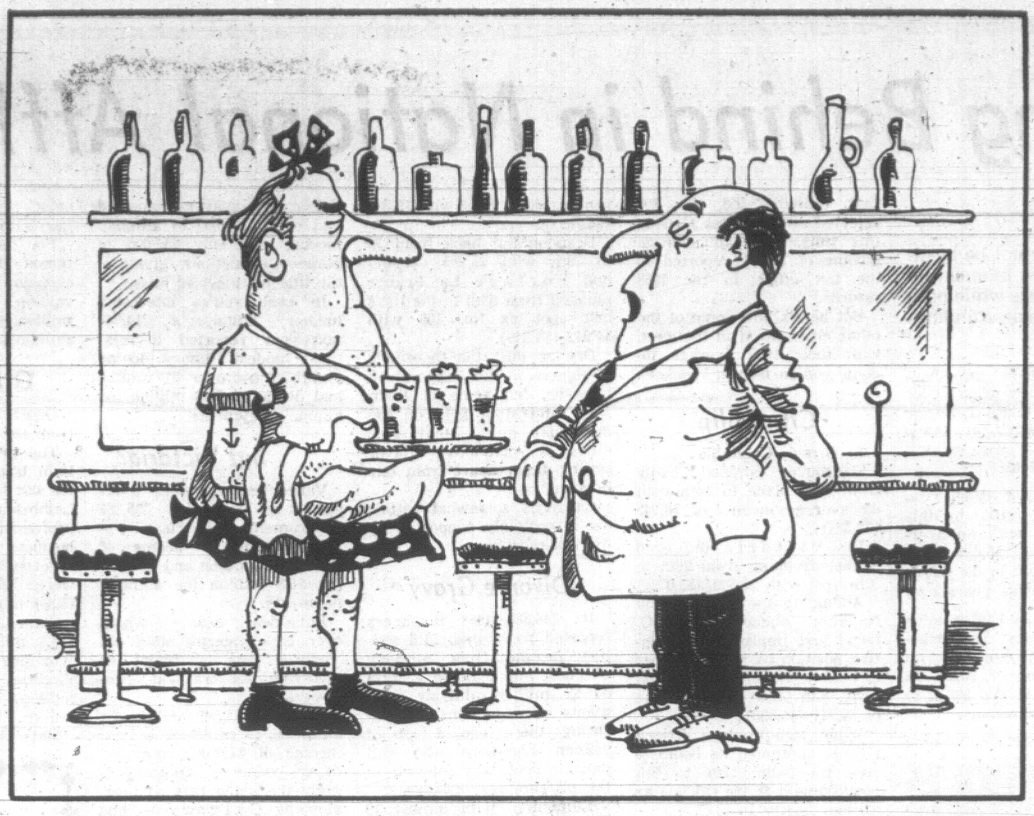
Prime Minister Trudeau's recent journey around the Pacific rim shows that the present government, at least, is not going to be forced into any economic corners like those envisioned by Professor Johnson.

Dubious Conservative Foreign Policy

BRITAIN'S NEW CONSERVATIVE government had hardly sworn in a cabinet when it opened some old wounds that could result in a hemorrhage. Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government had suspended the 1955 Simonstown Defence pact between Britain and South Africa which provided South Africa with armaments to protect South Atlantic sea lanes.

Now Conservative Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home has announced that the Heath government will honor the agreement. News reports that Sir Douglas-Home's South African counterpart flew to London the day after the British election makes any resumption of arms sales to South Africa look pre-ordained. On Tuesday the South African foreign minister met with Sir Douglas-Home to discuss the arms issue and other aspects of relations between the two countries.

Given the Heath government's position and the swift flight of the South African minister to London, it appears that the Conservatives, in the event of victory, had no intention of currying favor among the black African nations — a reversal of the Wilson government's policy. This new initiative on the part of the British government could also have repercussions among Commonwealth members and reduce Britain's moral force in the United Nations, which has condemned South African policies. At any rate, talk of selling arms to South Africa is an inauspicious beginning for Britain's new foreign policy.



". . . I appreciate your effort, Jackson, but I'm still thinking of replacing you with a barmaid . . ."

Fashioning a Muzzle for the Watchdog?

ON its face the latest report of the public accounts committee, which submits recommendations to Parliament for a new Auditor-General of Canada Act, is a face-saving compromise. The intent, presumably, is to concede enough satisfaction to both sides in the recent controversy to preserve the committee as a workable instrument. Shortly after publication of the 1969 report, several ministers, notably Mr. Drury and Mr. Macdonald, offered a number of controversial observations which were widely interpreted as serious criticisms of the auditor-general. As reinterpreted, following some angry exchanges in Parliament, they were not — in the ministerial explanation — directed to Mr. Henderson; were in no sense intended as threats and indeed had to do only with potential dangers.

Western

Nevertheless, they created a good deal of bitterness in the committee which had to consider a number of politically-sensitive matters such as duty rebates to the automobile manufacturers and unproductive expenditures on the Bonaventure.

Some of the recommendations in the fifth report are excellent, some dubious. The question is: Does this feat of political balancing in fact serve the public interest?

Recommendations

The committee favors a separate act, endorses the present method of appointing the auditor-general, advocates no change in his tenure of office and finds the delineation of his duties in present legislation satisfactory. It would not alter his present obligation to report to Parliament. It would make his salary commensurate with that of a federal court judge and (an important point) require the government to move reference of his report to the public accounts committee immediately on tabling in the House.

All this is excellent. But there are serious omissions. Nothing in the report would assist the auditor-general in the problem of staffing to which he has repeatedly called attention. (Despite the vast expansion of government over the past decade, Mr. Henderson has been unable to secure even half the staff required in the Australian federation). In fact the present situation would, in some of its aspects, be frozen if the report became the basis of legislation.

Thus the committee recommends "that the staff of the auditor-general's office remain under the Public Service Act with the instrument of delegation of authority." Also, the auditor should continue to have his estimates reviewed by the treasury board in the same manner as all other departments and agencies. But it has been the burden of testimony before the committee that, even when the estimates permitted increases, the public service commission has been unable to obtain personnel with the qualifications required; it has been notably unsuccessful in recruiting within the universities.

Not Helpful

At best, therefore, these proposals can scarcely be described as either sympathetic or helpful.

But other recommendations, despite a certain appearance of innocence, might serve in fact to clip the wings of the auditor-general. His duties, as now spelt out, are satisfactory but the committee proposes, in rather subtle ways, to change them.

Mr. Henderson is now required by Section 70 of the Financial Administration Act to include in his report "any other case that the auditor-general considers should be brought to the notice of the House of Commons." This is now to be "related to the general duties of the auditor-general as outlined in the Financial Administration Act (S.67)."

It so happens that this is a considerably more restrictive clause.

Then there is proposal 16.

This says that the auditor-general "when observing on any matter should include a reference to the act which requires him to comment." If this is not intended to be restrictive, what is its purpose?

The touchiness of government is doubtless reflected in Recommendation 10. "Each department of government should be permitted to make a corresponding comment on each observation in the auditor-general's report to follow immediately upon the auditor-general's observations."

(Will the same privilege be extended to combines in the coming legislation?)

Longer Reports

Over the years reports have been getting progressively longer; indeed, Mr. Henderson had to divide his latest report in order to get Volume One out by the appointed date. They will doubtless be larger if a running commentary by departments has to be included. But what happens if a department simply fails to have a defence ready in good time? Will Mr. Henderson be barred from reporting his observations to Parliament on that particular case?

The auditor-general reports; the committee on public accounts investigates but is able, in practice, to take up only a selection of the doubtful practices reported. Such matters are, of course, politically embarrassing for any government and for its supporters. If every adverse comment is to be countered on publication with an ingenious departmental defence, it may be much easier than it is at present for government members to steer th committee into relatively innocuous inquiries.

It is basic that the auditor-general is the servant of Parliament, not of the government. Mr. Drury was much concerned some time ago over "a danger that Parliament directly or through one of its committees should instruct the auditor-general to undertake the role in which he would be cast, either by the public or by others as critic of government policy and consequently the government."

The horror of it. But see what is now proposed.

The auditor-general shall, whenever the governor-in-council or the treasury board directs, inquire into and report on any matter relating to the financial affairs of Canada or to public property and on any person or organization that has received financial aid from the government of Canada or in respect of which financial aid from the Government of Canada is sought, or undertake any other duty as directed by the president of the treasury board.

Certainly that should keep him busy; too busy perhaps, with his present staff, to do his job for Parliament. On whose instruction is he to do this? Not the instruction of Parliament or of one of its committees, which — in Mr Drury's view — would be deplorable. But on the "direction" of the government or simply of Mr. Drury.

No Case but Change

Despite a certain amount of camouflage, these changes are important. What is the case for them? Mr. Drury has had more to say than anyone else about the auditor-general. But he has not shown that the office has been abused; that the auditor-general has gone beyond his proper powers; or (as the president of the treasury board conceded in Parliament) that there has been any invasion of the policy field. So there is no case but changes are proposed anyway. It is understandable that this may suit the convenience of government; improbable that it would serve the public interest.

Looking Back

From the Times of July 6, 1910.

At irregular intervals the attention of Dominion ministers of the Crown is directed to the alleged moral claim of the province to three and one half million acres of public land in the Peace River country, and an appeal is made that this land be transferred from federal to provincial jurisdiction. If public interest were the sole object to be served it would be vastly better for the Dominion to retain the Peace River lands.

'Cool Men in Hot Seats'

By Dave Humphreys
from London

PRIME Minister Heath's first days in office have been a rare national experience. The phenomenon of change of government comes only once in a long while: the comings and goings in Whitehall, the speculation about the new government's intentions, the first signs of its character, the post-mortems of the losing party. These, the elements of change of government, give rise to an air of expectancy, accompanied by some apprehension and exhilaration.

Humphreys

Twice, including the election of 1945, the United Kingdom electorate has made the switch from a fundamentally free enterprise party and back to a fundamentally socialist party — four thorough house cleanings.

Not until 1972, nearly a decade after the last Conservative government of John Diefenbaker, are Canadians likely even to have an occasion to change the ruling party. And no change of party, except perhaps a federal NDP government, is likely to offer Canadians such a sweeping change in national direction as the Conservatives are now offering to Britain.

No wonder the country has paused for breath while the new administration settles into office, as if resting before a long hard race. Ahead lie, in part, a systematic rationalization of government departments, a new pension scheme, a new education philosophy, commercial radio competing with state-owned BBC, new defence commitments, the scrapping of some state agencies, less state intervention in industry, a simplified taxation system, lower taxes, legislation dealing with labor relations.

Honeymoon Waning

Already, with completion of the Heath administration, first reaction from the interests most directly affected and the defeated parties, has demonstrated the fragile surface of government popularity. The honeymoon is beginning to end.

But one clear impression the country must take from its period of adjustment is that while men may come and go, the problems remain. Neither the threat of a national dock strike nor the warnings from the unions have ceased with the election. Inflation and the cost of living continue to inflate and the records reportedly confirm the new prime minister's gloomy forecasts about economic difficulties.

In these circumstances, it must be heartening both to the new ministers and the country, that they begin life together with goodwill and optimism. Mr. Heath's cabinet appointments have been favorably received. The spirit of the day was captured in the pictures of Sir Alex Douglas-Home, strolling, quietly but purposefully through St. James' Park to the foreign office again. That, it seemed, was where he belonged.

But no sooner was he there than he was in "the hot seat." The press reported that he was about to resume sale of arms for defence purposes to South Africa, ending the Labor embargo. There were warnings about that and predictions of more warnings, including one from Canada, a co-sponsor of the 1963 United Nations resolution banning the sale of all arms to South Africa.

The government initially at least was following the pattern set out by Mr. Heath before the election when he said he wanted a fresh approach to the taking of decisions.

Similarly, Robert Carr responded to the expected union resolution to oppose legislation interfering in collective bargaining, one of the Tories' first priorities. Name the day, and we will talk, he said. Mr. Carr was thus classified as a cool man in a hot seat.

Christopher Chataway, the amateur "four-minute miler" and former broadcaster, was appointed minister of posts and telecommunications. Overnight he became the man in the hot seat from which he would have to introduce commercial radio.

Ports Problem

The Times interviewed John Peyton, the new transport minister. He declared his main problems to be the ports, the railways, the environment and "accommodating an ever larger number of motor vehicles." The Times thereupon decided that he, too, had a hot seat. In fact the entire Heath cabinet may consist of cool men in hot seats.

Mr. Heath has established fewer seats to be hot. His administration stands at 84, ministers, junior ministers and parliamentary secretaries, compared with 101 in the former Wilson administration. In the process of cabinet building alone he saved more than $200,000 in salaries and a further sum in administration costs.

He also honored a Conservative manifesto promise: "There has been too much government: there will be less. We will reduce the number of ministers. We will reduce the number of civil servants." There are 18 ministers in Mr. Heath's cabinet instead of 21 in the Wilson cabinet.

In the defence department there is a sign of the Heath reorganization taking place. There will be only one deputy to the chief minister, Lord Carrington, instead of two under Labor. But Mr. Heath has appointed three junior ministers, one in charge of each of the three services, ensuring each a strong voice.

These changes are only the beginning but the beginning must lead the country to expect that the Heath government will offer a new style to meet old problems and new.

Men Who Run the War Should Share Consequences

By ALAN BARTH

There is an anguishing dilemma in the decision of a court martial last week that a 21-year-old Marine private was guilty of the premeditated murder of nine Vietnamese children and three women in February. The young man was sentenced to life imprisonment.

According to the government, the Marine was a member of a "killer team" which shot down the unarmed women and children as they huddled together in the village of Sonthang crying and screaming. "This was not war," the prosecutor told the court martial, "this was murder."

In his defence, the Marine said he believed his squad was under attack by the Viet Cong when he fired, that he acted under orders and in self defence, and he added, after the verdict: "I had no intention of killing anyone. People got in the way when I fired. It was unavoidable. I'm sorry."

Testimony at the trial indicated that the team leader (who is to be tried also) ordered his men to shoot the women and children. But the military judge ruled that a marine is a "reasoning agent" who must "exercise judgment in obeying orders."

This recognition of individual responsibility is traditionally American. The killing was inexcusably atrocious and deserving of severe punishment. And few Americans would wish to have their country's reputation among the nations of the world stained by any seeming condonation of such barbarous conduct.

Nevertheless, there are considerations which dictate a degree of sympathy for this unhappy youth condemned at the very beginning of his manhood to spend the rest of his life in confinement.

He was sent, in uniform, to engage an enemy whose troops are indistinguishable from civilians, whose women and children sometimes participate in setting mines and traps and ambushes for American fighting men, and an enemy, moreover, capable of terrible cruelty and known to employ terror as a tactic of war. Perhaps he had seen his own companions die because they delayed a moment for inquiry instead of shooting first.

And undoubtedly he had seen how carelessly and indiscriminately death is distributed among soldiers and civilians, some enemies, some friends, by the bombing and napalming of Vietnamese villages. He was not in a situation where life is highly regarded.

And 21, one must acknowledge, is not an age at which young men always reach ripeness of judgment. Some are still callow and unstable and subject to emotional outbursts. They cannot be released from responsibility on this account, of course. But it may be that the fact deserves consideration. That some will break under stress and go berserk seems absolutely predictable.

Finally, moreover, there is a fact that simply cannot be left out of consideration — the fact that the peculiar character of the Vietnam war was not entirely of this young man's choosing. He was sent there and told by men older and wiser than himself to kill. Since the men who sent him there and told him this are representatives of all of us, the idea suggests itself pretty inescapably that we all bear some measure of responsibility for his terrible crime.

Primitive peoples of ancient times had an ingenious method, perhaps as efficacious as any other mode of punishment, for dealing with cases of collective guilt. They chose a scapegoat — an animal or person on whose head the sinse of the people were symbolically heaped and who was then sacrificed or driven into the wilderness in a ceremony symbolic of dispelling the evils. It did not work out too badly, except from the narrow point of view of the scapegoats. Often, the gods appeared to be propitiated by it.

In a certain sense, the unfortunate Marine private convicted in Vietnam serves as a scapegoat for other Americans in Vietnam who may have killed women and children but who were not observed or accused. One fears, at any rate, that he and the others in his particular group at Sonthang, and the GIs charged with indiscriminate killing at Mylai, were not alone in their violation of the rules of war. And one cannot escape a feeling that an example is being made of these culprits for the sake of cleansing the nation's name and to expiate a collective shame.

This is not to say that scapegoating is a bad practice; it has manifest uses. It is simply to say that the method of selecting the scapegoat may seem inequitable and inadequate for purposes of propitiation. If it is true that those who sent the young Marine into the situation where he behaved so brutally share his guilt, an additional scapegoat might properly be selected from among them.

This could be done in a very fair and evenhanded way by, say, putting into a large drum capsules containing 365 dates and into another drum slips numbered 1 through 365.

As soon as a birthdate is drawn from the other to set an order of call for all members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, and, perhaps, if the need proved great enough, all members of the executive departments and agencies at, say, the assistant secretary, chief of bureau and chief of division levels.

This sort of selective scapegoat service would operate in an economical way to distribute the burden of expiation more justly. It surely cannot be accounted unreasonable to ask the men who contrive the combats to share in the consequences — the predictable consequences — of their decisions.

It is quite true, as the court martial declared, that a Marine is a "reasoning agent" who must "exercise judgment in obeying orders." But it is hardly less true that a government representing a free people is a "reasoning agent" too — and one that must exercise judgment in issuing orders.

Peru Indian Awakening To Heritage and Power

By H. J. MAIDENBERG

LIMA, Peru — In the bleak, cold Andean highlands of northern Peru, many Indians are still hiding their injured and orphaned, according to missionaries, a month after the devastating earthquake there.

Some of the Indians are being hidden because of traditional fear and distrust of Spanish-speaking people, others because of the unusually strong family ties that have helped the Peruvian Indian survive more than four centuries of European domination.

The missionaries, who have been working with relief teams and who were interviewed here, also report that many of the survivors are suffering from a lack of the alcohol and narcotics long used to deaden hunger, cold and pain.

Distrust Outsiders

Roman Catholic and Protestant missionaries active in the region doubt that broadcasts of government guarantees of protection for orphans will influence the Indians to allow medical and other aid workers to assist them.

Their distrust of outsiders is based in part on the fact that it is still common here to obtain Indian children in rural areas by ruse and to raise them as servants. Only in recent years, indeed, has the practice of using Indians as beasts of burden been dying out on some plantations.

The Indian is considered to be less than human by many people of European stock, who have thus justified their exploitation. The Indian himself, descended of a once-mighty race, is often ashamed.

However, thanks to the transistor radio and to slight but profound improvements in medical services and roads, the Peruvian Indian is quietly but rapidly taking a bigger role in his land by the power of sheer numbers.

Today Indians make up more than half the population of 13.5 million. Their growing numbers worry the military government just as it does the small middle and upper classes. But the Indians are still rarely mentioned by the tiny Peruvian elite when sober.

"Look," an upper-class Peruvian said after three double pisco sours here recently. "Less than 20 years ago one could sit in Plaza San Martin and have a drink in the evening and not see one dark face. You could walk around downtown Lima and not see any of the scum of either sex perform natural functions in the street. Lima was an elegant and lovely city. Today the animals have taken everything over."

Those sentiments are well known to the Indian, although he is rarely insulted to his face. As literacy slowly envelops him, he is beginning to understand his heritage, heretofore only hinted at by the legends, the ruins and, lately, the radio programs produced by missionaries and the revolutionary military regime which took power in 1968.

Most Indians are now aware of the Inca Empire, the most advanced of its time, which was destroyed by the Spanish conquistadores in the 15th century. The Incas spread their culture and language, Quechua, from what is now northern Argentina to Colombia, though even they, like the Spaniards, could not erase all the Indian languages of the conquered cultures.

Speak Own Tongues

While most Indians understand or speak Quechua, some 2 million use Aymara and numerous Amazonian groups have their own tongues.

All told, the Andean Indians are estimated to number 15 million. About four-fifths of the 5.5 million Bolivians are Indian in culture. Ecuador has more than 4 million highland Indians in a population of nearly 6 million.

When the relatively small European minority does think and speak about the Andean Indians, they tend to divide them into three classes.

First, there are the Indios, who cling to traditional ways and often do not speak Spanish or pretend not to in order to avoid dealing with outsiders. They are mostly rural, although many of the younger children move to town. Those left behind work in a hostile and lonely mountainous land, leading a life relieved only by weekends and holidays, when whole settlements can be seen drunk to the point of stupor on chicha, a highly alcoholic beer made from corn.

Chew Coca Leaves

Many Indios constantly chew coca leaves to obtain a small but steady amount of cocaine. The narcotiv deadens feelings and gives them the dull look that outsiders often believe to be indication of mental retardation.

The government, which officially holds a monopoly on the production, processing and sale of coca leaves, legally forbids cocaine.

Less brutalized than the Indios are the second largest group, the Cholos, usually full-blooded Indians who have "cut the pigtail" and adopted or tried to assume European ways. Many are rural shopkeepers or functionaries and are generally despised by all the others.

The third major class are the Mestizos, who have some European blood. Many of the new middle class fall into that category, and social acceptance usually depends on the degree of European blood as well as educational or economic status.

Many a middle-class Mestizo is particularly harsh toward other Indians in an effort to try to forget his origins. Children are urged to marry "lighter."

Nevertheless, many young Mestizos have taken to studying Quechua and make it a point to learn of their Indian past.

Their life is harsh

The arrival of large numbers of United States and other foreign investors after the Second World War paved the way for the new middle class of managers and technicians from among the Mestizos. The investors, in the words of one North American executive here, found a "society that had institutionalized ignorance and worshipped a culture that never existed in Spain or anywhere else outside their imagination."

Servants Cheap

But life was good for both foreigner and upper-class Peruvian for many years. Government officials were compliant, taxes low and servants cheap and plentiful.

That way of life began to change in the leftist-inspired Indian land invasions of 1964-65 in the southern highlands. As usual, troops were dispatched to drive out the Indians and punish them.

While performing their task, the military became aware of several factors that were to change their orientation. The 40,000-man army, they learned, was a tenth of the population increase each year. They also discovered that well-organized Indian groups were moving toward the cities in vast numbers and would be more difficult to control than those in isolated regions.

Lima, which had a population of 2 million in 1960, is estimated to have 3 million today. The rate of increase is put at 5 per cent a year, or 150,000 people.

The military was also impressed by urban violence in the United States, which they related to their cities. Rather than risk similar outbreaks here and in other large cities, the military decided to develop what they proclaim as "a new path between capitalism and communism."

Thus far they have broken the hold of the two dozen or so families that formerly controlled social and economic life. Some foreign companies have been seized or restricted. All large agricultural operations have been taken over and converted into co-operatives.

Because the military government promises to further its revolution down from the top toward the Indian masses, many middle-class and upper-class people believe that their way of life is doomed. A steady stream is leaving, further Indianizing society.

WE'RE SLAVES TO THE CLOCK

By ALAN BRIEN
London Sunday Times

If I thought that ever again, in this age of giant political machines where parties clash like dinosaurs, there could be a chance for an independent MP I should be tempted to stand for Parliament on a single platform — an end to the tyranny of the time-table.

Why should life, our most precious asset, be marked off like a measuring tape into hours when we are permitted to eat and to drink, to sleep and to work — rush hours, opening hours, shopping hours, visiting hours?

We have all become so conditioned to being sucked out of our beds in the morning, poured into trains and buses, penned in factories and offices, then washed back home again, like driftwood on the great tide of social custom, that we forget how unnatural this routine is.

Babies, like animals, feed and doze and play in short bursts all round the clock. We have to teach them our bad habits.

Since the invention of electric light, we are no longer the slaves of the sun. We do not need daylight to do our jobs — millions of workers never see it from the moment they clock in to the moment they knock off. Yet this is the time, especially in summer, when we should all be outside in the parks, on the river, by the sea, in open-air cafes, perhaps just eddying around the streets.

Other nations see nothing odd or improper about shopping at midnight, a siesta at noon, a glass of brandy at dawn.

To be fair to all, perhaps we should operate in shifts. It would also make sense economically, if offices and pubs and theatres and trains could be used 24 hours a day. But work is a four-letter word for something best done in the dark.

The politican who could free us to act on impulse, enjoy our whims, live for the passing minute, would do more to open up British society than any proposal in any of the election manifestoes.

Are 'Good Guys' Going to Lose?

By ANTHONY LEWIS

LONDON — A young man writes from America. In his last year at a college in the Middle West he did some part-time teaching. He had an experience that he still cannot altogether understand, that he cannot forget.

It was a junior high school in a small factory town, one of those towns that draws families up from Appalachia in search of work. The students were mostly white, many of them with brothers or cousins in Vietnam. They had been raised on a steady diet of evangelical anti-Communism.

"I followed the principal's advice and kept my own opinions to myself," the young man says. "But out of curiosity I decided to ask the kids to tell me which side, Communist or American, would eventually win the cold war. Just to be sure, I asked them first how they saw the cold war; and all but one agreed that two monoliths were battling, and that we were right and the opposition wrong and evil.

* * *

"Then we voted. 'How many think the Americans will win?' I asked. Out of 30, three raised their hands. 'How many Communism?' About 20. The rest abstained.

"Thirty American kids, and 20 think the Communists will win the cold war, even the ones out of the patriotic bedrock of West Virginia.

"For a minute I thought they were putting me on. But from their faces I could tell that they meant it. Privately, this was what they really believed — flag, patriotism and duty to their country notwithstanding. In my other class we had a discussion before the vote, but in the end the pattern was the same.

"It is an odd thing to stand in front of a classroom filled with students who take on faith the correctness of America's anti-Communist crusade but do not believe the most critical part of the myth — the part where the good guys win in the end."

* * *

Why? The young man is still trying to puzzle out the attitude of those students. Part of it, he thinks, may be that zealous anti-Communism paints the enemy as so dedicated, so ingenious and so ruthless that he seems bound to win. But he feels there must be more; there must be something on the American side of the equation that saps patriotism of its real belief.

It just could be the hypocrisy that Americans have had in such large doses from their leaders in recent years. For we have not been a cynical people, a hard-shelled people. We have been idealists, and so the corruption of truth and ideals has hurt.

* * *

We had one President who called his election opponent reckless for suggesting American bombing of North Vietnam — and then, after the election, sent in the bombers and 500,000 American troops. And he did it all surreptitiously, without ever facing his people and taking them into his confidence about the moral or political choices. He made guile a principle of government, doing damage to the reputation of the American Presidency from which it will have difficulty recovering.

Then we had a President who said, rightly, that it was time to lower our voices. But after a period of wise modesty he raised his own in the shrill old cries against "humiliation" in Indochina and "bums" at home.

For those who wonder about the sapping of belief, there is the specific example of Cambodia. Report after report from Washington tells us a great victory has been won by the American operation, and our way out of Indochina eased. But a school child reading the stories from Cambodia would know that the whole country is now subject to enemy activity, and the outlook is for more war, not less.

When the Cambodian operation began, there was an extraordinarily revealing poll of American opinion. A patriotic majority supported the President. But only 12 per cent believed his promise that all American troops would be withdrawn by June 30.

* * *

Most of the troops have come out; political repercussions at home have left no alternative. But the war will almost surely go on expanding, with South Vietnamese troops, and Thais, and American planes and boats and guns and munitions sucked into an endless new theatre.

And the destruction of Indochina will go on until, some day, some President faces the truth that we cannot impose our order in Southeast Asia.

"It still haunts me," the young man writes, "to see those kids' faces and to think how our sense of national purpose, which for so long gave us courage and confidence and a will to do good, has been left so rootless and so hollow."

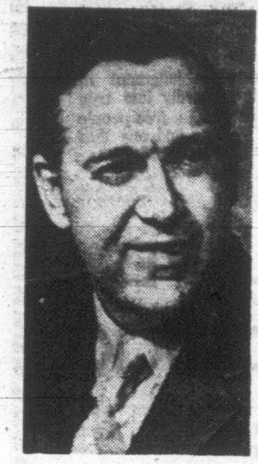
Veteran NDP-CCF Man Elected To Head Saskatchewan Party

By JIM NEAVES

REGINA (CP) — Allan Blakeney emerged as leader of the Saskatchewan New Democratic Party Saturday after a three-day party convention filled with strife and tension.

The 44-year-old lawyer and deputy leader of the party since 1967 won on the third ballot in the four-way race after trailing Roy Romanow, 32-year-old MLA and Saskatoon lawyer, on the first two ballots.

Mr. Blakeney succeeds Woodrow Lloyd who led the provincial party for nine years, three of them as premier.



BLAKENEY

The tension was generated by the youth section within the party — many of them supporters of the so-called waffle group that urges a return to true socialism and which advocates acceptance of the manifesto unveiled last year at the party's national convention by Toronto economist Melville Watkins.

Mr. Blakeney, while admitting the party may move "more moderately leftward than it has in the past," said his leadership will see the party move on "substantially the same line in the past."

EMULATE SCHREYER

Both Mr. Blakeney and Mr. Romanow avoided outright acceptance of the waffle group and, urged a new style of social democracy — a term associated with NDP Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba.

The strength of the left-leaning group was surprising to most of the 850 delegates, including Don Mitchell, a 26-year-old political science teacher, who apparently received most of their support in the leadership race.

He was forced out of the contest on the second ballot after receiving 219 votes — almost one-quarter of the total cast.

Mr. Mitchell would not vote on the third ballot and almost 100 delegates joined hin in refusing to endorse either Mr. Blakeney or Mr. Romanow on the final vote.

But, after the final result, Mr. Blakeney said he was confident he could unite the party and overcome the tension.

The fourth leadership candidate was 54-year-old George Taylor, Saskatoon alderman and lawyer, who was eliminated after the first ballot.

Policies adopted during the convention indicated a moderate move further left but some of the efforts by young people to amend the party's constitution were unsuccessful.

They also were alienated when Bev Currie of Swift Current was defeated in his attempt to retain the presidency of the provincial party.

Mr. Currie was defeated by Gordon MacMurchy, the provincial organizaer.

Mr. Blakeney now faces another tough contest — a provincial general election.

Premier Ross Thatcher's Liberal government, in office since 1964, has a mandate until 1972 but some observers have forecast an earlier election.

"The earliest I would anticipate would be the early fall of 1970," Mr. Blakeney said.

TOUGH ON PRESS

Some of the tension and strife was evident early in the convention when delegates voted to exclude the press from panel discussion on policy. It marked the first time in five years these discussions had been closed. Some observers believed this move was taken because of strong representation from the radical waffle group.

At one point, two reporters were forcibly evicted when they tried to remain at a strategy meeting called by the waffle group during the convention.

Mr. Blakeney said dissention has always been part of the party's makeup.

"I think a youth section should be challenging to the senior party and their new ideas, for the most part, initially will be unattractive to the senior party," he said.

T. C. Douglas, national NDP leader and former Saskatchewan premier, said large numbers of young people have "suddenly" taken an interest in the party and this marked a revival of the party's drive of the past.

He said older party members don't have the same drive and the young people now are "hitting the line like we did in past years."

While Mr. Blakeney was pledged support from Mr. Romanow in his bid to rid the province of what they called "the enthroned arrogance" of the Liberal government, support from leadership candidate George Taylor, 54 a Saskatoon alderman and lawyer who was dropped after the first ballot, was a question mark.

Mr. Mitchell said he would support the victor.

Mr. Blakeney said he would urge Mr. Mitchell to seek a nomination in the next election and that Mr. Romanow was a cabinet possibility in any future NDP government.

Mr. Mitchell, in his nomination speech, threw out a challenge to the party which Mr. Blakeney said he felt he could meet.

DUNCAN-COWICHAN

(Duncan Office Ph. 746-6181)

RIDING INSTRUCTOR Sue Ashburner, 17, of Calgary, shows students from left, Lisa Roberts, 13, of Powell River, Margaret-Ann McLure, 12, of Victoria, and Barbara Belknas, 10, also of Victoria, how to "tub a foot." The pony had injured its foot and Miss Ashburner is soaking it in warm water. Demonstration is part of riding camp held at Queen Margaret's School at Duncan. (Donna Clements photo)

Girls Come for Week To Get Horse Sense

DUNCAN — Queen Margaret's School's summer horseback riding camp never has to advertise, it's always booked up by Easter.

Over 80 chillren are registered to attend weekly sessions during the one month they are offered.

They began at the end of June. Girls ranging from 10 to 16 years of age come from Ontario, California, Powell River, Port Alice and other areas of British Columbia. Only one student is registered this year from the Cowichan Valley.

The riding camp offers a complete horse-training program as well as a holiday for the girs.

"Each girl is given the care of one horse or pony," she said. "They are supplied with all of the equipment and are taught to brush and care for the pony."

Miss Burr, originally from England, has taught at Queen Margaret's School here for the past nine years. She began riding horses when she was 11 and has had years of experience caring for horses and teaching English riding.

"I trained in Ireland with the late Col. Joe Dudgeon, a well-known riding instructor" she said. "Since then I have taught riding at other independent schools and have worked with international show jumpers and travelled with them on the European circuit."

The school has offered riding facilities to their boarders for years but Miss Burr has enlarged upon the program considerably since her arrival

For the past three years the school has had an indoor riding arena, many stables, outside riding facilities and small cross-country jumps. of her own and several others of her own anl several others at her disposal for giving lessons.

To assist her with the summer camp she has three junior counsellors, a lady who cares for the running of the stables, a house mother and a cook.

"Some students bring their own horse for an extra $15 a week," said Miss Burr.

"In no way is the camp a dude ranch," she stressed. "We only take girls that are coming to learn to ride."

Every day the girls are given at least one and a half hours of English riding instructions. Lectures on the practical care of horses, stables and equipment, and sometimes an instructional film.

"We try to keep the instructions as interesting as we can," explained the chief riding instructress. "We try not to put on too much pressure because we want the girls to enjoy it as well as get quite a bit out of it."

During a week's session of the camp, the girls also enjoy daily swims and instructions in the school's outdoor filtered pool, an all-day trail ride, an afternoon beach picnic and other games such as tennis and badminton.

Emergency Water Let To North Cowichan

DUNCAN — Crofton Pulp and Paper Ltd. is daily supplying South End residents of North Cowichan with 200,000 gallons of water, free of charge, due to the dryup of their water supply.

Smith explained that several days ago he was advised by the municipal engineer "we are in trouble" because Duncan cut off an additional supply of water from its system.

He said the South End water reservoir at Skinner Road was almost empty and the city could not supply any more water because its third well has not yet started production.

"I don't blame the city for this," stressed Smith.

60 MILLION GALLONS

After a phone call to the pulp mill at Crofton and a meeting between company and municipal officials, the mill obtained per*mission from the Public Utilities* Commission to give the municipality 200,000 gallons of water a day for 90 days.

Smith said the mill has permission to pump 60 million gallons of water a day from the Cowichan River. It only uses between 55 and 58 million making the supply to North Cowichan possible.

SUPPLY SUFFICIENT

Smith said the 200,000 gallons of water being pumped daily through a hookup established between the mill's main water line and the reservoir will be sufficient.

He said a three-year study looking into the feasibility of a water system utilizing the Chemainus River is expected to be completed this year. Smith said it will probably be referred to the Cowichan Valley regional district board.

"The co-operation we got from these people was tremendous," stressed Smith. They have received so much criticism and I think we should give them a break. We are very grateful to the pulp mill for this water."

He said the free supply of water is not the first time that the Crofton pulp mill has supported the community. He said it provided lumber and a cash donation towards the new Crofton fire hall, it gave North Cowichan a 10-year lease on the boat launching ramp at Crofton government wharf, it donated four lots at Crofton for a playground and just recently gave a bunkhouse complex to the Duncan and District Association for Retarded Children for its proposed $53,000 complex.

Drug Centre Urged By Nanaimo Doctors

NANAIMO (CP) — Mayor Frank Ney Saturday released a letter from the city medical society urging that a drug treatment centre be established.

"Many of us are asked daily to prescribe methadone for 'apparent' heroin addicts," the letter said. "It has been shown that this form of treatment . . . serves only to increase the amount of available methadone — itself an addicting drug, on the street." The doctors urged a centre similar to one operated in Vancouver.

Cablevision Office Struck

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have offered help to two women who went on strike Friday against the Campbell River Television Association.

The two, Anne Wilkinson and Margaret Widen, said Sunday IBEW members have offered to help maintain picket lines around the cable television firm's office.

The two women went on strike for higher wages after 14 months of negotiating. The 3,200 cablevision subscribers are receiving service on a relay from nearby Courtenay.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Traders continued to pressure July oilseeds, with prices lower at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Rapeseed was the hardest hit with all futures lower and the July price down nearly 12 cents. Flax prices were also all lower. Both oilseeds came under liquidation pressure at the open, pushing prices to lower levels where they remained throughout the day.

The market was mostly quiet after the open with exception of Oct. Barley, where light buying continued after the Canadian Wheat Board reduced its price ¼ cent last week.

Volume of trade Friday included 456,000 bushels of flax, 644,000 of rye and 1,491,000 of rapeseed.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat included 1,045,281 bushels to Britain, 144,106 to Italy, 20,260 to Japan and 1,291,808 to Russia.

The New York market plunged sharply downward.

In London, the Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed today at 345.6, down 2.5.

On index, industrials were down 1.32 to 150.49, golds .16 to 159.99, base metals .34 to 89.51, and western oils 3.18 to 118.62.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 714,000 shares, down from 715,000 at the same time Friday.

Trading Friday was the lightest in more than 10 years.

Largest losses were in bank, b everage, industrial mining, merchandising, paer and forest and real estate sectors.

Among declining stocks, Dome Pete was down 3 to 36½, CPR 1¼ to 51¼, Chrysler ⅞ to 17, Moore ⅞ to 28, B.C. Sugar ⅝ to 15⅞, Great Lakes Paper c to 15¼ and SF Industries 55 cents to $3.30.

Falconbridge was up 1 to 143, Aimco Industies ⅝ to 15½, International Utilities ⅝ to 21½ and International Mogul 15 cents to $9.25.

AT NEW YORK, prices continued sagging in moderate trading.

At noon the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 8.49 at 680.65.

Declining issues outnumbered gainers on the Big Board by nearly 2 to 1.

Analysts said investors appeared apprehensive over second-quarter earnings, which will start coming out shortly.

Continuing apprehension over corporate liquidity also was cited by analysts as a factor in the market downswing.

LONDON (Reutedrs) — Britain's official gold reserves rose by £10,000,000 (about $25,000,000) last month to a total of £1,163,000,000 about ($2,907,500,000).

It was the 10th month in succession that the reserves had risen and came after advance repayments of $31,000,000 to the Bank for International Settlements in Basel and long-term loan servicing payments of £32,000,000.

Pulp Mill Project Delayed by P & G

EDMONTON (CP) — Procter and Gamble Co. of Canada Ltd. has postponed a decision on construction of a pulp mill in the Grande Prairie region, the Alberta Government has announced.

Abitibi Plans Staff Cutback

TORONTO (CP) — Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. has announced it will lay off 10 per cent of its 300 top office workers in Toronto by the end of the year.

A spokesman for the paper company said increased operating costs and a higher international value of the Canadian dollar which makes Canadian newsprint more expensive to foreign buyers are responsible for the layoff.

Abitibi, one of Canada's largest paper and pulp producers with mills throughout Eastern Canada, reported a profit of $12,000,000 on sales of $287,000,000 last year. Much of its sales are abroad.

Westcoast Loses

Westcoast Production Co. Ltd. of Calgary reports a net loss of $21,263 or one cent a share for the year ended March 31, 1970, compared with a loss of $535,773 or 28 cents a share in 1969.

President D. E. Anderson said in the company's annual report that in its first full year of independent operation Westcoast concentrated its efforts on land acquisition and preparation for future exploration and production.

A portion of the year's loss was due to expanded exploration and administrative operating expenses. The largest expense item was a $723,000 write-off of book cost sof surrendered lands, which the company had held for a considerable period and now judged to be non-productive.

Anderson said the company is in a sound financial position, with net assets of $44,800,000 and working capital of $21,500,000.

Westcoast has land holdings in Alberta, B.C., the Northwest Territories, the Yukon and Arctic islands.

Chip Firm Sold

Dulac Inc., a potato-chip firm, started with a $5,000 investment in 1948 by Mrs. Viateur Dulac of Ste. Marie de Beauce, and which grew into a $2,000,000 enterprise in Lauzon, Que., 10 miles east of Quebec City, has been sold to Frito-Lay of Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of Pepsico Inc. of New York.

Block Industries

Earnings of Block Bros. Industries Ltd. of Vancouver dropped sharply in the first quarter of 1970, the company says in a report to shareholders.

Earnings were $384,553, compared to $549,695 for the first quarter of 1969.

"It would be reasonable to expect earnings to continue at the current rate for the remainder of the year," the report said.

U.K. Concorde Tests Go Ahead as Planned

LONDON (UPI) — The British government said today production of the joint Anglo-French supersonic airliner Concorde is continuing as planned.

Geoffrey Rippon, minister of technology in the new Conservative government, told parliamentary questioners Britain so far has spent about $578 million on development and production of the airliner.

He said the British prototype is expected to fly again at the end of this month and flight tests at cruising speeds will follow later in the year.

He said the French prototype will resume flight tests in September.

Education to Command Bigger Share of Dollar

By DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — American business is gearing for an education revolution which will reshape the economy as well as the individual in the next 30 years, according to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Salaries, construction and other educational expenditures will account for one out of every four dollars spent in year 2000. The U.S. Office of Education sees the educational sector generating 25 per cent of the $2.4 trillion gross national product expected at the turn of the century.

That figure today is only about 6 per cent of a GNP less than $1 trillion in volume. So it's logical that big business is rushing toward the "super growth" sector of education-information.

Seven major firms — RCA, CBS, General Learning Corporation, Xerox, Litton, ITT and Raytheon — already have entered the "learning" industry by acquiring recognized text book publishing houses. Other are preparing to get into the educational swim.

Another area of the changing face of business which busied the chamber's council on trends and perspective is the geography of work and employment centres. It's all tied up with the fact, as economists see it, that by 1975 unskilled workers will make up less than 5 per cent the work force.

To some states and cities this represents a bright future; to others, a serious problem.

Today, for instance, one out of every six jobs is located and one out of every five dollars of personal income generated in just three states: California, Texas and Florida, according to the Chamber. Economists viewing the next decade see rosy futures for 10 states when labor force increases are figured on percentage.

California and Florida head the list. Then come four western states: Nevada, Arizona, Colorado and New Mexico. Next in line are Washington, Maryland, Idaho and Georgia.

By year 2000, says the Chamber, the Atlantic seaboard area between Maryland and Massachusetts will be an almost continuous city development covering a land mass of 7,000 square miles. Experts in urban proliferation already have their own language dealing with such situations.

BOSWASH, SANSAN

They call the Boston-New York-Washington corridor "Boswash," the Chicago-Pittsburgh area "Chipitts," and the San Francisco-San Diego corridor "Sansan."

Big city sprawl involving New York Chicago and Los Angeles are well known. But smaller cities are heading in the same direction, and this interests business planners.

The Miami-Fort Lauderdale, Cleveland-Akron and Dallas-Fort Worth areas are expected to hit the five million population mark by year 2000. The El Paso-Tucson and Richmond-Petersburg, Va. area will go over one million by the end of the century.

Businesses will have to be reshaped and corporate futures reassessed. That's why demographers and economists are being called into the executive suite more often these days.

Savings Bonds Not Being Held

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Savings Bond redemptions exceeded sales by $30 million last month as savers continued to withdraw their funds, apparently in search of a better return on their money.

It was the 19th straight month withdrawals topped sales.

The government pays 5 per cent interest on savings bonds held to maturity — 5 years and 10 months. During the first year, bonds earn only 4 per cent. The rate rises after that to produce the over-all 5 per cent yield.

By contrast, most commercial banks pay 5.75 per cent on time deposits of less than $100,000 held for two years. Mutual savings banks and savings and loan associations pay 6 per cent on two-year certificates of deposit.

NET DECLINE

The U.S. raised the savings bond interest from 4.25 per cent to 5 per cent June 1. But the rate remains uncompetitive with many other savings plans.

The last time bond sales exceeded redemptions was November, 1968. Since then the net decline has totaled $1.13 billion.

Because of interest credited to bond holdings, the total bonds outstanding have declined by less than the net withdrawal figure. But the total dipped to $52.02 billion on June 30, down from a peak of $52.34 billion recorded at the end of 1968.

Despite the flagging popularity of the bond program, the government has no plans to discontinue it. The interest rate on bonds is far lower than the going rate on other treasury borrowing, which has consistently exceeded 6 per cent.

Sales of Series E and H bonds and Freedom Shares totaled $465 million last month, while redemptions totaled $496 million. Both figures were well above May, when sales totaled $385 million and withdrawals $396 million.

IOS Shares Traded On London Exchange

LONDON (UPI) — The Council of the Stock Exchange lifted its ban on dealings in the common shares of Investors Overseas Services Ltd. (IOS) when market trading started today.

The move to resume deals in the Geneva-based mutual fund group's shares followed decisions in Canada last week by the Toronto and Montreal exchanges after the annual general meeting of IOS in Toronto, when the board disclosed details of loans to company officers and others.

First deals in the shares today were at $3.90, compared with $3.00 when dealings were suspended June 17.

The council, in a statement today, said it wished to make it clear that the common shares in this company were never granted a quotation on the market.

Dealings were permitted under a special rule under which the market may trade in the shares of a company if an overseas market or markets permits a quotation for the issue.

U.S. Economy: Ominous Signs

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — At mid-year the economy of the United States is suffering from symptoms of fatigue and over-indulgence, and while dutiful assurances from Washington might tranquillize fears they cannot smother facts.

Unemployment is growing more than was expected, sales are sluggish, production is off and prices are rising steeply.

The administration, however, maintains that its game plan is about as plotted and an upturn is coming soon.

It isn't only statistics that disturb the disbelievers and suggest to them that the problems of the economy may be more than temporary. Some ominous signs have appeared.

The Penn Central Railroad bankruptcy reorganization seems to be the greatest of them. Unable to meet its bills, the big railroad was forced to file for reorganization under the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

Other companies, some of them associated with the glamor-growth syndrome of the late 1960s, have met similar fates. And more companies, laden with debts, are trying to work without sufficient immediate cash.

LIQUIDITY CRISES

Investors are so suspicious that companies may be having liquidity crises that trading in the stock of Chrysler Corp. was delayed a good part of one day by an influx of sell orders. Chrysler issued a statement saying it was liquid, that it had assets readily convertible to cash. But the need to issue such a statement was considered noteworthy.

Lockheed Aircraft has had to appeal to the federal government for payment on some contracts in which its money is tied up. And two other aerospace companies, McDonneld Douglas and North American Rockwell, have had to suspend supplemental unemployment benefits to laid-off workers.

On Wall Street, the financial condition of many brokerage houses in dismal, lending urgency to plans for a federally-backed insurance program to protect investors from the insolvency of their brokers.

Internationally, the United States is still running a deficit in its payments to other nations. This problem could mean more pressure on the dollar later in the year.

Statistics don't tell the full story either of the decay in the physical plant of the United States: the local road and sewer jobs postponed for lack of funds or because of high interest rates; the rotten housing that isn't being replaced because the mortgage markets have been depleted of funds.

She later missed three tries at world record height of 6' 3¾." Vancouver's Brenda Eisler set long jump mark of 20' 2¼" and Bruce Simpson of Toronto cleared 16' 6½" in pole vault for other Canadian records. Seven defending champions, four from Russia, enter the final rounds of the world amateur Greco-Roman wrestling championships at Edmonton today with Canadian athletes watching from the sidelines.

Most of last year's winners appear certain to capture individual titles as 36 wrestlers remained in contention from a starting list of 152.

"It was our best showing ever in the world championships," Romaniuk said. "We'll improve in the next few years and should be a top contender in 1975."

Ten more Canadians will participate in the freestyle division which opens Thursday night. Freestyle finals are scheduled for Saturday.

Of the 34 countries participating in the 17th tournament, Russia has eight wrestlers left in the 10 divisions. Bulgaria and Hungary each has five and Yugoslavia four. Romania, Poland and Japan each has three wrestlers seeking world titles and the U.S., East Germany, Greece, West Germany and Sweden one each.

Less than 20 days after it started, the 73-foot ketch Blackfin sailed into the harbor first in the 3,571-mile trans-Pacific yacht race to Tahiti from California.

Skipper Ken Demeuse of Hayward, Calif., was at the helm Saturday as the vessel from the St. Francis Yacht Club of San Francisco crossed the finish line, edging the 78-foot ketch Mir by only 25 minutes. Mir was skippered by George A. O'Brien of Vancouver.

Finishing first did not automatically make Blackfin the winner, however, since the race is handicapped.

Mir had led the pack for most of the distance.

Winner of the event was Harvey Smith of Britain riding Mattie Brown with Alwin Shockenmohle of West Germany second and David Broome of Britain third.

Knievel landed on a safety ramp extending over the last five cars. The impact jolted him into the air. He landed on the seat of his motorcycle, then bounced into the air a second time. He gained control of the machine as it descended the landing ramp and continued for about 100 feet before tumbling to the ground.

Bate Pads Lead As Molsons Falter

Bate, leading by only 1½ games before the weekend, crushed second-place Molsons 6-1 on Sunday after collecting an easy victory earlier the same day. Lake Cowichan defaulted when only eight players showed up.

Molsons started to slip behind after losing a 4-2 decision to Strathcona Hotel on Saturday.

Bill Haslam paced Bate's seven-hit attack with a solo home run in the sixth inning while Barry Jackson recorded the victory by striking out seven and scattering five hits.

HENLEY UMPIRE'S CALL RAISES ROWING STORM

HENLEY ON THAMES (AP)—A husky crewman swore at the umpire, there was jeering in the stuffy stewards' enclosure and elderly colonels choked on their pink gin.

In its 134 years, the Henley Royal Regatta never was like this before.

The last race in the four-day affair—noted for its gentility—suddenly exploded into fury as England's Thames Tradesmen Rowing Club's fours was disqualified in the finals of the Wyfold Cup Saturday and the Trident Rowing Club of South Africa was awarded the race.

The umpire, 1948 Olympic gold medallist Dr. Ran Laurie, had been following the race in a launch. He warned the English crew three times for moving too close to Trident. Finally after the two shells collided in the flurry of enmeshed oars he disqualified the Tradesmen for a foul.

Two of the English crew—they were in the lead at the time—burst into tears. Another one swore mightily and the public address system broadcast his four-letter word around the enclosure.

Trident coach Keith Mayberry said his crew didn't want to win that way and offered to run the race again. The stewards refused.

"We fully support the umpire's decision," said a regatta spokesman.

German Crews Dominate Henley

HENLEY ON THAMES (CP) — A sturdy crew from Ridley College of St. Catharines, Ont., gave Canada its first-ever win at the Henley Royal Regatta by stroking to victory in the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup.

It was probably the last competitive race for this Ridley crew, already holder of the Canadian and United States schoolboy titles, and it came against what its coach called the toughest opposition Ridley has faced.

The Canadians defeated Hampton grammar school of England to win the Cup by 2½ lengths over the one-mile 550-yard Thames River course. The time was seven minutes six seconds.

The victory was the first by a Canadian crew since the Henly competition was opened to foreign competitors in 1964.

East and West German crews took most of the other major prizes on the final day Saturday. The East Germans won the Grand Challenge Cup for eights, the premier event at Henley, and the Silver Goblet for paired oars.

West German orasmen took the Prince Philip Challenge Cup for coxed fours and the Diamond Challenge Sculls.

GERMANS DUEL

A huge Wester German crew from Wetzlar, known as "the bulls of Konstanz," defeated an East German squad from Posdam in the Prince Philip Cup for coxed fours, turning back a strong challenge and winning in 7:24.

Olympic silveer medallist Jochen Meissner of Mannheim also gave West Germany the Diamond Challenge Sculls when he defeated Pat Delafield of England by three lengths in 8:18.

Tom McKibbon and John van Blom of the United States won the Double Sculls Challenge Cup by defeating an English crew while a Dutch crew from Groningen won the Ladies Challenge Plae for eights.

Zarley's Charge Wins Open by Three Strokes

Fires Final Round of 67; Gilbert Finishes Second

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Kermit Zarley smiled Sunday as he came off the 18th green at the London Hunt and Country Club after fashioning a five-under par 67.

There were contenders on the course behind him, but only a miracle could have prevented him from winning the Canadian open golf championship, the $25,000 Canadian funds that go to the first-place finisher, and the Seagram's Gold Cup.

While better-known pros like Chi Chi Rodriguez, Labron Harris Jr., Art Wall Jr. and George Archer were losing strokes to par on the lush 7,168-yard par 72 course, Zarley charged from four strokes off the pace for a 279 total and his second victory since joining the tour in 1964.

"I feel like Silky Sullivan today coming from that far back. . . . I had to do the same thing to win the Kaiser," Zarley said back in the clubhouse awaiting official word that he was the Canadian Open winner. He was referring to the one-time wonder horse from the West Coast who specialized in coming from several lengths back of the field to win.

He also was four strokes behind leader Dave Marr when he charged back to win the Kaiser International Open in January, 1968.

Payoff More Than '69 Earnings

The $25,000 he pocketed Sunday was more than he earned on the tour last year when he finished with just under $24,000.

His best finishes this year had been a seventh in the Texas Open and a 15th at the Los Angeles Open.

Three strokes back of the 28-year-old pro from Houston, Tex., was first-round leader Gibby Gilbert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who set a course record 65 Thursday. He earned second-place money of $14,300.

Rodriguez, from Puerto Rico, co-leader with Harris after Saturday's third round, and Bob Stone of Independence, Mo., shared third-place money of $7,350 each with scores of 283. five under par.

Harris, from Stillwater, Okla., was alone in fifth place at 284 followed by Phil Rodgers of LaJolla, Calif., at 285. In at 286 were Bob Murphy of Jacksonville, Fla., John Miller of San Francisco, Steve Spray of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Wall of Honesdale, Pa., and Archer from Gilroy, Calif.

The only Canadian threat going into Sunday's final 18 holes, amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., shot himself out of contention on Sunday's front nine.

He was three over par on the first after hitting his tee shot into a water hazard, and scored an eight on the par-four fifth, finishing the front nine in 43, seven over par, and the tournament at 290, two over par.

Another amateur, Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., paced the eight Canadians at 289. Touring pros George Knudson and Gary Bowerman were in a group with Cowan at 290 while Al Balding of Toronto was with nine others at 292, four over. Amateur Wayne McDonald of Brampton, Ont., finished at 294.

Champion on a Birdie Binge

Zarley birdied the first, eighth, ninth, 11th, 12th and 14th holes. He went over par on only the 15th which he said "played quite long." His playing partner, Wall, also found the hole long after his tee shot went into the gallary along the left side of the fairway and struck a course marshall, Don Jackson of London, on the head and rocochcted straight back into the fairway.

CUT OFFICIAL

A marshall near Jackson said the ball seemed to glance off the back of his head, splitting the skin. But Jackson was back on his feet to greet Wall and tell him everthhing was OK. He was later treated at the clubhouse.

Zarley said later he loosened up on the final nine holes. His driving was inconsistant and got him into trouble, especially on the 14th and 18th holes.

His tee shot on the 14th landed in the rough and he was forced to shoot blind to the pin. He landed 10 feet away and holed out for a birdie that put him 10 under.

On the 18th, his drive wound up under the trees to the right side of the rairway. His shot to the green wound up on the back apron but a fine chip recovery stopped 10 inches past the pin and he was able to hold par.

"I was getting awful loose under that pressure," Zarley said, admitting it was one of his worst tendencies. "But I had a few breaks; that's what it takes to win a tournament like this."

JOINS TOP GROUP

The prize money he earned here also brought his career earnings to $219,737, making him the 61st player to surpass the $200,000 plateau since 1947.

Tour old-timers Byron Nelson and Tommy Kroll were credited with getting Zarley's game back in the groove after his 1969 season.

"My putting was really bad last year . . . and both of them really got be back in the groove. I had been playing well since joining the tour up until that time."

Triangle League Tries Camp Plan

Manager Rudy Adamic and coach George Anderson had invited 27 young ball-players to a combined camp-out and baseball training session over the weekend. The group started out Friday morning and stayed at Heatherbell farm until today, using Royal Roads grounds for practices.

Team Selectors Pick Schwantje

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ross Ellison of Vancouver Point Grey shot a two-under-par 70 Sunday for a two-round 142 and first place in the British Columbia Invitational golf tournament but lost a playoff for a spot on the British Columbia team for Willingdon Cup play.

Ellison ran up a total of 585, including a hole-in-one at Marine Drive Sunday, in the eight-rounds which determined the members of the B.C. team.

Neil Crofton of Vancouver Langara had the same total as Ellison after the three events and made the team after winning a Sunlay playoff against the Point Grey golfer.

Others on the team are 1969 provincial champion Doug Roxburgh of Marine Drive, who shot 580 in the qualifying events, and John Russell of Point Grey and B.C. champion Carl Schwantje of Victoria, both at 584.

Ellison finished the weekend just two strokes ahead of Schwantje, who also fired a two-under-par 70 after leading off with a 74 on Saturday. Roxburgh was third on rounds of 74 and 72 while Russell had a pair of 74s for 148 total.

Tired and Faltering Donna Retains Title

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — "I was just so glad it went in because I didn't want to come back tomorrow," said an exuberant but exhausted Donna Caponi after her second straight U.S. Women's Open victory.

"I'm just so tired . . . so tired of thinking because I got myself into so much trouble out there," she added Sunday after her one-stroke victory over Sandra Haynie of Runaway Bay, Tex., and former champion Sandra Spuzich of Indianapolis.

And get herself into trouble she did.

Miss Caponi, who entered the final round of the $30,000 classic with a four-stroke lead on a three-under-par 210 over the 6,210-yard Muskogee Country Club course, finished play with a three-over-par 287.

Before culminating play with a two-over-par six, the attractive 25-year-old brunette carded five holes at one over par.

"I played so badly," she said afterwards. "I only had one birdie all day."

DOWN TO 18th

Leading Miss Spuzich by two strokes and Miss Haynie by three after 17 holes, Donna failed to get onto the 18th green in three. Her regulation fourth moved only a few feet and her fifth shot sailed four feet past the pin.

Miss Spuzich, however, missed a six-foot putt and a chance for a playoff and it was Donna's championship with a four-foot putt.

Those four feet were worth $5,000 to Miss Caponi, who has won four tournaments in her five-year career, and it moved her up to sixth place in the Ladies' Professional Golf Association money standings with more than $12,000 for the year.

Misses Haynie and Spuzich earned $2,000 each as runners-up, followed by Kathy Whitworth of Ocean Shores, Wash., and Sandra Palmer of Lake Arrowhead, Calif., who won $1,100 apiece with 289s.

DRAG RACING

Abbotsford Driver Best

Ken Hebert of Abbostford drove a B-Class dragster from Sumas, Wash., to victory Sunday in the competition eliminator bracket of the fourth annual summer championships at Van Isle Dragways.

Hebert sizzled through the quarter-mile drag strip at Cobble Hill in 9:20 seconds at a speed of 149.30 miles-per-hour to defeat Hugh Wedekind of Vancouver, Washington.

Bruce Lorimer of Mill Bay defeated Jim Attebury of Port Alberni for modified eliminator honors. Lorimer drove his D-Gas 1955 Chev through the distance in 12:48 seconds at 109.31 mph while Attebury had to settle for a run of 12:82 at 111.11 mph.

Royals Win Pair; Share League Lead

Royals dominated play through most of the match's 90 minutes on Sunday to defeat division-leading Concordia 6-3 in Regina after handing Edmonton City a 5-0 shoutout Saturday in Edmonton.

Bobby Duncan and Ash Valdal each scored to give Victoria a 2-0 half-time lead over Regina. Jim Menzies and Peter Wilson added other markers early in the second frame to put Royals ahead 4-0 before Concordia players found the range.

Traweger scored two more goals with less than 10 minutes remaining, both on close-in scrambles.

Strongest help came from right-winger Wilson, who scored twice for Victoria as the Islanders chalked up a 4-0 half-time lead. Playing-coach Brian Hughes, Brian Robinson and Mark Robb scored the other Victoria goals.

In other coastal division play, Seattle Sea-Tacs won their first point in eight starts by playing to a 2-2 draw Sunday with Cougars in Vancouver.

But Seattle came on strong in the second half as Don Boyd reduced the odds with a 26-yard goal at 26 minutes and Les Fabri knotted the count six minutes later on a smart pass from Dan Rosengren.

LEO DUROCHER
. . . full of fight

Cubs' Fight Style Doesn't Help Slide

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago Cubs are going down in the National league standings — but not without a fight.

The Cubs have lost 15 of their last 17 games and tumbled from first place to fourth in the National League's East Division. All the frustrations of the slump seemed to explode in the ninth inning of Sunday's 5-2 loss to Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pirate pitcher Dock Ellis was at bat and after ducking a close one, he started saying—to no one in particular but loud enough for plate umpire Nick Colosi to hear—that he'd get even.

"Ellis kept saying he was going to get somebody," said Colosi, "so I decided to stop it right there and then."

Colosi summoned Chicago manager Leo Durocher and Danny Murtaugh, skipper of the Pirates, to a home plate conference to head off the war. But the truce came too late. Moments after the conference broke up, Durocher exchanged angry words with Ellis and the brawl was on.

When peace was restored, the Pirates finished beating the Cubs on the scoreboard and dropped Chicago five games behind first-place New York Mets. The Cubs led the division by 4½ games when their slide started June 21.

MONTREAL DROPS ONE

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, the Mets edged Philadelphia Phillies 5-4, St. Louis Cardinals rapped Montreal Expos 5-3, Cincinnati Red trimmed Houston Astros 3-1, San Diego Padres edged Atlanta Braves 6-5 and Los Angeles Dodgers shut out San Francisco Giants 4-0.

In the American League, Denny McLain made his second start for Detroit but the Tigers bowed, 2-0, to the Eastern Division-leading Baltimore Orioles.

The win extended Baltimore's margin to 5½ games over the sagging New York Yankees, who dropped a pair of 7-3 decisions to Washington Senators in the day's only doubleheader.

Elsewhere in the AL, Minnesota Twins drubbed the Chicago White Sox 12-3, California Angels downed Oakland Athletics 5-1, Boston Red Sox whipped Cleveland Indians 8-4 and Milwaukee Brewers edged Kansas City Royals 2-1.

The Pirates, who have taken over second place in the NL East with 10 victories in the last 13 games, were sparked Sunday by Rich Hebner's two-run homer in the first inning.

EXPOS BLOW LEAD

St. Louis rallied for four runs in the eighth—two on a triple by Rich Allen—and two more in the ninth on a homer by Carl Taylor to wipe out a 3-0 Montreal lead and beat the Expos. Bob Gibson went all the way for his 10th consecutive victory.

Rookie Wayne Simpson also won his 10th straight for Cincinnati on a four-hitter over Houston.

Simpson, who has not lost since April 24, pitched six hitless innings before the Astros solved him. The Reds bunched four hits for all of their runs in the sixth, with Bobby Tolan's single starting the rally and runs scoring on Johnny Bench's double and singles by Lee May and Tommy Helms.

Clarence Gaston poled a three-run homer for San Diego and Rico Carty tagged a two-run shot for the Braves.

Bill Singer hurled a two-hitter and Bill Grabarkewitz and Jim Lefebvre rapped home runs as Los Angeles knocked off San Francisco.

Singer, out for two months with hepatitis, pitched his first complete game since April 12. He retired the last 17 Giants in order.

Cliff's Survive 13-Inning Final

Cliff's Tavern of Seattle had to battle through 13 innings Sunday to preserve an unbeaten record and capture top honors in the Stuffy McGinnis men's invitational softball tournament at Royal Athletic Park.

Cliff's climaxed the three-day, double-loss elimination affair by downing Port Alberni Super-Valu 6-3 after scoring three runs in the top of the 13th frame.

The Seattle entry advanced through the tourney with a 2-0 shutout over Colwood Inn of the host league on Friday, a 2-1 victory over Denford Electric of the Victoria Major Men's League on Saturday and an earlier 6-4 win over Port Alberni on Sunday.

Barry Bender provided all the victory margin for Cliff's with a three-run homer in the 13th.

Bender earned the tourney's most-valuable-player award for key defensive plays as well as a record of three home runs, including two game-winners.

Port Alberni players collected the rest of the individual laurels. George Kuich won outstanding pitcher honors for three victories and 50 strikeouts while Gene Kimoto was the tourney's outstanding batter with a .437 average and eight runs from seven hits.

CENTENNIAL SHOOT . . . . . . AT HEAL'S

Tom's Right on Target

Veteran marksmen picked off the prestigous prizes, but a 14-year-old youngster from Haney stole the spotlight in the two-day Centennial Shoot that wound up Sunday at Heal's Range.

The youngster, Tom Pinney, swept the boards of prizes in the marksman division, topping his division in three aggregate categories.

Cheney won the two-day aggregate; Bev Pinney topped the iron-sight shooters and Cloward, one of a strong U.S. contingent shooting at Heal's, claimed the any-sight aggregate.

Hatter and Dragovich won the centennial rifles that went with victory. The Wimbledon match brings together the top 16 shooters for a miss-and-out competition that serves as one of the highlights of the meeting.

Faceoff Difficulty Haunts Irish Again

COQUITLAM — Winning faceoffs hasn't been one of Victoria Shamrock's strong points this season.

The faceoff difficulty popped up again Saturday and helped Coquitlam Adanacs to two valuable Western Lacrosse Association points. The Adanacs earned them, and a share of third place with Victoria, by defeating the Shamrocks 15-7 before about 800 fans.

It took Adanacs only about 45 seconds to turn the tide in their favor. They did it by taking two faceoffs in rapid-fire succession, and promptly transformed a tight, 4-3 lead into a 6-3 cushion.

The Adanacs went on to outscore Victoria 7-1 in the second period for an 11-4 advantage into the stretch session.

"That was the turning point," said co-coach Bert Bertoia of the Rocks. "We were in the game in the first and third periods, but that second frame killed us.

JUNIORS SHINE

A pair of juniors also figured prominently for Adanacs. Vern Baker scored two goals and three assists while goaltender Dave Wedlock gave Coquitlam coach Bob Marsh a solid netminder performance.

Ken Alexander led Victoria scoring with two goals while Ranjit and Nirmal Dillon, Tom and Denis Somner and Don Munroe each added one.

Shamrocks now confront Vancouver Burrards in a home-and-home series this week. The Irish visit Vancouver on Tuesday, then face the second-place Burrards at Memorial Arena on Wednesday.

Rod Laver's Era A Passing Decade

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Is the Rod Laver era in tennis over? And if it is, who is going to step into his shoes as Mr. Tennis?

Rod, the red-haired maestro from the little Australian town of Rockhampton, will be 32 next month. For a decade he has been the colossus bestriding the tennis world, with no one to challenge his supremacy until now.

But this year he didn't reach a single final. Roger Taylor, a burly Briton who at 28 is a sound working professional, said after beating Laver: "I wouldn't have lived on the same court as Rod a couple of years ago."

And in the men's doubles, Laver and Roy Emerson, another Winbledon winner in the middle '60s, went out to Ken Rosewall, who has been around for 18 years, and Fred Stolle.

A year ago a Wimbledon finals day without Laver would have been unthinkable. But on Saturday an even older player — Rosewall, the Australian veteran who was last in a Wimbledon final back in 1956 — shared the limelight with John Newcombe, a 26-year-old bursting with energy and enthusiasm.

And, to point up the dearth of up-and-coming promising youngsters, the four semi-finalists this year had an average age of 28, probably the oldest quartet for years to have reached the last eight. Besides Newcombe and Rosewall, there was Taylor and Andres Gimeno, the bald Spanish professional who will be 33 next birthday.

In the final, Rosewall put up the show of his life in taking Newcombe to five sets, the first time this had happened in a Wimbledon final, before Newcome won 5-7, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

PROS PERFORM

And in the women's bracket, the centre court was treated to another tennis feast, by girls who had been around a long time. In that match, Margaret Court got three-quarters of the way to the tennis grand slam — the Australian, French, Wimbledon and U.S. titles — by defeating Billie Jean King of the United States 14-12, 11-9 in the longest final ever fought by women.

In the men's doubles Newcombe and Tony Roche, holders for the last two years, walked away with their match in straight sets in another all-Australian final with Rosewall and Stolle.

In the women's doubles Mrs. King and Rosemary Casals of the U.S. — who have held the title three times in the last four years — easily defeated Francoise Durr of France and Virginia Wade of Britain.

Esquimalt Nabs Tourney Honors

Mark Purdy's bat and the clutch pitching of George Oliver sparked Esquimalt Ocean Express to a 9-5 win over Nanaimo Legion on Sunday and top honors in a four-team, invitational juvenile boy's softball tournament at View Royal.

Nanaimo forced a sudden-death playoff by handing Esquimalt its only loss, 13-3, earlier Sunday.

Oliver nailed down the clinching game while Purdy sparkled at bat, getting eight hits in 12 trips in the team's final three games.

Oregon Driver Claims Victory In Grand Prix

Favored Pierre Phillips of Portland won the 60-lap feature race in the Victoria Motor Sports Club's Grand Prix event at Western Speedway.

Phillips, driving a Titan Mark Six Formula Ford, finished first overall in the weekend action, with Vancouver's Cam McKenzie second.

The Grand Prix, first in two years to be run on Vancouver Island, attracted a whopping 130 entries from California, Oregon, Washington, Alberta and B.C.

A relatively-small crowd of about 2,000 — a disappointing turnout — witnessed a total of 11 races in the two-day affair.

Only the 15 fastest Formula cars qualified for the 60-lap feature. Mackenzie led qualifiers in Saturday's trials with a time of 36.6 seconds.

Jake Remple of Abbotsford qualified second, finished third in the race, fourth in the International Conference of Sports Club series.

The race of the weekend was marred by a spectacular spinout as Bert Laakmann of Vancouver stood his $7,000 Porsche end-over-end four times in front of the grandstand and completely demonished the car. Laakmann, fortunately, escaped injury.

Less spectacular, but more serious, was a race in which Chuck Hellevang of Port Coquitlam flipped his car. It rolled over twice and Hellevang was taken to hospital with multiple breaks to his left arm.

In Saturday's action, Victoria drivers won the top three places in one of two novice races. Pat Davidson, in a DGR racing team Titan Formula Ford, was first. Dave Butler, of the Phase III team, drove his Formula V to second place, and Peter Lembcke from the Plimley Racing Team finished third in his Midget.

In the second novice event Al Vaughan of New Westminster, in a "C" sports class MGB, was the winner. Mel Kemper of Richfield, Washington, was second, and Les Moon of Abbotsford finished third.

Results:

Formula V Race—1, Dave Butler, Victoria; 2, Doug Thompson, Beaverton, Ore.; 3, Bob Boyd, Cascade, Wash.

Thomson Family Tops Golf Test

Ruth and Sydney Thomson, a mother-and-daughter pairing from Royal Colwood, edged Cedar Hill's Eileen Mann and and junior Maureen Barnes for low gross honors in a "mother-daughter two-ball golf tournament at Colwood.

Irene Ritchie and Chris Little of Gorge Vale edged Victoria's Dorothy and Susan Metcalf for low net honors.

Rindt Leading Driver

Times News Services

Jochen Rindt of Austria won the French Grand Prix for Formula 1 cars Sunday at Clermont-Ferrand and took over the lead of the world driving championship.

Rindt, in a Lotus 72, was followed across the finish line by Chris Amon of New Zealand in a March and Jack Brabham of Australia in a Brabham. Denis Hulme of Australia placed fourth.

Last year's winner, Jackie Stewart of Scotland, held third place for the first two laps in his March but fell back and went into the pits with spark plug trouble.

The victory, Rindt's third of the year and his second in a row, gave him a total of 27 points. Brabham moved into a second-place tie with Stewart, each with 19 points.

Babe Ruth Series Down to the Wire

Saanich Evening Optimists and Victoria All-Stars each took victory turns Sunday, so it will be all - or - nothing when they meet for the third time in the LowerVancouver Island 13-year-old Babe Ruth baseball playdowns.

Tonight's sudden-death game, at Reynolds Road Park, starts at 6:30.

Each posted a victory over the Cosmopolitan entry Saturday, swapped victories Sunday. Victoria defeated the Cosmos 10-7 and Saanich followed up with a 7-5 victory.

Victoria defeated Saanich 7-5 Sunday but the all-stars rebounded to edge Evening Optimists 11-9 and force tonight's game in the three-team, double-knockout tournament.

Glen Davies was Victoria's hero in the first game Sunday. He checked Saanich on three hits and also provided the biggest hit of the game, a two-run double in the sixth inning to break a 5-5 tie.

Saanich hitters broke out in the second game. Terry Messer went three-for-four and Frank Mosses and John McManaman added two hits each to pace Optimists.

O'Dell's Rivals Helpful

Point leader Ross Surgenor had his troubles.

Second-place Larry Walker fared slightly better, but not much.

Thus it was up to Rick O'Dell, No. 3 in the point standings, to mark up the big gain in Saturday's late model stock car program at Western Speedway.

O'Dell gained valuable ground on the leaders by winning the main event and placing third in the trophy dash.

He got plenty of help from Walker and Surgenor. Surgenor managed a fourth in the trophy dash and a third in the fast heat. Walker made his only points by winning the fast heat.

In addition, Walker and Surgenor helped O'Dell when their cars tangled on the 18th lap of the 30-lap main event. Challenging strongly for the lead, they collided. Walker's car hit the back stretch wall and the No. 2 driver was forced to pack it up.

Surgenor spun into the infield and lost a full lap before he was able to get back into the race.

O'Dell, who had inherited the lead on the 11th lap, cruised home easily before 2,805 fans. He finished four car lengths ahead of Terry Forsyth while Norm King took third place.

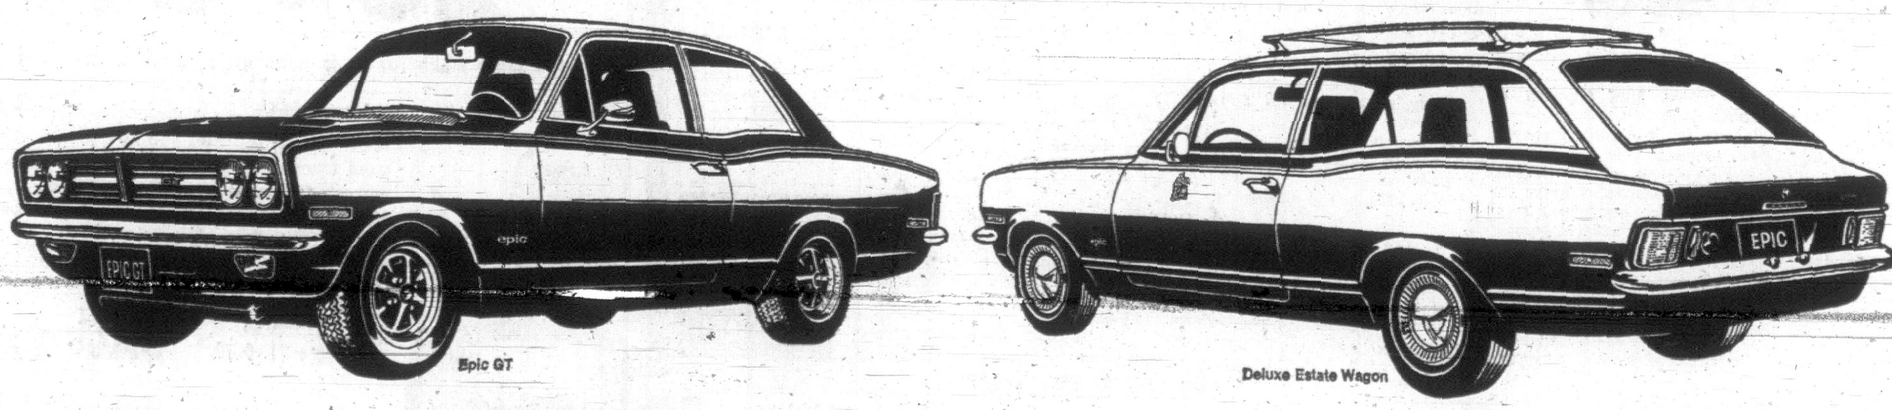
Epic...
the small wonder



...so many different ways to make ends meet!

Like most small cars, Epic is designed to save you money. When you buy it. When you drive it. But Epic is different from other small cars. Because General Motors builds Epic differently. Like its Epic GT performer. Four-on-the-floor. Dual sports stripes. A 112-hp overhead cam high performance engine. Or the big/little fastback wagon. Plenty of room for five adults. Over 53-cu.-ft. of cargo space with the back seat down. A large counterbalanced rear gate. Easy to lift. Easy to load. But these are only two of many "small wonders". There are super luxury Epics. There are economy-economy Epics. Two-doors. Four-doors. With niceties such as rack-and-pinion steering and deep-padded leather-like front bucket seats — all standard.

General Motors builds Epic small. But comfortable. And you get a choice of fuel-skimping power plants. And with Epic, you can afford to be choosy. Especially now.

Bargain savings time at your Chevrolet-Epic dealer's. You can get what you want in a small car and still save money — that's just one "small wonder" of Epic.

FLOURISH OF STARS AND STRIPES

Americans Mark Nation's Birth

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — With a grand flourish of Stars and Stripes, tens of thousands of Americans came to their capital city Saturday to renew their pledge of allegiance to the troubled republic and their faith in its future.

Washington's Memorial Monument grounds hummed with the historic sounds of a Fourth of July celebration—the martial brass of patriotic songs, the booming aerial rockets, crying babies and stirring speeches.

But it was a Fourth of July festival unlike any in the nation's past, played against the cross-currents of dissent and division torturing America today.

EXTREMIST ELEMENT

Evangelist Billy Graham, conducting a religious service on the Lincoln Memorial steps, told the audience variously estimated up to 30,000 people that "there is much discouragement, despair and negativism in the nation today. On every hand critics tell us what is wrong with America, where we have failed, and why we are hated."

A "relatively small extremist element" according to Graham "have knocked our courts, desecrated our flag, disrupted our educational system, laughed at our religious heritage and threatened to burn down our cities—and are now threatening to assassinate our leaders."

Even as the evangelist's audience cheered his reaffirmation of faith, an amorphous, irreverent group representing another view of America and its institutions waded toward him in the reflecting pool, voicing their objections with obscene chants.

SIDE BY SIDE

Without anyone arranging it, the Fourth of July in Washington brought the two groups side by side—thousands of families in shirtsleeves and shorts, pushing kids in strollers, out on a holiday to salute the flag, right next to the bearded, beaded youth of the counterculture of drugs, dress, sex and revolution. They were smoking pot in the shade of the Washington Monument and waving Viet Cong flags right in the middle of all the red, white and blue.

Against all of the official intentions, the events of the day demonstrated, not just the principles and faith which unite millions upon millions of Americans, but also the deep differences which divide them from the dissenters.

The youthful dissidents clashed with police Saturday night in an attempt to disrupt the Honor America day entertainment program on the Washington Monument grounds.

TEAR GAS

Police lobbed tear gas into the crowd of about 4,000 youths after some of them threw bottles and exploded firecrackers immediately behind the fenced-off grandstand area in front of the entertainment stage.

A group of about 75 youths linked arms and formed a second line between the crowd and the police and urged persons not to throw missiles.

STARS BOOED

Hecklers shouted and booed at Bob Hope, Jack Benny and other celebrities on the stage 200 yards away who generally did not hear them. The program continued uninterrupted.

Several scuffles erupted between dissidents and Honor American Day supporters throughout the evening, while most of the 250,000 to 300,000 persons in the grounds seemed unaware of the clashes. Millions of television viewers in the nation also saw little of the friction.

J. Willard Marriott, the motel and restaurant operator who organized Honor America Day, Sunday called the Fourth of July observance "the greatest thing we have had in Washington in a long time."

NIXON HAPPY

He said that President Nixon called him from the San Clemente White House after the show to congratulate him.

Marriott said that the president watched all televised portions of the show and told Marriott, "It was a great Fourth of July celebration, the kind of patriotic thing we need."

Marriott said that the Honor America Day committee had spent hundreds of thousands of dollars — but less than a million — to stage the July Fourth show. They paid transportation, hotel and food costs for many of the participants.

Referring to the youths who came to protest the show because they identified it with support of the War in Vietnam, and who ended up swelling the crowd count, Marriott said, "It's too bad we have to have people like that trying to destroy the country."

Low Budget Movie Wins High Acclaim

TORONTO (CP) — A bargain-basement Canadian movie about two young men who drift to Toronto from the Maritimes has opened to lavish critical acclaim.

Goin' Down the Road was made by Don Shebib, 32, a Toronto director who began with a $19,000-grant from the Canadian Film Development Corp., and an idea.

When he finished he had the story of Pete and Joey, two young men who grow up in the depressed economy of Nova Scotia and decide to head for the easy money they believe awaits them in Toronto.

Total cost of the all-Canadian color movie was only $78,000.

Gleason Marries

ASHFORD, England (UPI) — Jackie Gleason wanted a quiet wedding and he got it Saturday when he married Beverly McKittrick, a 37-year-old former Baltimore secretary, in the small registry office of this town on the outskirts of London.

Only 30 persons, most of them Saturday shoppers who just happened by, saw the 54-year-old TV star arrive with Miss McKittrick in a tan Rolls-Royce to say their vows. Gleason was divorced 10 days ago from his wife of 32 years.

He and Miss McKittrick met two years ago on a golf course in Miami where Gleason lives. It is her first marriage.

EFTA Trade Rises

GENEVA (Reuters) — Total exports within the European Free Trade Association countries rose 30.5 per cent in April to $1,040,000,000 compared with the same month last year, it has been announced. The association includes Britain, Austria, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland and Iceland, with Finland as associate member.

First Rain Seen

THIEF LEAVES BITE BEHIND

LOUGHBOROUGH, England (UPI) — Police said a thief who raided an antique shop left his top dentures behind. "He must have dropped them in his fright or excitement," a police spokesman said.

RIDERS ESCAPE SPILL AT VANCOUVER . . . . . . FIDDLE ISLE IMPRESSES

Solitary Ticket Worth $85,978 to Exacta Bettor

(Times News Services)

One lucky bettor at Liberty Bell Race Track Saturday celebrated the U.S. Independence Day holiday with a bang.

He held the only winning ticket, worth $85,978, on an exacto combination involving four horses.

The bettor, who refused to give his name, combined Last Stone and Never Seriour in the eighth race with Ibis Island and Seasoned Traveller in the ninth.

Otherwise, horses — and not fans — made news on racetracks here and there . . .

At New York, Marion B. Frankel's Barometer, the next-to-longest shot in the field, scored a 2½-length victory at Aqueduct in the $100,000-added Suburban, second leg of New York's handicap triple crown.

Nodouble, winner of the Metropolitan Mile, the first leg, was scratched early Saturday because of a slight fever. The five-year-old gelding had been favored for the 84th running of the 1¼-mile event.

* * *

At Chicago, Mr. Leader outhustled four rivals and won the $57,400 Stars and Stripes Handicap by 1½ lengths at Arlington Park. Kerrys Time nipped Ribofilio for second money in the 1⅛-mile turf race.

Mr. Leader was timed in 1:47 2-5 for a track record, slicing four-fifths of a second from the mark held by Hard Rock Man.

* * *

Carrying high weight of 130 pounds and given a masterly ride by Bill Shoemaker, the five-year-old Fiddle Isle hit the wire 3½ lengths in front of Baffle. Pinjara, stablemate of the winner, was third in the field of seven horses.

* * *

At Toronto, Movette won the My Dear Stakes — one of the premier Canadian races for two-year-old fillies — at Woodbine on Sunday. Sonny Says Quick was second and Blonde Lady finished third in the $10,000 event.

* * *

At Vancouver, Nancy Hawk avoided a three-horse pileup and ran away in a late charge to win the $5,000-added B.C. Oaks before a crowd of 6,777 at exhibition Park.

Ridden by Jack Phillips, the three-year-old filly trailed the field, as usual, at the start and started her runaway at the final turn. She won by seven lengths.

Roman Roda, the longshot, in the field of 10, was second. Friskey's Charm took third.

In the final turn, Pacific Pride, Willies Babe and Taybhai ran up each others heels and all three horses went down. None was injured.

Highly-Touted End Released by Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference Saturday cut four players from the training camp roster, including Major Stephenson, a highly-touted tight end from University of Texas at El Paso.

The other cuts were Canadians—lineman Brian Currie and Bob Moffat and defensive back Roger Robbins.

This reduced the club roster to 58 players; 53 will dress for tonight's exhibition game here against Edmonton Eskimos.

The Weather and You

By Carl Riblet Jr.

HARBORD, New South Wales — It is just 200 years ago this spring that the great English mariner and explorer, Capt. James Cook, made the first recorded comment about Australia. It was an observation about the weather that went down in history as the words of description of the country.

The weather was good that day of April 20, 1770, when the renowned navigator made his first Australian landfall at what is now Point Hicks. He wrote in his journal: "The weather being clear gave us a good view of the country, which has a very pleasing appearance." Who knows, if the weather had been bad, Captain Cook's first landfall may have been somewhere else along the coast.

Mexican Favorite Landslide Winner

By CHARLES GREEN

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Luis Echeverria Alvarez won Mexico's presidency by the expected landslide Sunday, extending the 42-year-old hold of the PRI — the Institutional Revolutionary party — on the Mexican government by another six years.

The PRI said unofficial returns from 4,822 of the country's 36,901 voting precincts gave Echeverria 1,232,200 votes to 158,324 for Efrain Gonzales Morfin of the PAN, the National Action party.

Although there never was any doubt Echeverria would win, Gonzalez Morfin refused to concede defeat. His supporters claimed there were many voting irregularities, but a government election chief rejected the claims.

No violence or disturbances were reported from any part of the country, and the turnout apparently was heavy despite a small "don't vote" campaign originated by disenchanted youths. The total of 22,800,000 persons eligible to vote included about 3,000,000 18-to-20-year-olds who could cast ballots for the first time.

The 48-year-old president-elect, who takes office Dec. 1, also claimed a resounding victory for PRI candidates in elections for 60 seats in the Senate and 210 in the Chamber of Deputies.

TO KEEP PLEDGES

Echeverria said he would not consider the vote a triumph until he finishes his six-year term and Mexicans are satisfied he has fulfilled his mandate.

He is not expected to make any changes in Mexico's foreign policy. During his wide-ranging, 221-day campaign he frequently referred to Mexico as a buffer between the United States and the rest of Latin America, and called for a renewed spirit of Latin Americanism.

"This election is a strong and decisive step for the strengthening of democracy in Mexico," he said. "The next government will increase the spirit of Latin Americanism. Latin America is a brotherhood. We are brother countries, and we must help each other."

Echeverria had the endorsement of outgoing President Gustavo Diaz Ortaz, who was barred by the constitution from seeking a second term.

Gonzalez Marfin, the 40-year-old son of a previous unsuccessful opposition candidate, said he had spent more than $80,000 to give voters a choice and try "to awaken the civic conscience of the electorate."

Conference Draws 16,000

Over 16,000 Jehovah's Witnesses from Vancouver Island, the lower mainland and northern United States are expected to attend a conference in Vancouver on July 23.

The four-day Men of Goodwill Assembly will be held in Pacific Coliseum, at the Pacific National Exhibiton grounds in Vancouver.

Two Victoria men are in Vancouver now, helping to organize the convention. Monty Mais, of 1526 Mount Douglas Cross Road, is supervising rooming accommodations, and Archie Kennett, of 604-1701 Cedar Hill Cross Road is overseer of the convention's equipment installations.

Alderman Elected

MISSION (CP) — Former alderman Glen Garry will again sit on the council in this Fraser Valley community after winning a by-election Saturday to fill a seat made vacant by another alderman's death.

IN POLICE COURT

A 26-year-old Youbou man was sentenced to 14 days in jail Saturday and prohibited from driving for four months when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Harold J. Smith was arrested near his car that was partially on the boulevard of Windsor Road at Transit about 2:45 a.m. Saturday.

Court was told that Smith told the investigating officers he was the driver of the car and had been driving too fast resulting in the vehicle running up onto the boulevard.

He had a blood-alcohol content of .19 per cent at the time.

Smith had a previous drinking-driving conviction for which he had been fined $300.

Janet I. Barrett, 34, of 3787 Saanich Road, was fined $50 when she pleaded guilty to assault causing bodily harm.

Baxter Bennett, the bartender at a local pub, testified that the woman threw a glass of beer at him while he was drawing beer about 10 p.m. July 3. He needed nine stitches to close a cut to the head.

The accused said she was provoked into throwing the glass because of the belligerent attitude of Bennett in a dispute concerning the condition of the women's restroom on the premises.

Paul Rochon, 55, of no fixed address, was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty to failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He drove into a parked car on Government Street June 30 causing about $500 damage, court was told, and drove away.

Donald Campbell, 68, of 851 Maddison, was fined $300 on June 24 in provincial court after pledaing guilty to a charge of theft under $50.

Centre Smeared

BERLIN (Reuters) — Vandals have smeared swastikas on the door of a synagogue community centre in West Berlin. Police said swastikas and the words "out with the Jews" were also daubed on the entrance walls of the memorial to Germans hanged fom meat hooks by the Nazis for the abortive 1944 army coup against Hitler.

Oil Strike Reported

TUNIS (Reuters) — An important new oil strike has been made in south Tunisia, the newspaper of the Destourian Socialist party said. The deposit at El Couech, nine miles from the Algerian border, was discovered by the Italo-Tunisian Petroleum Exploration and Production Co.

Hell on Wheels —The Safe Way

By Jack Scott

As a natural-born Walter Mitty I'm forever fascinated by daredevils with ice-water in their veins and nerves of cold steel, an affliction that often takes me out to the Western Speedway where I sit high in the stands — pocketa-pocketa — and wheel my giant Ferrari—pocketa-pocketa—to split-second victory.

Trouble is that this last Saturday out there I invited a couple of the intrepid drivers to join me between races. At the risk of totally disillusioning you, I must say I never in my life met such fraidy-cats.

"It isn't just fear, it's naked terror," said one. "I tell you, the little old lady driver of Victoria has got to be the greatest threat to safe driving since the wheel was invented. You're safer in the Indy 500 then you'll ever be on Douglas Street when the little old ladies are on the road."

"That Island Highway," confessed the second, "has my heart in my throat every mile of the way. All of the major roads on this Island are death traps. Now they're going to make a three-lane highway from Victoria to Nanaimo with that built-in suicide strip down the middle. I tell you, its enough to make you give up driving anywhere except right here on the circuit."

Scott

My guests were Bob Collins, a garage mechanic of 23 who, in an orange-colored, beat-up, souped-up '49 Ford may be seen careening at upwards of 80 miles an hour down a straightaway about the length of a bowling alley, and Fred Best, who, at 24, is an eight-year veteran of the Speedway and whose latest adventure was to go shooting off the track into the primeval forest at better than 100 miles an hour with a jammed throttle. Pocketa-pocketa.

Both men are blandly matter-of-fact about such exploits. They're downright alarmed about the carnage out there on the asphalt and cement tracks that you and I use in such trusting faith day in and day out with none of the safety precautions of roll bars, helmets and harness that protect the Speedway drivers.

Statistically, in fact, they've got a point. More people have been killed in Victoria traffic this year to date than on all the recognized tracks of the world — though it's been a sad year for racing, too.

In its 20-year history, clear back to the dirt track days, the Western Speedway has never had a fatality. Guys are always stepping from the scrap metal of cars all but totally demolished with no more than slight bruises or, the most to date, a broken arm. The great white ambulance is always there. It seldom gets any business.

And it's hard to believe. Watch 30 or more of these fine-tuned many-colored vintage wrecks, all with that curious cant of a frame bent to go in circles at the fastest possible speed, banging, bashing and slamming through 100 laps, and you wonder if there can be any walkaway survivors.

The sound alone — the anguished scream of burning rubber, the snarl, blat, screech, the deep throated roar — makes a little Saturday night corner of hell in a sylvan glade. But the real hell is out there — in the family sedan on the way home.

Why do it? Surely this can't be truly called a sport — going round and round in furious circles?

"Sure, it's a kind of lunacy," Bob Collins will tell you, "but isn't all sport? Isn't hitting a little ball into 18 holes on a pasture a kind of lunacy, too?" And husky Fred Best defines it more narrowly, that sport is a contest, a microcosm of life in which is condensed all the risks, challenges, skills, thrills, disappointments and exaltations of man's endeavor.

For Bob, the mechanic, it is the motor that's at the heart of it. Like Enzo Ferrari the machine to him is not just a machine, but a living, breathing soul, a thing, however inelegant, created to come a little closer to perfection though it may be only three one-hundredths of a second closer.

"When you think you've gone as far as you can go there's always just a little bit more," he explains. "In racing they call it 'the ragged edge', that fine point between brilliant success and total disaster. Speed is the name of the game."

Cool-Aid Plans Hostels, 'Back-to-Nature' Farm

By GINNY GALT

Victoria Cool-Aid is planning to establish a local farm as a "back-to-nature come-down for kids strung out on drugs or themselves", according to the second annual report of the youth-run self-help organization.

The group has had an offer of 38 acres, free, and the organizers are hoping to pursue this offer in the fall with concrete plans for staffing, money and purpose.

The farm proposal goes along with another plan to establish two hostels for youths in Victoria for stays longer than now possible.

A government agency has asked Cool-Aid to open, staff, and control two hostels with a three-month limit on the stay. Each would accommodate up to 14 miles ranging in age from 15 to 25.

Because of the heavy demand on existing Cool-Aid facilities at the Cool-Aid house, 953 Balmoral, and St. John's Parish Hall, a three-night-only policy has to be strictly enforced.

"Most kids stay but one night, and we never see them again. Most people seriously interested in helping themselves can find something in this city within three days. If we didn't have the three-day time limit, the backlog of crashers would be terrific, like sleeping sardines," said the report.

Both the farm and the hostels would be completely autonomous, Cool-Aid-run places.

Cool-Aid has come a long way since the days when all it had was one couch and a telephone.

It was set up on June 10, 1968, after members of Victoria's Youth Council examined the facilities available to young people in Greater Victoria.

They came to the conclusion that there was a great need for a youth-run, youth-oriented, helping organization — if only because so many young people are genuinely afraid of turning to adult-run agencies for help.

"It also became obvious that those professional adult-run agencies weren't able to provide for some of the real needs that young people have," stated the report.

The fact that this organization run by six young people between the ages of 17 and 25 has survived for this long probably indicates something about its role in society.

The report said Cool-Aid seems to work because it is easily accessible to kids. It is open 24 hours a day and is prepared to handle almost any emergency.

They have 15 physicians, five pyschiatrists, four lawyers, 12 dentists, and one dental mechanic willing to provide free emergency service for young people referred to them by Cool-Aid.

They also have the co-operation of Royal Jubilee Hospital emergency ward, and the Victoria and Saanich mental health clinics.

Cool-Aid has the blessings of the provincial welfare department, the four Greater Victoria municipal councils and the local RCMP who regularly send young people to the Cool-Aid house.

Cool-Aid has learned much in the last two years about organizing major sources of support. To get big money, you must offer proof of need, competence, sincerity. The best way to do this is to run a pilot prosect and do it with your own resources, the report said.

Cool-Aid has been getting big money and major sources of support, because its organizers worked hard to get help.

Although Cool-Aid has a lot of friends, it has several critics too.

Cool-Aid invites its friends, critics, and anyone interested in seeing what's happening over there to drop into the house and see for themselves. And that invitation is sincere.

ANNIVERSARY FLIGHT ARRIVES

W.A.C.'s Lobster Didn't Make It

It was stolen from the aptly named plane at Winnipeg airport during a cross-country flight commemorating the 50th anniversary of the first Canadian trans-continental airmail run.

The theft was reported when six aircraft, including some vintage machines, arrived here Sunday.

The delicacy and a bottle of Atlantic seawater were aboard a plane carrying Peter Fisher, president of the Moncton Flying Club; D. S. McClure, club general manager; Dr. D. Steves, regional director of the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association, Atlantic zone, and N. W. Robertson of the Moncton club.

Oldest pilot in the flight which was co-sponsored by the CFCA and the Royal Trust Co. was Varian Green, 74, of Claremont, Calif. With 54 years of flying behind him, Green travelled with his wife, Gwendoline, 69, to meet his squadron leader in 1916 in the Royal Naval Air Service, Wing Commander Robert Leckie. The two had not seen each other in 50 years.

Youngest person to take part in the flight was the 1½-year-old daughter of Bob and Quita Longmore of Regina. The Longmores also had their four-year-old son along in their Stinson 108.

22 HOURS

Fred Mainwood of 5083 Catalina Terrace had clocked 6,388 miles when he touched down at Pat Bay Saturday afternoon. He made the trip to Nova Scotia in his Piper Comanche in 22.05 flying hours, the return run being done in 26.17 flying hours.

Just as in the initial run which began in Halifax in a Fairey seaplane on Oct. 7, 1920, letters were carried to the mayors of the various communities in which the participating planes touched down.

In Kenora, Ont., the mayor said this trip reminded him of the first when he played hookey from school to watch the plane come in.

Two of the oldest machines to take part in the anniversary flight were Castlegar doctor John V. Hall's 1936 WACO *and a Beech Stagger*wing of the same vintage rebuilt by George Le May of Calgary and piloted by Jim Burrows of that city.

Victoria Makes Bid For Games

By STEVE HUME

A committee representing the four core municipalities of Greater Victoria has made an official bid for the Canada Summer Games of 1973.

Jack Morgan, community services and recreation director for Victoria and chairman of the committee, said Sunday a brief bidding for the multi-sport games was submitted Thursday to the provincial government.

The brief is scheduled to be presented to the federal government Aug. 15, Morgan said.

Four other B.C. cities—Kelowna, Kamloops, Prince George and Burnaby — New Westminster—are also bidding for the event.

Initiated in 1969 by the federal government, the Summer Games feature interprovincial championships in some 18 team and individual sports as diverse as marathon running and lawn bowling.

A detailed document of 36 pages, complete with maps, architects' diagrams and facilities and climatological data charts, the brief estimates total expenditures for the games at $1,425,068.

An estimate of $938,000 in operating expenditures is based on actual operating costs of the 1969 games held jointly at Halifax and Dartmouth in Nova Scotia.

A scant $145,000 in revenues is expected from ticket sales and funds invested, but the brief allows for $793,068 in expenditures to be paid by the federal government.

The brief proposes capital expenditures of $632,000 in eight areas for provision of new facilities and upgrading of existing facilities.

Capital costs would be borne jointly by Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and Victoria, with assistance from both federal and provincial governments.

Bulk of the capital costs, $450,000, would be spent on improvement of Centennial Stadium for track and field and Elk Lake for water sports.

According to the brief's estimates, Elk Lake would get $285,000 for construction of a $250,000 pavilion, public announcement systems, dock and floats.

Centennial Stadium would be spruced up with more concessions, fences, and $85,000 worth of new lights for a total upgrading expenditure of $165,000.

With respect to other facilities:

● Capital improvement expenditures of $50,000 are estimated for Macdonald Park, tentatively scheduled for field hockey competition.

● Men's softball, scheduled for either Topaz or Heywood parks, would get $30,000 for lighting and a further $24,000 for seats, public announcement systems, fences and scoreboards.

● Women's softball at Carnarvon Park would get $24,000 for a similar sprucing up.

● Baseball at Saanich's new Lambrick Park layout would receive a $24,000 upgrading.

Facilities Already Adequate

Facilities for lawn bowling, soccer, sailing, swimming, tennis, lacrosse and cycling are considered adequate already, according to the brief.

For soccer the brief offers 20 parks, several with more than one regulation pitch, including the facilities at Royal Athletic Park.

Seven bases for sailing and seven pools for swimmers, including the community swimming complex now under construction at Central Park are proposed.

Tennis could have 10 playing areas with a minimum of 24 courts, according to the brief, while lawn bowling could have five playing areas with a minimum of two greens each.

Lacrosse could have three indoor boxes and five outdoor boxes, including Memorial Arena, and two areas with central routes are proposed for cycling.

Twenty-six parks, each with up to four diamonds, are available for baseball and softball, says the brief.

Capital expenditures are also proposed for the four trap and skeet ranges and seven rifle and pistol ranges available to shooting competition.

The brief estimates $15,000 to improve the Victoria Rod anl Gun Club range for trap shooters.

G. R. Pearkes Arena in Saanich would get $15,000 for improvements necessary for archery competition.

Central locations for most sites is strongly emphasized in the brief, which presents a map indicating that 12 of the 15 areas proposed for competitive activities are within three miles of the city centre.

In 1969, it is pointed out, the area provided accommodation for some 2,283,167 visitors.

A total of 93 hotels and motels yield 3,241 rooms, the brief says, and 53 establishments with 2,615 rooms are located within the city of Victoria.

Accommodation for an expected 2,010 visiting athletes would be split among Canadian Armed Forces bases (900), the University of Victoria (600), University School (160) and other private schools (350).

—Ian McKain

Ottawa to Press Russians For Boat Damage Payment

The federal government will insist on compensation from the Soviet Union for damage to a Canadian fishboat caused by a Russian trawler, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today.

Victoria fisherman Dick Williams, 2771 Shoreline, said a Russian trawler pulled his 48-foot troller by the anchor chain at speeds up to eight knots Saturday before the chain broke. He estimated damage at $300.

Davis said a protest has been sent to the U.S.S.R. The Soviet Union did not offer compensation in similar incidents last fall, he said, but this time Ottawa will insist on it.

The Soviet trawler was one of nine which swept through an area about 20 miles off the west coast of Vancouver Island, where Canadian fishing boats had anchored for the night.

'MOST UPSET'

Davis said the area is outside Canada's fishing limits but "it has been a long-term practice of our people to tie up overnight on the bank."

Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan of British Columbia earlier sent a wire to Davis asking him for action to protect Canadian boats under what he called "the current volatile circumstances."

A spokesman for the Pacific Trollers' Association said fishermen are "most upset" by the incident.

Williams told his wife, Marjorie, over the radio-telephone the boat was dragged first sideways at about four knots and later bow on at eight knots.

'WILD RIDE'

"It was a wild ride and a rude awakening for me."

In Vancouver, the department of fisheries' area fisheries director Robert McLaren said the patrol vessel Tanu was in the area at the time and confirms Williams' report.

McLaren described the Russian trawlers as being "in the order of 200 feet in length," large enough to swamp the many smaller vessels than Williams' that have for years anchored in that area at night.

Water Restrictions In Effect Tuesday

Restrictions on lawn and garden watering will go into effect Tuesday, Greater Victoria Water District announced today.

Domestic users with odd and even house numbers will be allowed to water on odd and even dates, respectively.

Watering is banned between noon and 7:30 p.m. except for school boards and parks departments which can't adjust working hours to the restrictions.

Chief water commissioner Ron Upward* said while the district's five reservoirs are still close to the full mark, restrictions are necessary to guarantee sufficient water next fall.

Lack of rain during July and August could cause a shortage of water during the fall, Upward said.

He said sprinkling uses up 15-20 million gallons daily, about half of the total consumption.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Spare the Cat

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who is over 80, recently returned a book she borrowed from me. In it I found a letter she had written to you but never mailed. My mother is a faithful reader and regards you as a personal friend. I hope you will answer in your column. Her letter:

"Dear Abby: If the traditional three-score-years may be accepted as a natural law, I have already snitched a whole decade. I have but one piece of unfinished business: Suitable disposal of my beloved pet, a cantankerous cat who has been a comfort to me during hours that could have been tedious without his attentive antics. He has warmed the years I have known him.

"If I may, I would like to do this: Should my feline friend live longer than I do, why couldn't he be put gently to sleep, wrapped in his favorite scrap of velvet, and tucked into my casket with me, cremated as I will be, and let the two of us remain cozily together through eternity?)—Faithful Reader"

DEAR FAITHFUL: Let's put it this way. If cats could talk, supposing your cat requested that should he die first, you be gently put to sleep and cremated with him, that the two of you shall remain cozily together through eternity. Perhaps you'd agree. But should you desire to linger a little longer among the mortals, you could have your say. Your feline friend cannot. Let nature decide.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are planning our daughter's wedding next month. For the reception we have ordered ham. Among the guests will be a couple who are Jewish. I have been told that most people of the Jewish faith do not eat pork products. My problem: Should I approach these people several weeks before the wedding and ask them if they would prefer some other kind of meat? Or should I ask the caterer to prepare something else for them? Or is there perhaps some other way? Wondering

DEAR WONDERING: I think your Jewish friends would be embarrassed were you to make an issue of it. Ask the caterer to have a little fish handy. (P.S. The substitutions may run you an extra fin.)

DEAR ABBY: I think the wife who was mad because her husband's office girls gave him a birthday cake was foolishly upset. And her children would not have been hurt if she had taken the right attitude.

She should have said, "How nice! Now Daddy can have two birthday cakes. Isn't it lovely that Daddy's office girls think that much of Daddy to have a birthday cake for him at the office?"

My husband is a doctor and his nurses always have a cake for him at the hospital on his birthday, and I think it's great. I still have a cake for him at home.

On our son's first birthday, he had three cakes. I baked one for him and so did both of his grandmothers. Nobody was hurt or angry. He had that much more fun blowing out his one little candle three times. Love From Cleveland

Happy Honeymoon Proves Nothing at All

By JACQUIN SANDERS

"The only people who benefit from honeymoons," says a lady who has been on three, "are the travel agents."

For reasons steeped in tradition and illogicality, the first thing a man does with his new wife is to run off with her — to the sea or at least the seashore, to the mountains, to foreign lands, to the country if he lives in the city, to the city if he lives in the country.

All too often, this is no way to approach so abrupt a change in life as marriage. Though the "bestial" husband is only a Victorian myth and the "ravenous" wife merely the figment of a Frenchman's imagination, the adjustments that must be made during the first days of the wedded state are considerable. And unfamiliar surroundings are often no help.

"It's sad to relate," a British Medical Association handbook relates "that the earliest quarrel is often the honeymoon quarrel."

Dr. William Edwards, author of the handbook, cautions against honeymoons. Instead, he recommends a quick drink, a night on the town "and back to work next day to regain a little sanity."

Yet the honeymoon tradition goes deep and the rules have long been formalized. Emily Post, the great arbiter of bygone decorum set the standards some time ago. Typically, she was unconcerned about what exactly should go on during a honeymoon, but she left no doubt to who should pay for it.

"It is unthinkable," said Miss Post, "for the bride to defray the least fraction of the cost of the wedding journey, no matter though she have millions in her own right, and he be earning ten dollars a week. He must save up his ten dollars as long as necessary."

Under only one condition was Miss Post willing to relax her stern dictum: "If her father or other member of the family offers the use of a yacht or private railway car, the groom may accept."

A contemporary and considerably more permissive etiquette mistress, Amy Vanderbilt, still considers that the honeymoon is the groom's financial responsibility. But she allows that the entire wedding trip makes an acceptable gift from either of the happy couple's parents.

In fact, Miss Vanderbilt seems to have only one firm prohibition: "Neither partner should take along a pet on a honeymoon. Pets can be jealous creatures — and provoke jealousy."

The main change in honeymoons is in their comparative brevity. Until about 100 years ago, the wedding trip in the U.S. was a matter of months, not days or weeks. And often among the affluent, the entire wedding party would go along for the first festive period.

For the poor, of course, there was usually no honeymoon at all.

It's all markedly different now. In the age of the credit card, almost everybody can afford a wedding trip. All too frequently, though, a couple's first installment payments are not for a house or a car, but for a honeymoon.

Indeed, the entire process is considerably less formal today. Modern couples simply pack up some resort clothes, suntan oil and a sex manual — and off they go. Very often, in this era of the sexual revolution, the manual is not necessary.

Informality is indeed the byword on many modern honeymoons. In fact, honeymoon camping trips are even coming into fashion — with results which often fall short of total bliss. "I learned the mysteries of love in a sleeping bag — I didn't like them." says a ruefil young matron from Greenwich, Conn.

For the more conservative, there is always The Poconos. This resort area in northeaster Pennsylvania has some 25 love nests catering to 115,000 honeymooners annually.

The individual resorts are a bewildering conglomeration of Playboy "sophistication" and Y.M.C.A. heartiness. The rooms run to circular beds, lavender lighting and thick maroon carpeting which goes right up the walls to the ceilings. Bathrooms are often larger than bedrooms, with sunken tubs, chaise lounges and golden mirrors.

But once out of nuptial suites, athletics rule the day. At the Pocono Gardens, for example, the management likes to see all the guests turn out for volleyball at 10 a.m. If a couple fails to appear, Ed, the muscular athletic director, gathers a pack of newlyweds and leads the way to the missing honeymooners' cottage. He then leads a chant:

Stretch A Cup Of Berries

This is the time of year when friends drop in. There's usually enough on hand for a salad but what do you do to make a cup of berries serve six? Easy!

STRAWBERRY WHIP

1 cup sliced strawberries or raspberries.

¾ cup white sugar.

The white of one egg.

Put all together in a large bowl and beat until peaks form. This is also ideal as a frosting for an angel food cake.

This is also delicious as a frozen dessert. Freeze immediately after beating.

Shopping Centre Planners Finally Consult Women

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ideal shopping centre, in some viewpoints including mine, is one where someone else does the walking and the looking. And, the paying.

Many centres are far from this ideal obviously, but the foresighted ones are working to simplify the necessary chores with improved layouts, more parking areas, shop spacing and the like.

The problem is that the men usually plan the shopping centres, and women, who do most of the buying, don't always have a say.

One thing the girls would like, for instnace, is a maximum of parking space "very close" to stores. Another: A central place to deposit, gather and pick up parcels. They'd like to be able to walk from their cars to stores, indoors, have baby-sitting service while mother shops, and know that easily accessible and plain-to-see telephones were plentiful.

These were the "most wanted" features in a study of four huge shopping centres and talks with 250 women shoppers at each.

Three "runners-up" on the most wanted among the 1,000 women were: A quiet place to have a leisurely cup of coffee, a hairdresser, and a chart in food markets to indicate the comparative value of contents by price per ounce.

This last request apparently reflects the new "consumerism," for even though making this request, the shoppers also indicated that their purchases are determined more by family needs and shelf space than by the money such a chart could save.

A New York firm underwrote the study as a guideline for its job as a consulting organization in design, planning, development, financing and leasing regional shopping centres.

There were eight other shopper requests, although mentioned less frequently than the others.

They asked for longer store hours, free use of baby strollers or carriages in a centre, a "fine" or "good" restaurant, a movie theater, several stategically located mail boxes, a bank for cashing cheques, and a charge account that all stores in a centre would accept.

"All in all, we consider this survey worthwhile," said a spokesman for the firm.

"It really is the only way to find out what women are looking for, even the one woman who said she believes the entire continental United States should be one large fully enclosed shopping mall."

By MARY ANN CRENSHAW

NEW YORK — Do you know "The Ape"?

It's not the latest dance craze or a science-fiction movie, but a scraggly, shaggy haircut that's turning up on socialites, secretaries, movie actresses and rock-groups.

Short on top (at times, almost crew cut), long and shaggy at the sides and back, the haircut looks like the offspring of Mick Jagger and Raggedy Ann.

In fact, Mick and his ilk may have started it in London, but it soon turned up here in such places as Mrs. Lovitt's Hair Shoppe and is now being cut at such Establishment establishments as Kenneth's.

The cut, named by youngsters who saw in it a resemblance to an ape's natural style, is meant to be put into place with nothing more than a brush and a hand-held dryer. In short, it's every woman's dream.

Peripatetic Mrs. Anthony Mazzola, whose husband is editor-in-chief of Town and Country, has her honey-blonde hair cut into this non-hairdo by Henry Bendel's chief crimper-in-residence, Paul Mitchell.

Mrs. Mazzola vows that she will never go back to the "tons of wigs" she used to drag about with her on her travels. She has her non-hairdo cut once-over-lightly every six weeks, she says, and never needs help from Mitchell between haircuts.

At Mrs. Lovitt's, the instruction (to men, too, since the cut is not restricted to women) is "come back in six months."

At Kenneth's, Kenneth himself recently cut and hand-dried the hair of Mrs. William Phipps, who then set off on a six-month jaunt around the world, confidently armed with nothing more than a hand-dryer and a set of heat-up curlers.

Vidal Sassson, the English crimper whose revolutionary haircutting techniques made the cut possible, has his own version of it, which he describes as "just hair, growing."

Last Fashion Bastion Falls

HENLEY-ON-THAMES (AP) — Women in trousers invaded the steward's enclosure at Britain's 134-year-old Henley Royal Regatta Friday.

The last bastion of stuffy English tradition fell by the wayside and joined Royal Ascot and the garden parties at Buckingham Palace as a place where almost — well almost — anything goes.

Organizers of last year's regatta created a stir when they banned two girls in trouser suits. The girls promptly took off their trousers and were allowed into the enclosure in mini-dresses improvised from their suit tops.

"You can't call us antediluvian any more," said a regatta spokesman, "so long as the clothes are respectable, they can come in."

"No we won't allow bare navels."

How about see-through dresses?

"We will have to wait and see," said the official, looking decidely uncomfortable.

Sandbox In the Park

Photostory by Barbara McFadden

Who needs TV on a sunny day?

Water is still the best refresher of all . . . and it's free, as Steven Simmons, 7, (centre above) discovered. David Leek, 9, waits his turn at the tap.

NAME OF THE GAME. 9 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Island of Gold and Precious Stones. Jeff Dillon and Peggy try to discover what happened to the fortunes of one of the world's wealthiest men, after his death. To do this, they visit the man's disgruntled relatives.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

A good example of how a scientific physician has found the cause and treatment of a disease, was given by the great physician, Sir William Osler, in his marvelous book written long years ago, "The Evolution of Modern Medicine." He wrote, "A couple of years ago in Philadelphia and other parts of the United States, a peculiar disease appeared, characterized by a rash on the skin, a little fever and a good deal of physical discomfort. The disease appeared first among persons living in boarding-houses, along the docks. It caused a great deal of suffering and disability."

Dr. Osler went on to tell how science evolved through the centuries until, with the coming of the twentieth century, scientists developed more effective ways with which to study disease. The scientific handling of this epidemic was an example. First, scientists made a careful study to see what detail was common to all of the people who were stricken, and the doctors soon found that all of the afflicted people had used straw mattresses that had been manufactured by a few firms which had obtained their straw from one source. Next, one of the investigators exposed his bare arm, up to the shoulder, for an hour, between two of the mattresses, while other volunteers applied some siftings from the straw to their bare arms. In all these cases, the rash quickly developed, proving that something in the straw was responsible for the disease. When the doctors used heat to disinfect the sifting from the straw, the material no longer caused irritation of the skin.

Then a study of the siftings, with a microscope, showed hundreds of tiny mites which, when put on a person's skin, quickly produced the eruption. When the mattresses and supplies of straw were sterilized, that was the end of the epidemic.

Osler pointed out that this approach is a far cry from the way such an epidemic would have been handled, say, in the Middle Ages. Then, it would have been accepted as a visitation of God — a chastening affliction sent from above, and religious people would probably have tried to appease God in some way. Bonfires would have been built in the streets. The doctors would have bled their patients. In more recent centuries, an old herb doctor might have tried herbs, and another type of doctor might have tried to straighten out the spines of the sick people.

When, in 1348, the terrible Black Plague struck several parts of the world, killing 60,000,000 human beings, about all the medical authorities could think of to do was to pray. No one in that day could imagine that the dread disease was due to microscopic bacteria that were being carried to the people by infected fleas that had jumped off of the diseased rats that were dying by the thousands in the houses and in the streets of the afflicted cities.

Many years later, when the Black Plague was raging in India, an able physician got a bright idea. When a number of people in a hut had died of the disease, the doctor left on the floor of the room a cage containing a few guinea pigs. As soon as the fleas, which had left the dying Hindus, got to the cage, the animals got the plague and promptly died. But when a cage containing guinea pigs was suspednded far enough above the floor so that the fleas could not jump up and reach them, none of the animals became disease-producing organisms.

It was a Dutch draper named Leeuwenhoek, who around 1700, with the microscopes he made, was the first man in the world to see bacteria. 170 years later, the great Pasteur began to show that bacteria cause many infectious and contagious diseases.

A marvelous way to save the lives of millions of people was discovered about 1798, when, in England, the great Dr. William Jenner learned from milkmaids that if they contracted a mild disease from the ulcerated udders of cows, they never had to worry about contracting the awful small-pox, which year after year raged through Europe in great epidemics that killed thousands of people.

Dr. Jenner vaccinated people with the mild "cow-pox", and soon that procedure nearly wiped out smallpox in highly civilized countries. For years now, we haven't had a single epidemic of smallpox on this continent, although every year we have a "close call" with some sick person who flies in from Asia or Africa and exposes many people to the disease.

Few people today know that until 1899, almost every summer, terrible epidemics of yellow fever used to kill thousands of our people in our great seaports, all the way from Galveston and new Orleans up to New York City. No one knew what the cause of the disease was. Then a very able U.S. physician, Walter Reed, together with Doctors Carroll Lazear and Agramonte, working in Havana, showed that the dread "yellow jack" was due to some miscroscopic organism transmitted from one infected person to another by a special variety of mosquito. Then the tiny larvae, or "wrigglers" that live in water, were systematically killed off, and that put an end to yellow fever in most countries.

INTERESTING AND VERY PRIVATE NEW ORIGINAL DESIGN 10 MILE POINT

How do you achieve a high standard of PRIVACY in a home? First you find a quiet street — and a good sized treed lot. Then you design a house keeping in mind the feature of PRIVACY. Include a gardenx court, shielded from the outside. Then you enclose a porch where the owner and his friends can enjoy this court. Make the entrance interesting with a hand carved door and stained glass. Use an intercom system which you can use to answer the door without attending it (also use this system to send music to individual rooms in the house). Off the entrance provide a large private living room which meets our PRIVACY requirement by being peninsular and locate it on a different level from all other rooms. This room is to have its own individuality — large open beams — a soaring 20 foot ceiling accented by a stone fireplace, carved wood railings. Then the family area — beamed ceiling, sliding door to the patio overlooking the very PRIVATE rear yard of giant firs. The kitchen must be very PRIVATE — for mother only. A U-shaped working area of beautiful walnut cabinets, her own desk, beamed ceiling and a place where no one can disturb or disrupt her work. Plants for Arid Conditions

By HILDA BEASTALL

Soil less than an inch deep over rocks in full sun and wind is likely to create problems for any gardener. What he would like to grow must be tempered by what will endure these blistering conditions, for summer and winter they are less than ideal.

Hilda

First we think of flowering annuals which belong to arid areas of the world, and come up with two brilliant kinds needing hot, sunny and dry conditions before they will bloom.

One is often tried here under the name of Livingstone-daisy or Ice-plant. Properly it is Mesembryanthemum criniflorum, and by this name you will get exactly the plants as described.

Only six inches high with dark green thick leaves, these little South African natives are well able to stand both wind and drought, for the succulent growth gives up its moisturs very slowly.

Inch and a half wide daisy flowers are also succulent stemmed reservoirs of moisture in hot weather. They lie close to the leaves, creating a mat of all colors except blues.

Take a look at a small planting of these at Saxe Point Park, Esquimalt, just over the retaining wall at the parking area, on top of the rock bluffs.

Seed can be sown outdoors at the end of May, or started in flats indoors earlier for transferring outdoors when frosts are no longer likely.

Enemies of mesembryanthemums are water, rich soil, shade and fertilizer. Giving any or all of these will kill the plants.

The second plant for summer color in thin soil and full sun is similar in some ways but has a softer look. Portulaca, sometimes called Moss-rose, comes from Venezuela in South America.

We see it occasionally offered by the flat for sale in spring for transplanting. The flowers may be either single or double and do indeed resemble tiny roses.

Both plants can be sown in late May outdoors. In June, light sprinklings of water will be needed to aid germination and to get roots started, but never saturate, or water heavily. The display of color will continue until frost.

Both are summer annuals only, needing replacement each year, but their rich colors and ease of culture make them worth while for difficult hot spots.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

In the deal presented today, our West defender made an excellent deceptive play which resulted in declarer's demise. However, in the post-mortem analysis, it was revealed that declarer should have made his contract. The deal arose in a recent top-echelon rubber-bridge game.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West

3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

After dummy had ruffed the opening club lead, a low trump was led, South finessing his jack. Nochalantly, West followed suit with the trump five. Convinced that East possessed the trump queen, declarer next led the trump nine to dummy's ace. Great was his dismay when East discarded a club on this trick.

At this point, declarer really had no choice but to try to make as many tricks as possible. He re-entered the South hand via the diamond jack and ruffed a club with dummy's last trump. He then started to run dummy's diamonds, but West ruffed the third lead of the suit. The defenders then cashed two club tricks; and, in time, they also made a heart trick, thus sending declarer down to a one-trick defeat.

Had West taken his trump queen at trick two, declarer would have fulfilled his contract with ease. Upon regaining the lead at trick three, he would have been able to pick up West's three remaining trumps; and, in all probability, he would have ended up making 11 tricks (by ruffing another club).

And yet declarer could have fulfilled his contract despite West's refusal to take the trump queen. At trick three, when South led his trump nine and West followed with the seven, declarer should have played the board's SIX-SPOT!

With the nine winning, another trump would be led to dummy's ace, leaving West with the queen. The South hand would then have been re-entered via the heart ace, after which the king of trumps would have picked up West's queen.

Dummy's five diamonds would now be cashed. At the end, two tricks would be conceded to the defenders. And what a story South would have been able to tell: how he finessed both East and West for the trump queen — and successfully each time!

"Were there many at the meeting?" asked Sally. "George expected about sixty to turn up."

"That's George," Bob smiled. "In fact, if there had been twice as many again, and half as many again, and then half a man more, there would have been sixty."

How many, then?

Lions Maul Zoo Visitor In Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Roger Dean Adams, 19, fell into the lion den at the Portland Zoo Saturday night and was mauled to death by two adult lions.

Police said Adams, of Portland, and two other young men were walking on a railing around the lion den. A broken wine bottle was found in the pit where Adams fell, they said.

A ticket taker had completed his last run on the Portland Zoo Railway when he heard calls for help. He called police and firemen.

The medical examiner said death may have been caused by a punctured carotid artery, a major blood vessel in the neck.

It was the first fatal accident in the zoo's 50-year history.

A zoo attendant said lions usually are frightened by commotion around their den, but they may have regarded someone in the pit "as a toy."

Firemen shined lights into the pit and frightened the lions into returning to their enclosed quarters so rescuers could pull Adams' body out.

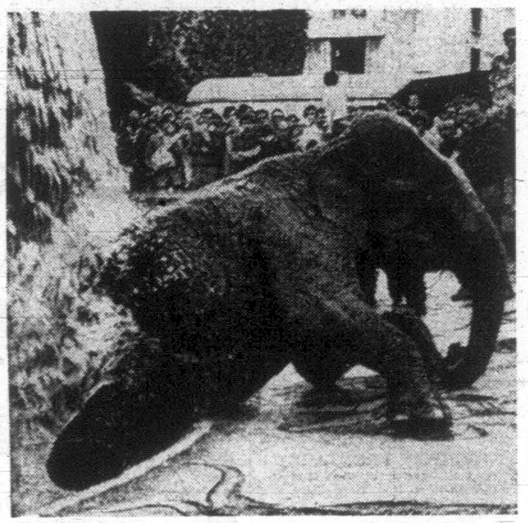
Boy Sets Record

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A 13-year-old Baltimore boy claimed a world record for going nowhere. Bobbie Kemp stepped off the ferris wheel at Gwynn Oak amusement park after 15 days and nights in stationary orbit and said he had bested the record by a day.



BATHING is prohibited in Italian fountains but an exception was made for elephant of a circus that had pitched its tents at Terni in central Italy. It could be nobody wanted to take on the job of removing the big fellow. (AP Wirephoto.)

Satellite Contract Rejection Feared

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Diefenbaker administration's disastrous decision to cancel the Arrow fighter program could be repeated in Canada's space program if the Trudeau administration follows the same reasoning, it was warned today.

He was asked for his comments on reports of a secret recommendation by Telesat Canada Corp. that the cabinet reject a Canadian bid for building the satellite in favor of a cheaper bid by a U.S. Company.

MAJOR INVESTMENT

Solandt pointed out that Canada has developed space and satellite competence regarded by some U.S. authorities as the third best in the world. It required a major investment of research effort and money sicne the 1940s.

"I think it would be complete madness to throw all that away," he said.

"I don't think Canadians want to be hewers of wood and drawers of water always," he added.

Solandt said space technology was one of the leading skills offering major growth potential to the future of an economy.

He suggested that the Canadian space community would be shattered by a decision against building the crown corporation's satellites in Canada.

REFLECTS ARROW

Although he didn't refer to it directly, his arguments reflected the outcome of the decision to scrap the Canadian-developed Arrow in the late fifties which virtually killed a burgeoning Canadian industry in advanced jet aircraft in favor of buying the controversial Bomarc missiles from the U.S. to save some money.

The question was prompted by reports last month that the Telesat Corporation's board had recommended Communications Minister Eric Kierans seek cabinet approval to accept a bid of about $30 million by the Hughes Aircraft Co. of California to build two communications satellites with 12 channels each.

These would be able to relay one television program or 1,000 telephone calls on each channel.

The Canadian bidder is RCA Ltd. of Montreal which is understood to have bid about $43 million to put up six-channel satellites.

RCA employs about 1,200 persons in Montreal now.

Greybeard Leading To Maui

Lol Kilam's 73-foot ketch Greybeard slipped into the lead again as Celeste and Eha Makani followed close behind at Sunday's position check in the 2,300-mile Victoria to Maui yacht race.

The Vancouver boat, which had held the lead off and on since the race began Wednesday, was reported off the northern California coast 565 miles from the start. It had 1,735 miles to complete.

The 58-foot yawl Celeste, skippered by G. W. Scrimshaw of Vancouver, had held the lead at Saturday's check but began to slip behind in eight- to 10-knot winds. Skies were sunny.

At Sunday's check, this was the order (Saturday's position bracketed):

1. Greybeard (3); 2. Celeste (1); 3. Eha Makani (18); 4. Drummer Boy (19); 5. Porpoise III (8); 6. Hasty (9); 7. Aukele (6); 8. Scotch Mist (22); 9. Long Gone (7); 10. Six Pack (6); 11. A combination of lightning, human carelessness and tinder-dry forests caused 152 new fires throughout the province over the weekend, B.C. Forest Service reported today.

An estimated 210 fires now are burning, a spokesman in Victoria said, but all are under control and some will be out by tonight.

There were eight new spot fires on Vancouver Island, but it is expected they will quickly be put out.

McKENZIE'S PLACE

Old-Fashioned Hospitality Alive and Well

By ELIZABETH FORBES

When did you last eat Sunday dinner on a farm? I mean a place where you drive in from the road, through the barnyard and around to the rear of the house. Where you meet your hosts at a friendly back door and are first ushered into the big kitchen where savory smells make you realize you are hungry.

Forbes

Then briefly you're in the dining room where a long table is set and waiting. Next it's the high ceilinged "parlor" and finally you're out on the shady front "porch," running the length of the house, to "sit where its cool until supper is ready."

That's what happened to me when I was in the Comox Valley recently and Bill and Rose McKenzie invited me to eat with them on a Sunday evening.

Bill McKenzie is a grandson of Comox pioneers Sam and Florence Cliffe, friendly hosts at the old Lorne Hotel in the years 1883 to about 1913. The farm where he lives today on the outskirts of Comox Village, is the one his father cleared and planted; the house is the one his father built.

Hospitality is their middle name. The kind that is rooted in old-time ways and old-time days.

Sitting on the McKenzie's shady front porch that Sunday, the talk ranged leisurely from the amount of hay he had cut that day, through his memories of early times in the Comox Valley and back to the work entailed in maintaining a farm like his today.

The house sits on a high knoll shaded from the road by a row of tall trees. From the porch we looked down hill to a meadow where hay was drying golden yellow. To the right we could see fruit trees. Still further around was the vegetable garden.

Beyond that were the chickens, a special responsibility of the McKenzie's daughter Wilma. Beyond that again, more fields and fruit trees.

Far off over the tops of the trees we could see Vancouver Island's Beaufort range of mountains. The setting sun touched the snowy peaks with pink and mauve and blue.

It was still and warm after the heat of that summer day. A bird called sleepily from a bush just beyond the porch.

Suddenly a blast of air whipped up from the meadows, tossed the tops of the trees into a moment's frenzied motion, slammed the door behind us back against the wall and tore through the house, tossing loose papers ahead of it.

Bill McKenzie stood up. His deeply tanned face was serious. His eyes searched the fields. The woods beyond.

"That's a fire wind," he said.

Nothing more was needed to make us realize that here was one big worry in maintaining a farm during the long hot days of a dry summer.

Just then Rose McKenzie called us to the long dining room table. She sat at the foot, Bill at the head, and the rest of us in between.

When we were settled that big man, his work-hardened hands folded and his deep-set friendly eyes closed, said the grace. It was very quiet in the cool dining room with its old-time sideboard and its windows full of plants.

Then plates were passed. They came back heaped with food. New beets, carrots, potatoes, cauliflower and peas, all fresh from the kitchen garden. Beef so tender it almost melted under knife and fork. And to top it off, strawberry shortcake.

As we ate, Bill kept a careful eye on our plates until he was satisfied we were enjoying the food.

"I can tell," he assured me. "If people mess around with their knives and forks I know they are not happy. If they dig right in and eat, then I'm satisfied."

He didn't need to worry that Sunday night. We "dug right in."

You're envious? I don't blame you!

Sunday dinner (or supper as they named it) at the McKenzie farm on the Comox Peninsula is something to remember. Not only for the good food but for the friends you find there.

(Times News Services)

MONTREAL — By early Sunday afternoon, the only indication that disaster had overtaken Flight 621 originating here was a small handwritten sign directing relatives to a special lounge.

Earlier, many of the people waiting still could not believe it and nervously awaited specific confirmation of the deaths. Others insisted on being taken to the crash site.

The airline installed extra telephones to handle outgoing calls to relatives and arranged transportation to either Montreal or Toronto.

Champagne and Roses Start Death Flight

TORONTO (CP) — There was soft music, a bouquet of red roses and perfect flying weather as the four stewardesses of Air Canada's flight 621 welcomed their passengers aboard the Los Angeles-bound Super DC-8 Sunday.

The time was 7:20 a.m. and the flight the sales agents call the "connoisseur flight"—because of the wine and champagne served aboard—was loading 99 passengers at Montreal International Airport.

In the cockpit Captain Peter Hamilton, a veteran airline pilot who had been with Air Canada for more than 20 years, went through his pre-flight drill with the confidence born of long experience and the knowledge that his aircraft was one of the newest in Air Canada's fleet. It was delivered April 24 and had flown fewer than 450 hours.

After takeoff the passengers settled down to breakfast: Baked ham and scrambled eggs in economy class, an alternative omelette and corn flakes on the first-class menu.

Flying in brilliant sunshine with perfect visibility Flight 621 climbed northwest to 27,000 feet over Ottawa. Cruising at 550 miles an hour the aircraft passed over Peterborough, Ont., and began its slow descent toward Toronto where another 100 passengers were waiting to board.

The time was 8:05 a.m. It had been a textbook flight and approach and the huge jet was cleared for touchdown five minutes ahead of schedule.

Then disaster struck. As Flight 621 touched the ground, for reasons still unknown, an engine broke away. The jet roared into the air again, heading northeast. Flight 621 had three minutes to live.

The ground controller guiding the touchdown called urgently: "He's lost an engine . . . He's lost another . . . he's going down. . . ."

In a farmer's field seven miles from the airport the DC-8 lay scattered in thousands of pieces. The wreckage hissed and steamed gently. There were no cries, no screams.

The 99 passengers, the nine crew aboard the "connoisseur flight" were dead.

Satellite Contract Rejection Feared

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Diefenbaker administration's disastrous decision to cancel the Arrow fighter program could be repeated in Canada's space program if the Trudeau administration follows the same reasoning, it was warned today.

He was asked for his comments on reports of a secret recommendation by Telesat Canada Corp. that the cabinet reject a Canadian bid for building the satellite in favor of a cheaper bid by a U.S. Company.

MAJOR INVESTMENT

Solandt pointed out that Canada has developed space and satellite competence regarded by some U.S. authorities as the third best in the world. It required a major investment of research effort and money sicne the 1940s.

"I think it would be complete madness to throw all that away," he said.

"I don't think Canadians want to be hewers of wood and drawers of water always," he added.

Solandt said space technology was one of the leading skills offering major growth potential to the future of an economy.

He suggested that the Canadian space community would be shattered by a decision against building the crown corporation's satellites in Canada.

REFLECTS ARROW

Although he didn't refer to it directly, his arguments reflected the outcome of the decision to scrap the Canadian-developed Arrow in the late fifties which virtually killed a burgeoning Canadian industry in advanced jet aircraft in favor of buying the controversial Bomarc missiles from the U.S. to save some money.

The question was prompted by reports last month that the Telesat Corporation's board had recommended Communications Minister Eric Kierans seek cabinet approval to accept a bid of about $30 million by the Hughes Aircraft Co. of California to build two communications satellites with 12 channels each.

These would be able to relay one television program or 1,000 telephone calls on each channel.

The Canadian bidder is RCA Ltd. of Montreal which is understood to have bid about $43 million to put up six-channel satellites.

RCA employs about 1,200 persons in Montreal now.

SIHANOUK SENTENCED TO DEATH

SAIGON (AP) — A five-man tribunal sentenced Prince Norodom Sihanouk, former Cambodian chief of state, to death in absentia Sunday for crimes against the state.

The judge added that the penalty for these crimes, together with that of corruption, was death, loss of citizenship and forefeiture of property.

Post Offices to Begin Regional Lockouts

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmasters across the country have been authorized by the government to close down local operations if they feel recurring strikes and backlogs of mail have rendered adequate service impossible.

Sources confirmed today that the postmasters were notified during the weekend to be ready to take action at any time.

They said, however, that a decision to close would be left entirely in the hands of local officials.

The new governmnt tactic is a long-delayed response to rotating strikes organized by the Council of Postal Unions in the contract dispute that has distrupted post office service for more than a month.

IWA TALKS

Meanwhile, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today entered the deadlocked dispute between the Internatioal Woodworkers of America and British Columbia's coastal forest industry, holding separate meetings with both sides.

This morning he sat down for closed face-to-face talks in Vancouver with IWA negotiators and at 2:30 p.m. he met with John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., bargaining agent for the 116 companies involved in the contract dispute.

No statement was issued on the success or failure of either session.

Billings this morning declined speculation on the degree of involvement the attorney-general is likely to allow himself in the stalled negotiations between FIR and the IWA.

No talks have been held since June 26 and provincially-appointed mediator Clive McKee withdraw at the end of his term of responsibility Friday saying no progress was being made.

"We've made a firm, serious offer that we want the public and our employees to know about," he said.

He also avoided direct comment on suggestions a

ROOM FOR CHEF —NONE FOR PM

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau had to borrow an apartment for his visit here Sunday because the new three-storey Frobisher Inn was filled for the weekend by the Royal Family and its party. (See also Page 2)

All 50 of the $25-a-day rooms were reserved for the royal party, which includes a man described as a travelling yoeman.

Four waitresses from a restaurant in Montreal-Ruby Foo's were flown the 1,000 miles to Frobisher to serve the Royal Family and chef Robert Orsi of Alliston, Ont., Nottawasaga Inn, also was brought here.

Practically all the food in Frobisher, a settlement on Baffin Island, is imported except local delicacies such as caribou, grayling, Arctic char and seal meat.

An apple costs 25 cents, a loaf of bread or a head of lettuce $1, a bottle of beer 85 cents.

But the wages are good and some of the 1,200 Eskimos earn as much as $8,500 a year.

British Army to Probe Belfast Looting Charges

Times News Services

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — The British Army today set up a special office to investigate charges of looting and brutality against British troops during weekend rioting in the Roman Catholic area of Belfast where three persons were killed.

In London, Lord Balniel, minister of state in the defense ministry, told Parliament the government would investigate reports of looting by British troops if specific charges were made. He put the death toll at three civilians killed and said 57 civilians and 15 soldiers were wounded.

The area was quiet today but a Catholic member of the Ulster Parliament predicted all-out war with Protestants this summer.

In Dublin, meanwhile, total disarmament of civilians in Norlthern Ireland and protection for the Roman Catholic minority has been demanded by the government of the Republic of Ireland.

A statement issued after a cabinet meeting Sunday night by the Dublin government charged Northern authorities with concentrating only on the Catholic minority areas of strife-torn Belfast in their search for arms.

The bitter complaints came from the Roman Catholic Falls Road area where troops enforced a curfew and conducted a house-to-house arms search, following three deaths in rioting Friday night and Saturday.

Gerry Pitt, member of the British Parliament for West Belfast, said he had collected about 100 complaints of alleged looting and damage by soldiers. He promised to raise the issue in London with Home Secretary Reginald Maudling and in the House of Commons this week.

Allegations against the troops included taking money,

Plane Landed —Then Took Off

TORONTO (CP) — Investigators today began a painstaking reconstruction of the last minutes of Air Canada Flight 621 in an effort to determine the cause of Sunday's crash which killed all 108 persons aboard.

The Super DC-8 jet crashed only 75 feet from a farmhouse 3¾ miles north of Toronto International Airport after it touched the runway briefly and took off again when an engine dropped off.

It was to have made a brief stopover on a flight to Los Angeles from Montreal.

Canada's Second-Worst

The victims of the second worst air disaster in Canada's history included 75 paying passengers, most of them from Quebec and California, two infants, 22 Air Canada employees and a crew of nine.

"Everything was silent except for a hissing sound coming out of the hole," said farmer Sytze Burgsma, the first witness on the scene after the four-engine plane crashed in his vegetable patch at 8:10 a.m.

"There was no screams or anything like that."

PIECES SMALL

A shoe, part of a stewardess's uniform, a child's doll and a 20-foot piece of wingtip were among the few recognizable pieces of debris scattered in the fields and trees around a scorched hole 35 feet wide and up to seven feet deep.

W. M. House of the federal department of transport, who is heading the investigation, said tapes from the plane's flight recorder, found at the crash site, are being studied for clues.

Teams of investigators were set up to study control tower tape recordings of conversation with the pilot, Capt. Peter Hamilton of Montreal, interview eyewitnesses and examine the wreckage.

An Air Canada spokesman noted that many of the passengers were Americans returning home on the holiday weekend, but that even so the plane was not carrying its peak load of 198 passengers.

"Yesterday (Saturday) or tomorrow (Monday), it would have been full," he said.

There were conflicting reports of what happened at the airport when the giant jet—a stretched version of the DC-8—made its landing approach to runway 32 in near-perfect flying weather.

FIRE REPORTED

Ground control officials and police were quoted as saying the pilot had radioed that one of his starboard engines was on fire, and that the control tower had ordered him to gain altitude and jettison fuel.

But Mr. House, although confirming that there had been a fire, said it had not yet been determined whether it occurred before, during or after the landing attempt.

An Air Canada spokesman said there were no emergency messages from the plane at any time and that the aircraft made a normal approach.

A department of transport official at the airport said the pilot informed the control tower that he was executing a missed approach—meaning he was aborting the landing attempt and would try again.

The plane apparently rolled a short distance along the runway—some witnesses said it bounced on the runway—and then began what appeared to be a normal takeoff.

But while in the air over the runway, the outside starboard engine dropped to the ground. Minutes later and just before the crash, the inside starboard engine and 15-foot length of wingtip fell 100 yards apart into farm fields.

CAME APART IN AIR

All the eyewitness reports agreed that the plane was trailing flames and smoke and dropping pieces of debris as it left the area of the airport and that it then "nosedived right down," as eyewitness Michael Matyas described the final descent.

About 200 policemen under the direction of the provincial police sealed off a four-square-mile area round the crash site as investigators from the department of transport and Air Canada moved in.

facturers of the DC-8, were to join the investigation.

Two refrigeration trucks were called in to help a Canadian Armed Forces helicopter remove the bodies to a sports arena at the nearby community of Woodbridge.

The arena was used as a temporary morgue while pathologists, dentists and document experts began identification procedures.

At the airport, other passengers due to board Flight 621 stood in stunned silence with friends and relatives who had come to see them off.

GIRLS MISS DEATH

An alternate flight took off at 10:25 a.m.—two hours and 10 minutes after the crash. Among the passengers were two daughters of Bill Ironstone who witnessed the crash from the airport observation deck.

He put his two girls on the alternate flight and said:

"It could have happened to any plane. It was just coincidence."

At the Burgama home, John Burgsma, 19, described how he saw the crippled plane come down toward the house where his parents and seven of his brothers and sisters were still sleeping.

"I figured we were goners. I went out but I saw nothing at all. They didn't have a chance."

Mr. Burgsma, whose wife Janna is expecting her 11th child, said the impact of the crash shook the house and smashed windows.

GOLFER WATCHED

Garry Hyrchuk of Toronto was part of a group of golfers who watched the plane from a nearby golf course as it "flipped over and went straight down like a heavy rock."

"You hear about these things happening but I still can't believe it. That's what really scared me—that it was real and I was watching it."

It was the first major crash at Toronto International and the second worst in Canada's aviation history.

Another Air Canada DC-8, also en route to Toronto from Montreal, crashed Nov. 29, 1963, at Ste. Therese, 20 miles north of Montreal, killing all 118 on board. Investigation showed the crash was caused by failure of the plane's trim controls.

Queen Elizabeth, visiting Frobisher Bay, N.W.T., at the start of her tour of the North and Manitoba, expressed to Prime Minister Trudeau her "most sincere sympathy" for the families of Sunday's crash victims.

Mr. Trudeau's office released a message from the prime minister in which he said he was shocked and saddened by the tragedy.

Goodwill Bottling Ltd. gave away 2,000 soft drinks Saturday to celebrate the Capital Region's fatality-free Dominion Day holiday.

Drinks were served to every one who showed up at the stand outsdie the Eire Street bottling plant, and according to manager Bill Sherwood, several of the neighborhood kids showed up again and again.

The company also gave away drinks in 1968 when there was a fatality-free Dominion Day.

Northern Visit Start Successful

By DAVE STOCKAND

Chancy marrow-chilling weather could do nothing Sunday to diminish the first day of the first royal tour of Canada's most northernmost reaches.

Months of laborious planning and genuine anticipation would have been knocked cockeyed if the royal flight from London had not been able to put down at this Baffin Island starting point of a historic centennial year visit to the Northwest Territories.

But a fog that looked as though it was settling in for the summer relented at the last minute and plans for a diversion of the royal jet to Ottawa were made redundant.

Prince Charles, who had flown from Ottawa the previous day with Governor-General Roland Michener, was able to stride up the passenger ramp, exactly on schedule at 11 a.m. EDT, for a brief private reunion with the arriving party—the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne.

TRUDEAU MEETS THEM

Also on hand when the Queen emerged moments later from her chartered Air Canada DC-8 jet was Prime Minister Trudeau, whose own flight from Ottawa had arrived just 12 minutes before hers.

Next scheduled stop in the 11-day tour marking the co-centennials of the Territories and Manitoba is Resolute, in the Queen Elizabeth Islands above Canada's Arctic mainland and 1,665 miles north of Winnipeg.

Members of the Royal Family will fly in separate planes to Resolute—Philip and Charles on one, the Queen and Anne on the other—with father and son making a side flight to an oil site in the Arctic islands.

They will reunite later in the day at Inuvik, a Mackenzie Delta administrative centre which, with a population exceeding 3,000, is the largest Canadian community north of the Arctic Circle.

An army spokesman said no formal complaint had been made against the troops. He said anyone wishing to press charges should get in touch with authorities.

Damage to homes in the area was shown on the television network of the Irish Republic to the south. It included broken religious statues and ravaged rooms.

The Roman Catholic community here, a minority in Protestant-dominated Ulster, looks largely to reunification with the independent and predominantly Catholic republic to the south as its main political hope for the future.

Once again the friction between the rival religious communities here set the stage for the weekend violence. But unlike last week, no Protestants were directly involved this time.

Troops seeking to root out the troublemakers found a cache of arms in the Catholic Falls Road area. The discovery led to clashes between troops and suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, including gunfire exchanges.

THE WEATHER

The weather office at Victoria International Airport said today a ridge of high pressure is giving mainly sunny weather, but bands of cloud will appear from the first in a series of Pacific storms moving onto the north coast. Temperatures are expected to reach an overnight low of 52 and a high Tuesday of 70.

Winds will be southwesterly 15, occasionally 20 around the city. A small craft warning is in effect for Juan de Fuca Strait, as winds are expected to be westerly 25 m.p.h.

Girls Come for Week To Get Horse Sense

DUNCAN — Queen Margaret's School's summer horseback riding camp never has to advertise, it's always booked up by Easter.

Over 80 chillren are registered to attend weekly sessions during the one month they are offered.

They began at the end of June. Girls ranging from 10 to 16 years of age come from Ontario, California, Powell River, Port Alice and other areas of British Columbia. Only one student is registered this year from the Cowichan Valley.

The riding camp offers a complete horse-training program as well as a holiday for the girs.

•

"Each girl is given the care of one horse or pony," she said. "They are supplied with all of the equipment and are taught to brush and care for the pony."

Miss Burr, originally from England, has taught at Queen Margaret's School here for the past nine years. She began riding horses when she was 11 and has had years of experience caring for horses and teaching English riding.

"I trained in Ireland with the late Col. Joe Dudgeon, a well-known riding instructor" she said. "Since then I have taught riding at other independent schools and have worked with international show jumpers and travelled with them on the European circuit."

The school has offered riding facilities to their boarders for years but Miss Burr has enlarged upon the program considerably since her arrival

For the past three years the school has had an indoor riding arena, many stables, outside riding facilities and small cross-country jumps. of her own and several others of her own anl several others at her disposal for giving lessons.

To assist her with the summer camp she has three junior counsellors, a lady who cares for the running of the stables, a house mother and a cook.

"Some students bring their own horse for an extra $15 a week," said Miss Burr.

"In no way is the camp a dude ranch," she stressed. "We only take girls that are coming to learn to ride."

Every day the girls are given at least one and a half hours of English riding instructions. Lectures on the practical care of horses, stables and equipment, and sometimes an instructional film.

"We try to keep the instructions as interesting as we can," explained the chief riding instructress. "We try not to put on too much pressure because we want the girls to enjoy it as well as get quite a bit out of it."

During a week's session of the camp, the girls also enjoy daily swims and instructions in the school's outdoor filtered pool, an all-day trail ride, an afternoon beach picnic and other games such as tennis and badminton.

Emergency Water Let To North Cowichan

DUNCAN — Crofton Pulp and Paper Ltd. is daily supplying South End residents of North Cowichan with 200,000 gallons of water, free of charge, due to the dryup of their water supply.

Smith explained that several days ago he was advised by the municipal engineer "we are in trouble" because Duncan cut off an additional supply of water from its system.

He said the South End water reservoir at Skinner Road was almost empty and the city could not supply any more water because its third well has not yet started production.

"I don't blame the city for this," stressed Smith.

60 MILLION GALLONS

After a phone call to the pulp mill at Crofton and a meeting between company and municipal officials, the mill obtained permission from the Public Utilities Commission to give the municipality 200,000 gallons of water a day for 90 days.

Smith said the mill has permission to pump 60 million gallons of water a day from the Cowichan River. It only uses between 55 and 58 million making the supply to North Cowichan possible.

SUPPLY SUFFICIENT

Smith said the 200,000 gallons of water being pumped daily through a hookup established between the mill's main water line and the reservoir will be sufficient.

He said a three-year study looking into the feasibility of a water system utilizing the Chemainus River is expected to be completed this year. Smith said it will probably be referred to the Cowichan Valley regional district board.

"The co-operation we got from these people was tremendous," stressed Smith. They have received so much criticism and I think we should give them a break. We are very grateful to the pulp mill for this water."

He said the free supply of water is not the first time that the Crofton pulp mill has supported the community. He said it provided lumber and a cash donation towards the new Crofton fire hall, it gave North Cowichan a 10-year lease on the boat-launching ramp at Crofton government wharf, it donated four lots at Crofton for a playground and just recently gave a bunkhouse complex to the Duncan and District Association for Retarded Children for its proposed $53,000 complex.

Drug Centre Urged By Nanaimo Doctors

NANAIMO (CP) — Mayor Frank Ney Saturday released a letter from the city medical society urging that a drug treatment centre be established.

"Many of us are asked daily to prescribe methadone for 'apparent' heroin addicts," the letter said. "It has been shown that this form of treatment . . . serves only to increase the amount of available methadone — itself an addicting drug, on the street." The doctors urged a centre similar to one operated in Vancouver.

Cablevision Office Struck

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have offered help to two women who went on strike Friday against the Campbell River Television Association.

The two, Anne Wilkinson and Margaret Widen, said Sunday IBEW members have offered to help maintain picket lines around the cable television firm's office.

The two women went on strike for higher wages after 14 months of negotiating. The 3,200 cablevision subscribers are receiving service on a relay from nearby Courtenay.

Mideast 'Munich' Blamed on Nixon

By NORMAN WEBSTER
Special to The Times

PEKING — Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai last night accused U.S. President Richard Nixon of trying "to intimidate certain countries into helping him create a Munich in the Middle East, in Indochina and in other parts of the world, a worldwide Munich."

In forcefully restating the Chinese hard line rejection of negotiated settlements in areas where "revolution" prevails, Premier Chou was taking a slap at the Soviet Union, which China accuses of abetting the U.S. in this regard.

He underlined this in a later passage which, again without naming the Soviets, is being used these days in Peking to describe them. He said:

"U.S. imperialism will not be reconciled to its defeat and it will keep on making trouble. And those who fear war and even more fear revolution will continue to render services to it."

GUEST SPEAKER

The premier was speaking in the Great Hall of the People at the grandest state banquet of the year to date. Guest of honor was Cambodia's Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who has established his exile headquarters in Peking since his ouster in a coup d'etat in Phnom Penh.

The prince returned here Thursday from a state visit to North Korea to be greetet by a spectacular motorcade, during which several hundred thousand Chinese cheered him and shouted his name.

Last night an unusually powerful lineup of Chinese leaders was on hand to applaud him. They included Tung Pi-Wu, who carries out many head of state functions since the fall of Lio Sho-Chi, Premier Chou, Kang Sheng, Chiang Ching, Yao-Wem-Yuan, Yeh Chun, Huang Yung-Sheng, Li Hsien-Nien and a large group of slightly less important figures.

"At present, from the Korean Peninsula to Indochina, a united front against U.C. imperialism is being further consolidated and is growing in strength," said Chou.

It is a united front which China is the acknowledged major partner and from which the Soviet Union is pointedly excluded. It favors the Chinese line of scorn for attempts at a peaceful settlement in Indochina.

NIXON ATTACKED

Premier Chou attacked President Nixon's statement that the U.S. troops sent into Cambodia had successfully fulfilled their combat missions and had all been withdrawn.

Prince Sihanouk, speaking under a giant portrait of himself beside one of China's Chairman Mao Tse-Tung, added to Chou's remarks on the Cambodia withdrawal. It was nothing but a despicable trick, he said.

"For this withdrawal is immediately made up by a soaring escalation of American-Saigonese air intervention in Cambodia, the sending of new contingents of Vietnamese mercenaries of Khmer origin to our country, the sending of thousands of tons of arms and other lethal weapons to Lon Nol ... not counting the impending arrival of armed contingents and warships and the air intervention by the U.S. satellite, Thailand."

The prince said that despite the U.S. invasion, his forces fighting in Cambodia had succeeded in liberating completely five provinces. Ten others had been partially liberated.

The remaining four provinces appear to be "completely colonized" by Saigon Vietnamese troops, he said, but this was true only on the surface. Sihanouk forces are making headway in the villages, while the Saigon troops remain entrenched in the cities.

Canada Cement Plans New Plant

BATH, Ont. (CP) — Canada Cement Lafarge Ltd. has announced construction of a $49,000,000 cement manufacturing plant due for completion in 1973.

The company said in a release issued in Montreal that construction would begin next summer and that the plant's capacity would be 1,000,000 tons of cement a year.

About 150 men would be employed in the new plant.

Train Derailed

EDMONTON (CP) — A Canadian National Railways 90-car unit train carrying loads of sulphur from Edmonton to Vancouver had eight cars go off the track Sunday afternoon near Leaman, 88 miles west of Edmonton.

A CNR spokesman said no one was hurt in the derailment but the main line was blocked until early today.

Passengers on later trains were taken on to their destinations by bus or plane or registered at hotels until the line was open, the spokesman said.

Cause of the derailment is unknown and is being investigated.

Science Council Warns Urban Problems Urgent

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Science Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The cities hold Canada's most urgent problems and ways must be found to help federal, provincial and municipal governments join forces to tackle them, says Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the Science Council of Canada.

An environmental council is needed to co-ordinate efforts to preserve the natural environment and to improve the urban, he says.

He urges creation of a federal department of renewable resources, saying that such a step and its scope deserve "most careful consideration."

Dr. Solandt's 10-page report, made public today, is part of the science council's fourth annual report to the government.

An accompanying note says his views accord with the council's but represent his thinking and not necessarily those of the council members.

Dr. Solandt makes it plain that both the environmental council and the department of renewable resources proposals will be made formally to the government later in forthcoming science council documents.

Dr. Solandt says flatly that "the most urgent problems are in the cities." He predicts this will continue as population growth continues in the cities.

PUSHES FOR TARGET

Later he repeats a recent public plea that Canada must soon set itself a population goal for the future. Until population pressure in the cities and the flight of people from the country is solved, "we would certainly be wise to maintain a slow rate of population growth."

The need for combined federal, provincial and municipal effort to tackle urban problems "will require federal initiative," Dr. Solandt says.

The kind of problems cited:

- ● Law and law enforcement Divided jurisdiction fails to mobilize available resources of science and technology to support enforcement and prevent crises.
- ● Road safety. With 5,000 persons killed annually on highways, only extremely small amounts are spent on applying science and technology to road safety and similar problems. This cited as another example of divided jurisdiction preventing growth of adequate research facilities.
- ● Pollution. Money and brains must be invested to provide clean air and water and a land free of the "garbage" that society creates. An urgent need is to know the nature of the problem, the extent of ignorance and the need for more research.

NEED TO ORGANIZE

The problems make it clear "some new mechanism is needed to co-ordinate the present widely dispersed efforts to preserve the natural environment and to improve the urban environment."

"Leadership must be provided by some widely based co-ordinating agency which might be called an Environmental Council. The Science Council . . . plans to make a more detailed proposal in the near future."

Dr. Solandt is sharply critical of low productivity and efficiency in three major service sectors of the economy—health care, education and government, "and the greatest of these is government."

He scores government "institutional rigidity" as a major impediment to desirable change and expresses a hope that the new planning, programming and budgeting system will improve productivity.

In health care, he says much greater spending is needed on preventive medicine, warning that rising costs may limit health care and curtail other desirable spending.

Education and health care both offer excellent opportunities to apply modern industrial engineering and systems analysis to improve effectiveness and efficiency. Too little research is done on the process and content of education.

WANT COMMITMENT

Dr. Solandt says the council soon will propose that preservation of the quality of man's environment be recognized as an explicit national goal.

Amalgamation of some existing federal departments concerned with single use of individual resources might be needed for effective use of modern management techniques to ensure multiple resources use.

"The science council . . . will advance a case for the creation of a federal department of renewable resources."

He says better ways are needed to enlist social scientists in advising on policy and the Senate science policy committee may produce definite recommendations on this by the year's end.

There is an urgent need in every field of science and technology to have some body responsible for forming a detailed national policy, he says. If a minister for science policy is appointed, a first task must be to review the whole policy formulation mechanism of the federal government.

Abitibi Plans Staff Cutback

TORONTO (CP) — Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. has announced it will lay off 10 per cent of its 300 top office workers in Toronto by the end of the year.

A spokesman for the paper company said increased operating costs and a higher international value of the Canadian dollar which makes Canadian newsprint more expensive to foreign buyers are responsible for the layoff.

Abitibi, one of Canada's largest paper and pulp producers with mills throughout Eastern Canada, reported a profit of $12,000,000 on sales of $287,000,000 last year. Much of its sales are abroad.

Gold Reserves In Britain Up

LONDON (Reutedrs) — Britain's official gold reserves rose by £10,000,000 (about $25,000,000) last month to a total of £1,163,000,000 about ($2,907,500,000).

It was the 10th month in succession that the reserves had risen and came after advance repayments of $31,000,000 to the Bank for International Settlements in Basel and long-term loan servicing payments of £32,000,000.

Last month's increase put the reserves at their highest level since the first quarter of 1967. But devaluation later in 1967 increased the pound equivalent of dollars held in reserve.

Pulp Mill Project Delayed by P & G

EDMONTON (CP) — Procter and Gamble Co. of Canada Ltd. has postponed a decision on construction of a pulp mill in the Grande Prairie region, the Alberta Government has announced.

Dr. J. Donovan Ross, minister of lands and forests, said in a statement there were several reasons for the postponement and said the government and the company "will continue to make every effort to expedite" a solution to the problems.

Two primary reasons behind the decision were the federal government's freeing of the Canadian dollar and Ottawa's "reluctance" to decide on an application from Procter and Gamble for an industrial incentive grant.

The Weather and You

By Carl Riblet Jr.

HARBORD, New South Wales — It is just 200 years ago this spring that the great English mariner and explorer, Capt. James Cook, made the first recorded comment about Australia. It was an observation about the weather that went down in history as the words of description of the country.

The weather was good that day of April 20, 1770, when the renowned navigator made his first Australian landfall at what is now Point Hicks. He wrote in his journal: "The weather being clear gave us a good view of the country, which has a very pleasing appearance." Who knows, if the weather had been bad, Captain Cook's first landfall may have been somewhere else along the coast.

Mexican Favorite Landslide Winner

By CHARLES GREEN

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Luis Echeverria Alvarez won Mexico's presidency by the expected landslide Sunday, extending the 42-year-old hold of the PRI — the Institutional Revolutionary party — on the Mexican government by another six years.

The PRI said unofficial returns from 4,822 of the country's 36,901 voting precincts gave Echeverria 1,232,200 votes to 158,324 for Efrain Gonzales Morfin of the PAN, the National Action party.

Although there never was any doubt Echeverria would win, Gonzalez Morfin refused to concede defeat. His supporters claimed there were many voting irregularities, but a government election chief rejected the claims.

No violence or disturbances were reported from any part of the country, and the turnout apparently was heavy despite a small "don't vote" campaign originated by disenchanted youths. The total of 22,800,000 persons eligible to vote included about 3,000,000 18-to-20-year-olds who could cast ballots for the first time.

The 48-year-old president-elect, who takes office Dec. 1, also claimed a resounding victory for PRI candidates in elections for 60 seats in the Senate and 210 in the Chamber of Deputies.

TO KEEP PLEDGES

Echeverria said he would not consider the vote a triumph until he finishes his six-year term and Mexicans are satisfied he has fulfilled his mandate.

He is not expected to make any changes in Mexico's foreign policy. During his wide-ranging, 221-day campaign he frequently referred to Mexico as a buffer between the United States and the rest of Latin America, and called for a renewed spirit of Latin Americanism.

"This election is a strong and decisive step for the strengthening of democracy in Mexico," he said. "The next government will increase the spirit of Latin Americanism. Latin America is a brotherhood. We are brother countries, and we must help each other."

Echeverria had the endorsement of outgoing President Gustavo Diaz Ortaz, who was barred by the constitution from seeking a second term.

Gonzalez Marfin, the 40-year-old son of a previous unsuccessful opposition candidate, said he had spent more than $80,000 to give voters a choice and try "to awaken the civic conscience of the electorate."

Conference Draws 16,000

Over 16,000 Jehovah's Witnesses from Vancouver Island, the lower mainland and northern United States are expected to attend a conference in Vancouver on July 23.

The four-day Men of Goodwill Assembly will be held in Pacific Coliseum, at the Pacific National Exhibiton grounds in Vancouver.

Two Victoria men are in Vancouver now, helping to organize the convention. Monty Mais, of 1526 Mount Douglas Cross Road, is supervising rooming accommodations, and Archie Kennett, of 604-1701 Cedar Hill Cross Road is overseer of the convention's equipment installations.

Alderman Elected

IN POLICE COURT

A 26-year-old Youbou man was sentenced to 14 days in jail Saturday and prohibited from driving for four months when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Harold J. Smith was arrested near his car that was partially on the boulevard of Windsor Road at Transit about 2:45 a.m. Saturday.

Court was told that Smith told the investigating officers he was the driver of the car and had been driving too fast resulting in the vehicle running up onto the boulevard.

He had a blood-alcohol content of .19 per cent at the time.

Smith had a previous drinking-driving conviction for which he had been fined $300.

Janet I. Barrett, 34, of 3787 Saanich Road, was fined $50 when she pleaded guilty to assault causing bodily harm.

Baxter Bennett, the bartender at a local pub, testified that the woman threw a glass of beer at him while he was drawing beer about 10 p.m. July 3. He needed nine stitches to close a cut to the head.

The accused said she was provoked into throwing the glass because of the belligerent attitude of Bennett in a dispute concerning the condition of the women's restroom on the premises.

Paul Rochon, 55, of no fixed address, was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty to failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He drove into a parked car on Government Street June 30 causing about $500 damage, court was told, and drove away.

Donald Campbell, 68, of 851 Maddison, was fined $300 in provincial court after pleading guilty to a charge of theft under $50.

Hell on Wheels —The Safe Way

By Jack Scott

As a natural-born Walter Mitty I'm forever fascinated by daredevils with ice-water in their veins and nerves of cold steel, an affliction that often takes me out to the Western Speedway where I sit high in the stands — pocketa-pocketa — and wheel my giant Ferrari—pocketa-pocketa—to split-second victory.

Trouble is that this last Saturday out there I invited a couple of the intrepid drivers to join me between races. At the risk of totally disillusioning you, I must say I never in my life met such fraidy-cats.

"It isn't just fear, it's naked terror," said one. "I tell you, the little old lady driver of Victoria has got to be the greatest threat to safe driving since the wheel was invented. You're safer in the Indy 500 then you'll ever be on Douglas Street when the little old ladies are on the road."

"That Island Highway," confessed the second, "has my heart in my throat every mile of the way. All of the major roads on this Island are death traps. Now they're going to make a three-lane highway from Victoria to Nanaimo with that built-in suicide strip down the middle. I tell you, its enough to make you give up driving anywhere except right here on the circuit."

Scott

My guests were Bob Collins, a garage mechanic of 23 who, in an orange-colored, beat-up, souped-up '49 Ford may be seen careening at upwards of 80 miles an hour down a straightaway about the length of a bowling alley, and Fred Best, who, at 24, is an eight-year veteran of the Speedway and whose latest adventure was to go shooting off the track into the primeval forest at better than 100 miles an hour with a jammed throttle. Pocketa-pocketa.

Both men are blandly matter-of-fact about such exploits. They're downright alarmed about the carnage out there on the asphalt and cement tracks that you and I use in such trusting faith day in and day out with none of the safety precautions of roll bars, helmets and harness that protect the Speedway drivers.

Statistically, in fact, they've got a point. More people have been killed in Victoria traffic this year to date than on all the recognized tracks of the world — though it's been a sad year for racing, too.

In its 20-year history, clear back to the dirt track days, the Western Speedway has never had a fatality. Guys are always stepping from the scrap metal of cars all but totally demolished with no more than slight bruises or, the most to date, a broken arm. The great white ambulance is always there. It seldom gets any business.

And it's hard to believe. Watch 30 or more of these fine-tuned many-colored vintage wrecks, all with that curious cant of a frame bent to go in circles at the fastest possible speed, banging, bashing and slamming through 100 laps, and you wonder if there can be any walkaway survivors.

The sound alone — the anguished scream of burning rubber, the snarl, blat, screech, the deep throated roar — makes a little Saturday night corner of hell in a sylvan glade. But the real hell is out there — in the family sedan on the way home.

Why do it? Surely this can't be truly called a sport — going round and round in furious circles?

"Sure, it's a kind of lunacy," Bob Collins will tell you, "but isn't all sport? Isn't hitting a little ball into 18 holes on a pasture a kind of lunacy, too?" And husky Fred Best defines it more narrowly, that sport is a contest, a microcosm of life in which is condensed all the risks, challenges, skills, thrills, disappointments and exaltations of man's endeavor.

For Bob, the mechanic, it is the motor that's at the heart of it. Like Enzo Ferrari the machine to him is not just a machine, but a living, breathing soul, a thing, however inelegant, created to come a little closer to perfection though it may be only three one-hundredths of a second closer.

"When you think you've gone as far as you can go there's always just a little bit more," he explains. "In racing they call it 'the ragged edge', that fine point between brilliant success and total disaster. Speed is the name of the game."

Cool-Aid Plans Hostels, 'Back-to-Nature' Farm

By GINNY GALT

Victoria Cool-Aid is planning to establish a local farm as a "back-to-nature come-down for kids strung out on drugs or themselves", according to the second annual report of the youth-run self-help organization.

The group has had an offer of 38 acres, free, and the organizers are hoping to pursue this offer in the fall with concrete plans for staffing, money and purpose.

The farm proposal goes along with another plan to establish two hostels for youths in Victoria for stays longer than now possible.

A government agency has asked Cool-Aid to open, staff, and control two hostels with a three-month limit on the stay. Each would accommodate up to 14 miles ranging in age from 15 to 25.

Because of the heavy demand on existing Cool-Aid facilities at the Cool-Aid house, 953 Balmoral, and St. John's Parish Hall, a three-night-only policy has to be strictly enforced.

"Most kids stay but one night, and we never see them again. Most people seriously interested in helping themselves can find something in this city within three days. If we didn't have the three-day time limit, the backlog of crashers would be terrific, like sleeping sardines," said the report.

Both the farm and the hostels would be completely autonomous, Cool-Aid-run places.

Cool-Aid has come a long way since the days when all it had was one couch and a telephone.

It was set up on June 10, 1968, after members of Victoria's Youth Council examined the facilities available to young people in Greater Victoria.

They came to the conclusion that there was a great need for a youth-run, youth-oriented, helping organization — if only because so many young people are genuinely afraid of turning to adult-run agencies for help.

"It also became obvious that those professional adult-run agencies weren't able to provide for some of the real needs that young people have," stated the report.

Tha fact that this organization run by six young people between the ages of 17 and 25 has survived for this long probably indicates something about its role in society.

The report said Cool-Aid seems to work because it is easily accessible to kids. It is open 24 hours a day and is prepared to handle almost any emergency.

They have 15 physicians, five pyschiatrists, four lawyers, 12 dentists, and one dental mechanic willing to provide free emergency service for young people referred to them by Cool-Aid.

They also have the co-operation of Royal Jubilee Hospital emergency ward, and the Victoria and Saanich mental health clinics.

Cool-Aid has the blessings of the provincial welfare department, the four Greater Victoria municipal councils and the local RCMP who regularly send young people to the Cool-Aid house.

Cool-Aid has learned much in the last two years about organizing major sources of support. To get big money, you must offer proof of need, competence, sincerity. The best way to do this is to run a pilot prosect and do it with your own resources, the report said.

Cool-Aid has been getting big money and major sources of support, because its organizers worked hard to get help.

Although Cool-Aid has a lot of friends, it has several critics too.

Cool-Aid invites its friends, critics, and anyone interested in seeing what's happening over there to drop into the house and see for themselves. And that invitation is sincere.

ANNIVERSARY FLIGHT ARRIVES

It was stolen from the aptly named plane at Winnipeg airport during a cross-country flight commemorating the 50th anniversary of the first Canadian trans-continental airmail run.

The theft was reported when six aircraft, including some vintage machines, arrived here Sunday.

The delicacy and a bottle of Atlantic seawater were aboard a plane carrying Peter Fisher, president of the Moncton Flying Club; D. S. McClure, club general manager; Dr. D. Steves, regional director of the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association, Atlantic zone, and N. W. Robertson of the Moncton club.

Oldest pilot in the flight which was co-sponsored by the CFCA and the Royal Trust Co. was Varian Green, 74, of Claremont, Calif. With 54 years of flying behind him, Green travelled with his wife, Gwendoline, 69. to meet his squadron leader in 1916 in the Royal Naval Air Service, Wing Commander Robert Leckie. The two had not seen each other in 50 years.

Youngest person to take part in the flight was the 1½-year-old daughter of Bob and Quita Longmore of Regina. The Longmores also had their four-year-old son along in their Stinson 108.

22 HOURS

Fred Mainwood of 5083 Catalina Terrace had clocked 6,388 miles when he touched down at Pat Bay Saturday afternoon. He made the trip to Nova Scotia in his Piper Comanche in 22.05 flying hours, the return run being done in 26.17 flying hours.

Just as in the initial run which began in Halifax in a Fairey seaplane on Oct. 7, 1920, letters were carried to the mayors of the various communities in which the participating planes touched down.

In Kenora, Ont., the mayor said this trip reminded him of the first when he played hookey from school to watch the plane come in.

Two of the oldest machines to take part in the anniversary flight were Castlegar doctor John V. Hall's 1936 WACO and a Beech Staggerwing of the same vintsge, rebuilt by George Le May of Calgary and piloted by Jim Burrows of that city.

Victoria Makes Bid For Games

By STEVE HUME

A committee representing the four core municipalities of Greater Victoria has made an official bid for the Canada Summer Games of 1973.

Jack Morgan, community services and recention director for Victoria and chairman of the committee, said Sunday a brief bidding for the multi-sport games was submitted Thursday to the provincial government.

The brief is scheduled to be presented to the federal government Aug. 15, Morgan said.

Four other B.C. cities—Kelowna, Kamloops, Prince George and Burnaby — New Westminster—are also bidding for the event.

Initiated in 1969 by the federal government, the Summer Games feature interprovincial championships in some 18 team and individual sports as diverse as marathon running and lawn bowling.

A detailed document of 36 pages, complete with maps, architects' diagrams and facilities and climatological data charts, the brief estimates total expenditures for the games at $1,425,068.

An estimate of $938,000 in operating expenditures is based on actual operating costs of the 1969 games held jointly at Halifax and Dartmouth in Nova Scotia.

A scant $145,000 in revenues is expected from ticket sales and funds invested, but the brief allows for $793,068 in expenditures to be paid by the federal government.

The brief proposes capital expenditures of $632,000 in eight areas for provision of new facilities and upgrading of existing facilities.

Capital costs would be borne jointly by Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and Victoria, with assistance from both federal and provincial governments.

Centennial Stadium would be spruced up with more concessions, fences, and $85,000 worth of new lights for a total upgrading expenditure of $165,000.

With respect to other facilities:

- Capital improvement expenditures of $50,000 are estimated for Macdonald Park, tentatively scheduled for field hockey competition,
- Men's softball, scheduled for either Topaz or Heywood parks, would get $30,000 for lighting and a further $24,000 for seats, public announcement systems, fences and scoreboards.
- Women's softball at Carnarvon Park would get $24,000 for a similar sprucing up.
- Baseball at Saanich's new Lambrick Park layout would receive a $24,000 upgrading.

Facilities Already Adequate

Facilities for lawn bowling, soccer, sailing, swimming, tennis, lacrosse and cycling are considered adequate already, according to the brief.

For soccer the brief offers 20 parks, several with more than one regulation pitch, including the facilities at Royal Athletic Park.

Tennis could have 10 playing areas with a minimum of 24 courts, according to the brief, while lawn bowling could have five playing areas with a minimum of two greens each.

Lacrosse could have three indoor boxes and five outdoor boxes, including Memorial Arena, and two areas with central routes are proposed for cycling.

Twenty-six parks, each with up to four diamonds, are available for baseball and softball, says the brief.

The brief estimates $15,000 to improve the Victoria Rod anl Gun Club range for trap shooters.

G. R. Pearkes Arena, in Saanich would get $15,000 for improvements necessary for archery competition.

Central locations for most sites is strongly emphasized in the brief, which presents a map indicating that 12 of the 15 areas proposed for competitive activities are within three miles of the city centre.

A total of 93 hotels and motels yield 3,241 rooms, the brief says, and 53 establishments with 2,615 rooms are located within the city of Victoria.

Accommodation for an expected 2,010 visiting athletes would be split among Canadian Armed Forces bases (900), the University of Victoria (600), University School (160) and other private schools (350).

Ottawa to Press Russia For Boat Damage Payment

The federal government will insist on compensation from the Soviet Union for damage to a Canadian fishboat caused by a Russian trawler, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today.

Victoria fishermen Dick Williams, 2771 Shoreline, said a Russian trawler pulled his 48-foot troller by the anchor chain at speeds up to eight knots Saturday before the chain broke. He estimated danage at $300.

Davis said a protest has been sent to Russia. The Soviet Union did not offer compensation in similar incidents last fall, he said, but this time Ottawa will insist on it.

'MOST UPSET'

Davis said the area is outside Canada's fishing limits but "it has been a long-term practice of our people to tie up overnight on the bank."

Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan of British Columbia earlier sent a wire to Davis asking him for action to protect Canadian boats under what he called "the current volatile circumstances."

A spokesman for the Pacific Trollers' Association said fishermen are "most upset" by the incident.

'WILD RIDE'

"It was a wild ride and a rude awakening for me."

In Vancouver the department of fisheries' area fisheries director Robert McLaren said the patrol vessel Tanu was in the area at the time and confirms Williams' report.

McLaren described the Russian trawlers as being "in the order of 200 feet in length," large enough to swamp the many smaller vessels than Williams' that have for years anchored in that area at night.

Water Restrictions In Effect Tuesday

Restrictions on lawn and garden watering will go into effect Tuesday, Greater Victoria Water District announced today.

Domestic users with odd and even house numbers will be allowed to water on odd and even dates, respectively.

Watering is banned between noon and 7:30 p.m. except for school boards and parks departments which can't adjust working hours to the restrictions.

Chief water commissioner Ron Upward said while the district's five reservoirs are still close to the full mark, restrictions are necessary to guarantee sufficient water next fall.

Lack of rain during July and August could cause a shortage of water during the fall, Upward said.

Writ to Be Sought

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Supreme Court will be asked to direct Magistrate L. A. Justason to hear a speeding charge he quashed last Tuesday in a judgment which declared the province's driver demerit system invalid.

Prosecutor Paul Chrumka said the attorney-general's department in Edmonton has instructed him to seek a writ of mandamus in the case. He said the basis for the writ is that the charge should not have been quashed.

'Quislings' Cited

WINNIPEG (CP) — Managers, businessmen and some politicians are the "Quislings" of Canada, the traitors who would sell this country to the United States, Prof. Leo Johnson told the annual meeting of the Council of Canadian Unions here Saturday.

Prof Johnson, a professor of history at Waterloo University, said this group of men "have almost unanimously decided American capital is essential" for Canada's development.

The United States wants "our minerals, oil, gas, and above all, our water" and Canadian politicians and banks are allowing them to take the country over, Prof. Johnson said.

Kierans Firm

SASKATOON (CP) — Postmaster-General Eric Kierans will not budge from his decision to close down small post offices, a provincial convention of postmasters was told Saturday.

"I have found that I can pound my head against the wall over there and get better results," W. C. Ives of the Canadian Postmasters' Association told delegates.

Ives, national director of labor relations for the association was reporting on attempts to make Kierans change his mind about closing post offices with less than $1,000 a year revenue.

About 216 of Saskatchewan's 986 post offices either have been closed or soon will be, said J. C. Linka, president of the Saskatchewan branch of the association.

Move Planned

WINNIPEG (CP) — The managing director of the Wawanesa Mutual Insurance Company told the Manitoba legislature's public utilities committee Saturday his company would likely move its head office to Quebec if the New Democratic Party government's auto insurance bill is passed.

G. C. Trites said he couldn't see how a firm could have a head office in a province where it wouldn't be allowed to engage in its own business.

He said the program would, at the most, result in a one per cent reduction in the cost of operating a car.

Rock Fans In Calgary Behave Selves

CALGARY (CP) — A few minor disturbances were reported, but an estimated 20,000 young people generally did what they came to do at McMahon Stadium Saturday and Sunday—watch and listen to some 20 rock music groups perform for the Festival Express.

Organizers said the Calgary show, the final one in a province-hopping music caravan sponsored by Eaton-Walker Associates Ltd. and Maclean-Hunter Publications of Toronto, was the climax of a tour that previously touched in Toronto and Winnipeg.

Residents and businessmen in the area of McMahon Stadium, in the northwest section of the city, had expressed fears that the show would lead to trouble and had asked the city police commission to cancel the show.

About 9,000 turned out Saturday to listen to such groups as the Grateful Dead, the Sha Na Na and Janis Joplin, with the crowd swelling to 11,000 in 80-degree temperatures Sunday. About 1,000 listened outside the stadium, apparently unable to afford $10 to $16 for a ticket.

Plane Wrecks Found Sunday

PRINCETON (CP) — The wrecks of two private planes missing for months, one with seven persons aboard, were found Sunday in the British Columbia southern interior, about 125 miles east of Vancouver.

A Canadian Forces helicopter crew from Comox, on Vancouver Island, en route to this area to investigate the site where a fishing party found the wreckage of a plane missing since April 18, spotted the wreckage of the second plane about 25 miles west of here.

The second plane, a Beechcraft, disappeared on a flight from Vancouver to Penticton Jan. 30 with its pilot, Peter Ferguson, and passengers Doreen Tennant, Elaine MacFarland and Fred Ellis, of Penticton; Joan Ellingham and Erline Saxhaugh, of Vancouver, and Donald Ganzezald of Peachland.

The first plane found by the fishing party about 20 miles northeast of here was an Aircoupe, piloted by Donald Broatch of Coquitlam. It went down April 18 on a flight from Langley to Nelson. Mr. Broatch's body was recovered.

An Air-Sea Rescue spokesman said the helicopter would return to the site near Hope early Monday with RCMP and accident investigators to probe the crash and remove the bodies.

ONE SIGN OF DISASTER

(Times News Services)

MONTREAL — By early Sunday afternoon, the only indication that disaster had overtaken Flight 621 originating here was a small handwritten sign directing relatives to a special lounge.

Earlier, many of the people waiting still could not believe it and nervously awaited specific confirmation of the deaths. Others insisted on being taken to the crash site.

The airline installed extra telephones to handle outgoing calls to relatives and arranged transportation to either Montreal or Toronto.

Champagne and Roses Start Death Flight

TORONTO (CP) — There was soft music, a bouquet of red roses and perfect flying weather as the four stewardesses of Air Canada's flight 621 welcomed their passengers aboard the Los Angeles-bound Super DC-8 Sunday.

The time was 7:20 a.m. and the flight the sales agents call the "connoisseur flight"—because of the wine and champagne served aboard—was loading 99 passengers at Montreal International Airport.

DRILL CONDUCTED

In the cockpit Captain Peter Hamilton, a veteran airline pilot who had been with Air Canada for more than 20 years, went through his pre-flight drill with the confidence born of long experience and the knowledge that his aircraft was one of the newest in Air Canada's fleet. It was delivered April 24 and had flown fewer than 450 hours.

After takeoff the passengers settled down to breakfast: Baked ham and scrambled eggs in economy class, an alternative omelette and corn flakes on the first-class menu.

Flying in brilliant sunshine with perfect visibility Flight 621 climbed northwest to 27,000 feet over Ottawa. Cruising at 550 miles an hour the aircraft passed over Peterborough, Ont., and began its slow descent toward Toronto where another 100 passengers were waiting to board.

The time was 8:05 a.m. It had been a textbook flight and approach and the huge jet was cleared for touchdown five minutes ahead of schedule.

Then disaster struck. As Flight 621 touched the ground, for reasons still unknown, an engine broke away. The jet roared into the air again, heading northeast. Flight 621 had three minutes to live.

The ground controller guiding the touchdown called urgently: "He's lost an engine . . . He's lost another . . . he's going down. . . ."

In a farmer's field seven miles from the airport the DC-8 lay scattered in thousands of pieces. The wreckage hissed and steamed gently. There were no cries, no screams.

The 99 passengers, the nine crew aboard the "connoisseur flight" were dead.

Centennial Grant Going to Health

Premier Bennett wants the federal government to allocate $7 million of its $10 million centennial gift to B.C. for health services, especially research.

In a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau, Bennett said the allocation of the $7 million would be carried out under the auspices of the B.C. Medical Association.

He told a press conference today a portion of the $7 million could be spent on an improved measles vaccine and testing program for women anticipating pregnancy if the medical profession desired. (Some doctors have complained of the inadequacy of the government's current measles vaccine program."

Bennett said he wired his proposals to Trudeau last Friday after having formed a consensus of the opinions of British Columbians on how the federal grant should be spent to celebrate the 100th anniversary of B.C. joining confederation.

BENNETT ANXIOUS

He said he sent the wire to Trudeau, who announced the $10 million grant June 15, because he is anxious that planning for the centennial proceed without delay.

Bennett said the impression he has received from the public is that they don't want the money spent on swimming pools or buildings but on services to people, "and the health of our citizens must come first."

Bennett proposed that the balance of the $10 million grant be spent this way:

- $1 million for "federal programming and publicizing" of the centennial;
- $2 million to go to a $1 per capita grant to all of B.C.'s local centennial committees "for their lasting commemorative projects."

ITALIAN PREMIER Mariano Rumor resigned today, and the nation's labor federations promptly suspended a planned nationwide general strike. The strike had been called to press Rumor's coalition government for economic reforms.

108 Killed In DC-8 Crash

TORONTO (CP) — Investigators today began a painstaking reconstruction of the last minutes of Air Canada Flight 621 in an effort to determine the cause of Sunday's crash which killed all 108 persons aboard.

The Super DC-8 jet crashed only 75 feet from a farmhouse 3¾ miles north of Toronto International Airport after it touched the runway briefly and took off again when an engine dropped off.

It was to have made a brief stopover on a flight to Los Angeles from Montreal.

Canada's Second-Worst

The victims of the second worst air disaster in Canada's history included 75 paying passengers, most of them from Quebec and California, two infants, 22 Air Canada employees and a crew of nine.

"Everything was silent except for a hissing sound coming out of the hole," said farmer Sytze Burgsma, the first witness on the scene after the four-engine plane crashed in his vegetable patch at 8:10 a.m.

"There was no screams or anything like that."

PIECES SMALL

A shoe, part of a stewardess's uniform, a child's doll and a 20-foot piece of wingtip were among the few recognizable pieces of debris scattered in the fields and trees around a scorched hole 35 feet wide and up to seven feet deep.

W. M. House of the federal department of transport, who is heading the investigation, said tapes from the plane's flight recorder, found at the crash site, are being studied for clues.

Teams of investigators were set up to study control tower tape recordings of conversation with the pilot, Capt. Peter Hamilton of Montreal, interview eyewitnesses and examine the wreckage.

An Air Canada spokesman noted that many of the passengers were Americans returning home on the holiday weekend, but that even so the plane was not carrying its peak load of 198 passengers.

"Yesterday (Saturday) or tomorrow (Monday), it would have been full," he said.

There were conflicting reports of what happened at the airport when the giant jet—a stretched version of the DC-8—made its landing approach to runway 32 in near-perfect flying weather.

FIRE REPORTED

Ground control officials and police were quoted as saying the pilot had radioed that one of his starboard engines was on fire, and that the control tower had ordered him to gain altitude and jettison fuel.

But Mr. House, although confirming that there had been a fire, said it had not yet been determined whether it occurred before, during or after the landing attempt.

An Air Canada spokesman said there were no emergency messages from the plane at any time and that the aircraft made a normal approach.

A department of transport official at the airport said the pilot informed the control tower that he was executing a missed approach—meaning he was aborting the landing attempt and would try again.

The plane apparently rolled a short distance along the runway—some witnesses said it bounced on the runway—and then began what appeared to be a normal takeoff.

But while in the air over the runway, the outside starboard engine dropped to the ground. Minutes later and just before the crash, the inside starboard engine and 15-foot length of wingtip fell 100 yards apart into farm fields.

CAME APART IN AIR

All the eyewitness reports agreed that the plane was trailing flames and smoke and dropping pieces of debris as it left the area of the airport and that it then "nosedived right down," as eyewitness Michael Matyas described the final descent.

About 200 policemen under the direction of the provincial police sealed off a four-square-mile area round the crash site as investigators from the department of transport and Air Canada moved in.

Post Offices Study Regional Lockouts

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmasters across the country have been authorized by the government to close down local operations if they feel recurring strikes and backlogs of mail have rendered adequate service impossible.

Sources confirmed today that the postmasters were notified during the weekend to be ready to take action at any time.

They said, however, that a decision to close would be left entirely in the hands of local officials.

The new governmnt tactic is a long-delayed response to rotating strikes organized by the Council of Postal Unions in the contract dispute that has distrupted post office service for more than a month.

IWA TALKS

Meanwhile, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today entered the deadlocked dispute between the Internatioal Woodworkers of America and British Columbia's coastal forest industry, holding separate meetings with both sides.

This morning he sat down for closed face-to-face talks in Vancouver with IWA negotiators and at 2:30 p.m. he met with John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., bargaining agent for the 116 companies involved in the contract dispute.

No statement was issued on the success or failure of either session.

Billings this morning declined speculation on the degree of involvement the attorney-general is likely to allow himself in the stalled negotiations between FIR and the IWA.

No talks have been held since June 26 and provincially-appointed mediator Clive McKee withdraw at the end of his term of responsibility Friday saying no progress was being made.

"We've made a firm, serious offer that we want the public and our employees to know about," he said.

He also avoided direct comment on suggestions a

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau had to borrow an apartment for his visit here Sunday because the new three-storey Frobisher Inn was filled for the weekend by the Royal Family and its party (See also Page 2)

Four waitresses from a restaurant in Montreal-Ruby Foo's were flown the 1,000 miles to Frobisher to serve the Royal Family and chef Robert Orsi of Alliston, Ont., Nottawasaga Inn, also was brought here.

Practically all the food in Frobisher, a settlement on Baffin Island, is imported except local delicacies such as caribou, grayling, Arctic char and seal meat.

An apple costs 35 cents, a loaf of bread or a head of lettuce $1, a bottle of beer 85 cents.

But the wages are good and some of the 1,200 Eskimos earn as much as $8,500 a year.

British Army to Probe Belfast Looting Charges

Times News Services

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — The British Army today set up a special office to investigate charges of looting and brutality against British troops during weekend rioting in the Roman Catholic area of Belfast where three persons were killed.

In London, Lord Balniel, minister of state in the defense ministry, told Parliament the government would investigate reports of looting by British troops if specific charges were made. He put the death toll at three civilians killed and said 57 civilians and 15 soldiers were wounded.

The area was quiet today but a Catholic member of the Ulster Parliament predicted all-out war with Protestants this summer.

In Dublin, meanwhile, total disarmament of civilians in Northern Ireland and protection for the Roman Catholic minority has been demanded by the government of the Republic of Ireland.

A statement issued after a cabinet meeting Sunday night by the Dublin government charged Northern authorities with concentrating only on the Catholic minority areas of strife-torn Belfast in their search for arms.

The bitter complaints came from the Roman Catholic Falls Road area where troops enforced a curfew and conducted a house-to-house arms search, following three deaths in rioting Friday night and Saturday.

Gerry Pitt, member of the British Parliament for West Belfast, said he had collected about 100 complaints of alleged looting and damage by soldiers. He promised to raise the issue in London with Home Secretary Reginald Maudling and in the House of Commons this week.

Allegations against the troops included taking money,

"It was our best showing ever in the world championships," Romaniuk said. "We'll improve in the next few years and should be a top contender in 1975."

Ten more Canadians will participate in the freestyle division which opens Thursday night. Freestyle finals are scheduled for Saturday.

Of the 34 countries participating in the 17th tournament, Russia has eight wrestlers left in the 10 divisions. Bulgaria and Hungary each has five and Yugoslavia four. Romania, Poland and Japan each has three wrestlers seeking world titles and the U.S., East Germany, Greece, West Germany and Sweden one each.

Less than 20 days after it started, the 73-foot ketch Blackfin sailed into the harbor first in the 3,571-mile trans-Pacific yacht race to Tahiti from California.

Skipper Ken Demeuse of Hayward, Calif., was at the helm Saturday as the vessel from the St. Francis Yacht Club of San Francisco crossed the finish line, edging the 78-foot ketch Mir by only 25 minutes. Mir was skippered by George A. O'Brien of Vancouver.

Finishing first did not automatically make Blackfin the winner, however, since the race is handicapped.

Mir had led the pack for most of the distance.

Jim Elder of Canada's international equestrian team is in a strong position to place in the finals of the world jumping championship after scoring a sixth place standing in the first event Sunday at La Baule, France.

Winner of the event was Harvey Smith of Britain riding Mattie Brown with Alwin Shockenmohle of West Germany second and David Broome of Britain third.

Knievel landed on a safety ramp extending over the last five cars. The impact jolted him into the air. He landed on the seat of his motorcycle, then bounced into the air a second time. He gained control of the machine as it descended the landing ramp and continued for about 100 feet before tumbling to the ground.

He was also a member of the five-man Ontario team of E. Duke, Kitchener; Gil Henderson, Toronto; Joe Shields, Oakville; and Jim Emmet, Thorold, which scored 961 out of 1,000.

Bate Pads Lead As Molsons Falter

Bate, leading by only 1½ games before the weekend, crushed second-place Molsons 6-1 on Sunday after collecting an easy victory earlier the same day. Lake Cowichan defaulted when only eight players showed up.

Molsons started to slip behind after losing a 4-2 decision to Strathcona Hotel on Saturday.

Bill Haslam paced Bate's seven-hit attack with a solo home run in the sixth inning while Barry Jackson recorded the victory by striking out seven and scattering five hits.

HENLEY UMPIRE'S CALL RAISES ROWING STORM

HENLEY ON THAMES (AP)—A husky crewman swore at the umpire, there was jeering in the stuffy stewards' enclosure and elderly colonels choked on their pink gin.

The last race in the four-day affair—noted for its gentility—suddenly exploded into fury as England's Thames Tradesmen Rowing Club's fours was disqualified in the finals of the Wyfold Cup Saturday and the Trident Rowing Club of South Africa was awarded the race.

The umpire, 1948 Olympic gold medallist Dr. Ran Laurie, had been following the race in a launch. He warned the English crew three times for moving too close to Trident. Finally after the two shells collided in the flurry of enmeshed oars he disqualified the Tradesmen for a foul.

Two of the English crew—they were in the lead at the time—burst into tears. Another one swore mightily and the public address system broadcast his four-letter word around the enclosure.

Trident coach Keith Mayberry said his crew didn't want to win that way and offered to run the race again. The stewards refused.

"We fully support the umpire's decision," said a regatta spokesman.

German Crews Dominate Henley

HENLEY ON THAMES (CP) — A sturdy crew from Ridley College of St. Catharines, Ont., gave Canada its first-ever win at the Henley Royal Regatta by stroking to victory in the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup.

It was probably the last competitive race for this Ridley crew, already holder of the Canadian and United States schoolboy titles, and it came against what its coach called the toughest opposition Ridley has faced.

The Canadians defeated Hampton grammar school of England to win the Cup by 2½ lengths over the one-mile 550-yard Thames River course. The time was seven minutes six seconds.

The victory was the first by a Canadian crew since the Henly competition was opened to foreign competitors in 1964.

East and West German crews took most of the other major prizes on the final day Saturday. The East Germans won the Grand Challenge Cup for eights, the premier event at Henley, and the Silver Goblet for paired oars.

West German orasmen took the Prince Philip Challenge Cup for coxed fours and the Diamond Challenge Sculls.

GERMANS DUEL

A huge Wester German crew from Wetzlar, known as "the bulls of Konstanz," defeated an East German squad from Posdam in the Prince Philip Cup for coxed fours, turning back a strong challenge and winning in 7:24.

Olympic silver medallist Jochen Meissner of Mannheim also gave West Germany the Diamond Challenge Sculls when he defeated Pat Delafield of England by three lengths in 8:18.

Tom McKibbon and John van Blom of the United States won the Double Sculls Challenge Cup by defeating an English crew while a Dutch crew from Groningen won the Ladies Challenge Plae for eights.

Zarley's Charge Wins Open by Three Strokes

Fires Final Round of 67; Gilbert Finishes Second

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Kermit Zarley smiled Sunday as he came off the 18th green at the London Hunt and Country Club after fashioning a five-under par 67.

There were contenders on the course behind him, but only a miracle could have prevented him from winning the Canadian open golf championship, the $25,000 Canadian funds that go to the first-place finisher, and the Seagram's Gold Cup.

While better-known pros like Chi Chi Rodriguez, Labron Harris Jr., Art Wall Jr. and George Archer were losing strokes to par on the lush 7,168-yard par 72 course, Zarley charged from four strokes off the pace for a 279 total and his second victory since joining the tour in 1964.

"I feel like Silky Sullivan today coming from that far back. . . . I had to do the same thing to win the Kaiser," Zarley said back in the clubhouse awaiting official word that he was the Canadian Open winner. He was referring to the one-time wonder horse from the West Coast who specialized in coming from several lengths back of the field to win.

He also was four strokes behind leader Dave Marr when he charged back to win the Kaiser International Open in January, 1968.

Payoff More Than '69 Earnings

The $25,000 he pocketed Sunday was more than he earned on the tour last year when he finished with just under $24,000.

His best finishes this year had been a seventh in the Texas Open and a 15th at the Los Angeles Open.

Three strokes back of the 28-year-old pro from Houston, Tex., was first-round leader Gibby Gilbert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who set a course record 65 Thursday. He earned second-place money of $14,300.

Rodriguez, from Puerto Rico, co-leader with Harris after Saturday's third round, and Bob Stone of Independence, Mo., shared third-place money of $7,350 each with scores of 283, five under par.

Harris, from Stillwater, Okla., was alone in fifth place at 284 followed by Phil Rodgers of LaJolla, Calif., at 285. In at 286 were Bob Murphy of Jacksonville, Fla., John Miller of San Francisco, Steve Spray of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Wall of Honesdale, Pa., and Archer from Gilroy, Calif.

He was three over par on the first after hitting his tee shot into a water hazard, and scored an eight on the par-four fifth, finishing the front nine in 43, seven over par, and the tournament at 290, two over par.

Another amateur, Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., paced the eight Canadians at 289. Touring pros George Knudson. and Gary Bowerman were in a group with Cowan at 290 while Al Balding of Toronto was with nine others at 292, four over. Amateur Wayne McDonald of Brampton, Ont., finished at 294.

Champion on a Birdie Binge

Zarley birdied the first, eighth, ninth, 11th, 12th and 14th holes. He went over par on only the 15th which he said "played quite long." His playing partner, Wall, also found the hole long after his tee shot went into the gallary along the left side of the fairway and struck a course marshall, Don Jackson of London, on the head and rococheted straight back into the fairway.

CUT OFFICIAL

A marshall near Jackson said the ball seemed to glance off the back of his head, splitting the skin. But Jackson was back on his feet to greet Wall and tell him everhthing was OK. He was later treated at the clubhouse.

Zarley said later he loosened up on the final nine holes. His driving was inconsistant and got him into trouble, especially on the 14th and 18th holes.

His tee shot on the 14th landed in the rough and he was forced to shoot blind to the pin. He landed 10 feet away and holed out for a birdie that put him 10 under.

On the 18th, his drive wound up under the trees to the right side of the rairway. His shot to the green wound up on the back apron but a fine chip recovery stopped 10 inches past the pin and he was able to hold par.

"I was getting awful loose under that pressure," Zarley said, admitting it was one of his worst tendencies. "But I had a few breaks; that's what it takes to win a tournament like this."

JOINS TOP GROUP

The prize money he earned here also brought his career earnings to $219,737, making him the 61st player to surpass the $200,000 plateau since 1947.

Tour old-timers Byron Nelson and Tommy Kroll were credited with getting Zarley's game back in the groove after his 1969 season.

"My putting was really bad last year . . . and both of them really got be back in the groove. I had been playing well since joining the tour up until that time."

Team Selectors Pick Schwantje

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ross Ellison of Vancouver Point Grey shot a two-under-par 70 Sunday for a two-round 142 and first place in the British Columbia Invitational golf tournament but lost a playoff for a spot on the British Columbia team for Willingdon Cup play.

Ellison ran up a total of 585, including a hole-in-one at Marine Drive Sunday, in the eight-rounds which determined the members of the B.C. team.

Neil Crofton of Vancouver Langara had the same total as Ellison after the three events and made the team after winning a Sunlay playoff against the Point Grey golfer.

Others on the team are 1969 provincial champion Doug Roxburgh of Marine Drive, who shot 580 in the qualifying events, and John Russell of Point Grey and B.C. champion Carl Schwantje of Victoria, both at 584.

Ellison finished the weekend just two strokes ahead of Schwantje, who also fired a two-under-par 70 after leading off with a 74 on Saturday. Roxburgh was third on rounds of 74 and 72 while Russell had a pair of 74s for 148 total.

Tired and Faltering Donna Retains Title

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — "I was just so glad it went in because I didn't want to come back tomorrow," said an exuberant but exhausted Donna Caponi after her second straight U.S. Women's Open victory.

"I'm just so tired . . . so tired of thinking because I got myself into so much trouble out there," she added Sunday after her one-stroke victory over Sandra Haynie of Runaway Bay, Tex., and former champion Sandra Spuzich of Indianapolis.

And get herself into trouble she did.

Miss Caponi, who entered the final round of the $30,000 classic with a four-stroke lead on a three-under-par 210 over the 6,210-yard Muskogee Country Club course, finished play with a three-over-par 287.

Before culminating play with a two-over-par six, the attractive 25-year-old brunette carded five holes at one over par.

DOWN TO 18th

Leading Miss Spuzich by two strokes and Miss Haynie by three after 17 holes, Donna failed to get onto the 18th green in three. Her regulation fourth moved only a few feet and her fifth shot sailed four feet past the pin.

Miss Spuzich, however, missed a six-foot putt and a chance for a playoff and it was Donna's championship with a four-foot putt.

Those four feet were worth $5,000 to Miss Caponi, who has won four tournaments in her five-year career, and it moved her up to sixth place in the Ladies' Professional Golf Association money standings with more than $12,000 for the year.

Misses Haynie and Spuzich earned $2,000 each as runners-up, followed by Kathy Whitworth of Ocean Shores, Wash., and Sandra Palmer of Lake Arrowhead, Calif., who won $1,100 apiece with 289s.

DRAG RACING

Abbotsford Driver Best

Ken Hebert of Abbostford drove a B-Class dragster from Sumas, Wash., to victory Sunday in the competition eliminator bracket of the fourth annual summer championships at Van Isle Dragways.

Hebert sizzled through the quarter-mile drag strip at Cobble Hill in 9:20 seconds at a speed of 149.30 miles-per-hour to defeat Hugh Wedekind of Vancouver, Washington.

Bruce Lorimer of Mill Bay defeated Jim Attebury of Port Alberni for modified eliminator honors. Lorimer drove his D-Gas 1955 Chev through the distance in 12:48 seconds at 109.31 mph while Attebury had to settle for a run of 12:82 at 111.11 mph.

Triangle League Tries Camp Plan

Manager Rudy Adamic and coach George Anderson had invited 27 young ball-players to a combined camp-out and baseball training session over the weekend. The group started out Friday morning and stayed at Heatherbell farm until today, using Royal Roads grounds for practices.

Royals Win Pair; Share League Lead

Royals dominated play through most of the match's 90 minutes on Sunday to defeat division-leading Concordia 6-3 in Regina after handing Edmonton City a 5-0 shoutout Saturday in Edmonton.

Bobby Duncan and Ash Valdal each scored to give Victoria a 2-0 half-time lead over Regina. Jim Menzies and Peter Wilson added other markers early in the second frame to put Royals ahead 4-0 before Concordia players found the range.

Traweger scored two more goals with less than 10 minutes remaining, both on close-in scrambles.

Strongest help came from right-winger Wilson, who scored twice for Victoria as the Islanders chalked up a 4-0 half-time lead. Playing-coach Brian Hughes, Brian Robinson and Mark Robb scored the other Victoria goals.

In other coastal division play, Seattle Sea-Tacs won their first point in eight starts by playing to a 2-2 draw Sunday with Cougars in Vancouver.

But Seattle came on strong in the second half as Don Boyd reduced the odds with a 25-yard goal at 26 minutes and Les Fabri knotted the count six minutes later on a smart pass from Dan Rosengren.

She later missed three tries at world record height of 6' 3¾." Vancouver's Brenda Eisler set long jump mark of 20' 2¼" and Bruce Simpson of Toronto cleared 16' 6½" in pole vault for other Canadian records. Canadians defeated Czechs 103-78 in competition between men's teams.

Most of last year's winners appear certain to capture individual titles as 36 wrestlers remained in contention from a starting list of 152.

"It was our best showing ever in the world championships," Romaniuk said. "We'll improve in the next few years and should be a top contender in 1975."

Ten more Canadians will participate in the freestyle division which opens Thursday night. Freestyle finals are scheduled for Saturday.

Of the 34 countries participating in the 17th tournament, Russia has eight wrestlers left in the 10 divisions. Bulgaria and Hungary each has five and Yugoslavia four. Romania, Poland and Japan each has three wrestlers seeking world titles and the U.S., East Germany, Greece, West Germany and Sweden one each.

Less than 20 days after it started, the 73-foot ketch Blackfin sailed into the harbor first in the 3,571-mile trans-Pacific yacht race to Tahiti from California.

Skipper Ken Demeuse of Hayward, Calif., was at the helm Saturday as the vessel from the St. Francis Yacht Club of San Francisco crossed the finish line, edging the 78-foot ketch Mir by only 25 minutes. Mir was skippered by George A. O'Brien of Vancouver.

Finishing first did not automatically make Blackfin the winner, however, since the race is handicapped.

Mir had led the pack for most of the distance.

Jim Elder of Canada's international equestrian team is in a strong position to place in the finals of the world jumping championship after scoring a sixth place standing in the first event Sunday at La Baule, France.

Winner of the event was Harvey Smith of Britain riding Mattie Brown with Alwin Shockenmohle of West Germany second and David Broome of Britain third.

Knievel landed on a safety ramp extending over the last five cars. The impact jolted him into the air. He landed on the seat of his motorcycle, then bounced into the air a second time. He gained control of the machine as it descended the landing ramp and continued for about 100 feet before tumbling to the ground.

Bate Pads Lead As Molsons Falter

Bate, leading by only 1½ games before the weekend, crushed second-place Molsons 6-1 on Sunday after collecting an easy victory earlier the same day. Lake Cowichan defaulted when only eight players showed up.

Molsons started to slip behind after losing a 4-2 decision to Strathcona Hotel on Saturday.

Bill Haslam paced Bate's seven-hit attack with a solo home run in the sixth inning while Barry Jackson recorded the victory by striking out seven and scattering five hits.

HENLEY UMPIRE'S CALL RAISES ROWING STORM

HENLEY ON THAMES (AP)—A husky crewman swore at the umpire, there was jeering in the stuffy stewards' enclosure and elderly colonels choked on their pink gin.

The last race in the four-day affair—noted for its gentility—suddenly exploded into fury as England's Thames Tradesmen Rowing Club's fours was disqualified in the finals of the Wyfold Cup Saturday and the Trident Rowing Club of South Africa was awarded the race.

The umpire, 1948 Olympic gold medallist Dr. Ran Laurie, had been following the race in a launch. He warned the English crew three times for moving too close to Trident. Finally after the two shells collided in the flurry of enmeshed oars he disqualified the Tradesmen for a foul.

Two of the English crew—they were in the lead at the time—burst into tears. Another one swore mightily and the public address system broadcast his four-letter word around the enclosure.

Trident coach Keith Mayberry said his crew didn't want to win that way and offered to run the race again. The stewards refused.

"We fully support the umpire's decision," said a regatta spokesman.

German Crews Dominate Henley

HENLEY ON THAMES (CP) — A sturdy crew from Ridley College of St. Catharines, Ont., gave Canada its first-ever win at the Henley Royal Regatta by stroking to victory in the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup.

It was probably the last competitive race for this Ridley crew, already holder of the Canadian and United States schoolboy titles, and it came against what its coach called the toughest opposition Ridley has faced.

The Canadians defeated Hampton grammar school of England to win the Cup by 2½ lengths over the one-mile 550-yard Thames River course. The time was seven minutes six seconds.

The victory was the first by a Canadian crew since the Henly competition was opened to foreign competitors in 1964.

East and West German crews took most of the other major prizes on the final day Saturday. The East Germans won the Grand Challenge Cup for eights, the premier event at Henley, and the Silver Goblet for paired oars.

West German orasmen took the Prince Philip Challenge Cup for coxed fours and the Diamond Challenge Sculls.

GERMANS DUEL

A huge Wester German crew from Wetzlar, known as "the bulls of Konstanz," defeated an East German squad from Posdam in the Prince Philip Cup for coxed fours, turning back a strong challenge and winning in 7:24.

Olympic silveer medallist Jochen Meissner of Mannheim also gave West Germany the Diamond Challenge Sculls when he defeated Pat Delafield of England by three lengths in 8:18.

Tom McKibbon and John van Blom of the United States won the Double Sculls Challenge Cup by defeating an English crew while a Dutch crew from Groningen won the Ladies Challenge Plae for eights.

Zarley's Charge Wins Open by Three Strokes

Fires Final Round of 67; Gilbert Finishes Second

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Kermit Zarley smiled Sunday as he came off the 18th green at the London Hunt and Country Club after fashioning a five-under par 67.

There were contenders on the course behind him, but only a miracle could have prevented him from winning the Canadian open golf championship, the $25,000 Canadian funds that go to the first-place finisher, and the Seagram's Gold Cup.

While better-known pros like Chi Chi Rodriguez, Labron Harris Jr., Art Wall Jr. and George Archer were losing strokes to par on the lush 7,168-yard par 72 course, Zarley charged from four strokes off the pace for a 279 total and his second victory since joining the tour in 1964.

"I feel like Silky Sullivan today coming from that far back. . . . I had to do the same thing to win the Kaiser," Zarley said back in the clubhouse awaiting official word that he was the Canadian Open winner. He was referring to the one-time wonder horse from the West Coast who specialized in coming from several lengths back of the field to win.

He also was four strokes behind leader Dave Marr when he charged back to win the Kaiser International Open in January, 1968.

Payoff More Than '69 Earnings

The $25,000 he pocketed Sunday was more than he earned on the tour last year when he finished with just under $24,000.

His best finishes this year had been a seventh in the Texas Open and a 15th at the Los Angeles Open.

Three strokes back of the 28-year-old pro from Houston, Tex., was first-round leader Gibby Gilbert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who set a course record 65 Thursday. He earned second-place money of $14,300.

Rodriguez, from Puerto Rico, co-leader with Harris after Saturday's third round, and Bob Stone of Independence, Mo., shared third-place money of $7,350 each with scores of 283, five under par.

Harris, from Stillwater, Okla., was alone in fifth place at 284 followed by Phil Rodgers of LaJolla, Calif., at 285. In at 286 were Bob Murphy of Jacksonville, Fla., John Miller of San Francisco, Steve Spray of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Wall of Honesdale, Pa., and Archer from Gilroy, Calif.

He was three over par on the first after hitting his tee shot into a water hazard, and scored an eight on the par-four fifth, finishing the front nine in 43, seven over par, and the tournament at 290, two over par.

Another amateur, Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., paced the eight Canadians at 289. Touring pros George Knudson and Gary Bowerman were in a group with Cowan at 290 while Al Balding of Toronto was with nine others at 292, four over. Amateur Wayne McDonald of Brampton, Ont., finished at 294.

Champion on a Birdie Binge

Zarley birdied the first, eighth, ninth, 11th, 12th and 14th holes. He went over par on only the 15th which he said "played quite long." His playing partner, Wall, also found the hole long after his tee shot went into the gallary along the left side of the fairway and struck a course marshall, Don Jackson of London, on the head and rococheted straight back into the fairway.

CUT OFFICIAL

A marshall near Jackson said the ball seemed to glance off the back of his head, splitting the skin. But Jackson was back on his feet to greet Wall and tell him everhthing was OK. He was later treated at the clubhouse.

Zarley said later he loosened up on the final nine holes. His driving was inconsistant and got him into trouble, especially on the 14th and 18th holes.

His tee shot on the 14th landed in the rough and he was forced to shoot blind to the pin. He landed 10 feet away and holed out for a birdie that put him 10 under.

On the 18th, his drive wound up under the trees to the right side of the rairway. His shot to the green wound up on the back apron but a fine chip recovery stopped 10 inches past the pin and he was able to hold par.

"I was getting awful loose under that pressure," Zarley said, admitting it was one of his worst tendencies. "But I had a few breaks; that's what it takes to win a tournament like this."

JOINS TOP GROUP

The prize money he earned here also brought his career earnings to $219,737, making him the 61st player to surpass the $200,000 plateau since 1947.

Tour old-timers Byron Nelson and Tommy Kroll were credited with getting Zarley's game back in the groove after his 1969 season.

"My putting was really bad last year . . . and both of them really got be back in the groove. I had been playing well since joining the tour up until that time."

Team Selectors Pick Schwantje

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ross Ellison of Vancouver Point Grey shot a two-under-par 70 Sunday for a two-round 142 and first place in the British Columbia Invitational golf tournament but lost a playoff for a spot on the British Columbia team for Willingdon Cup play.

Ellison ran up a total of 585, including a hole-in-one at Marine Drive Sunday, in the eight-rounds which determined the members of the B.C. team.

Neil Crofton of Vancouver Langara had the same total as Ellison after the three events and made the team after winning a Sunlay playoff against the Point Grey golfer.

Others on the team are 1969 provincial champion Doug Roxburgh of Marine Drive, who shot 580 in the qualifying events, and John Russell of Point Grey and B.C. champion Carl Schwantje of Victoria, both at 584.

Ellison finished the weekend just two strokes ahead of Schwantje, who also fired a two-under-par 70 after leading off with a 74 on Saturday. Roxburgh was third on rounds of 74 and 72 while Russell had a pair of 74s for 148 total.

Tired and Faltering Donna Retains Title

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — "I was just so glad it went in because I didn't want to come back tomorrow," said an exuberant but exhausted Donna Caponi after her second straight U.S. Women's Open victory.

"I'm just so tired . . . so tired of thinking because I got myself into so much trouble out there," she added Sunday after her one-stroke victory over Sandra Haynie of Runaway Bay, Tex., and former champion Sandra Spuzich of Indianapolis.

And get herself into trouble she did.

Miss Caponi, who entered the final round of the $30,000 classic with a four-stroke lead on a three-under-par 210 over the 6,210-yard Muskogee Country Club course, finished play with a three-over-par 287.

Before culminating play with a two-over-par six, the attractive 25-year-old brunette carded five holes at one over par.

DOWN TO 18th

Leading Miss Spuzich by two strokes and Miss Haynie by three after 17 holes, Donna failed to get onto the 18th green in three. Her regulation fourth moved only a few feet and her fifth shot sailed four feet past the pin.

Miss Spuzich, however, missed a six-foot putt and a chance for a playoff and it was Donna's championship with a four-foot putt.

Those four feet were worth $5,000 to Miss Caponi, who has won four tournaments in her five-year career, and it moved her up to sixth place in the Ladies' Professional Golf Association money standings with more than $12,000 for the year.

Misses Haynie and Spuzich earned $2,000 each as runners-up, followed by Kathy Whitworth of Ocean Shores, Wash., and Sandra Palmer of Lake Arrowhead, Calif., who won $1,100 apiece with 289s.

DRAG RACING

Abbotsford Driver Best

Hebert sizzled through the quarter-mile drag strip at Cobble Hill in 9:20 seconds at a speed of 149.30 miles-per-hour to defeat Hugh Wedekind of Vancouver, Washington.

Bruce Lorimer of Mill Bay defeated Jim Attebury of Port Alberni for modified eliminator honors. Lorimer drove his D-Gas 1955 Chev through the distance in 12:48 seconds at 109.31 mph while Attebury had to settle for a run of 12:82 at 111.11 mph.

LEE GETS SHUTOUT

Royals Win Pair; Share League Lead

Royals dominated play through most of the match's 90 minutes on Sunday to defeat division-leading Concordia 6-3 in Regina after handing Edmonton City a 5-0 shoutout Saturday in Edmonton.

Bobby Duncan and Ash Valdal each scored to give Victoria a 2-0 half-time lead over Regina. Jim Menzies and Peter Wilson added other markers early in the second frame to put Royals ahead 4-0 before Concordia players found the range.

Traweger scored two more goals with less than 10 minutes remaining, both on close-in scrambles.

Strongest help came from right-winger Wilson, who scored twice for Victoria as the Islanders chalked up a 4-0 half-time lead. Playing-coach Brian Hughes, Brian Robinson and Mark Robb scored the other Victoria goals.

In other coastal division play, Seattle Sea-Tacs won their first point in eight starts by playing to a 2-2 draw Sunday with Cougars in Vancouver.

But Seattle came on strong in the second half as Don Boyd reduced the odds with a 25-yard goal at 26 minutes and Les Fabri knotted the count six minutes later on a smart pass from Dan Rosengren.
